The Honorable Carolyn Goodman
Las Vegas City Hall
495 S Main Street
Las Vegas, NV 89101
cgoodman@lasvegasnevada.gov

Mayor Goodman,

An issue has come into my life at the most inopportune time. I do not know who to turn to. I need the correct help. I need it quick

I will share back story and events leading up to the pressing issue at hand

I am a 59 year old male. In 2005 I was diagnosed with severe [redacted]. From that day forward my life was no longer my own. By end 2006 I was no longer able to work. A couple difficult years later I qualified for federal disability benefits. After nearly 7 years in a "walking coma" from disease, opiates, benzodiazepines, neuro drugs, psych drugs, ambien, antiseizure, and more drugs, tests and treatments, in late 2013 I told my doctor I wanted off all the chemical drugs. A rough three months later I was off all chemical medicines and have been ever since. I began a natural approach to my wellness focusing on food as medicine. My health began to improve while still the New York weather was still causing me much pain and flares of symptoms-conditions. In August 2014 I accepted invitation to leave Millbrook, New York to try the hot, dry deserts of Phoenix for my conditions. I felt improvements in days. Opportunity arose to move to Las Vegas early 2015. I moved to Vegas in April 2015. I love it here. I do not to ever want to leave. In October 2015 I became a Nevada medical marijuana patient. By end of November 2015 I began treating myself with cannabis protocol. In days my wellness improved and has improved ever since. One year later I am in the best physical condition in a decade. I am in the amazing spiritual-mental state we are Blessed to after looking death straight in the eyes, take him on in a battle to the death, and win. I am ready to give a go at becoming a working member of society again. I want to work at getting off the disability and become a productive member of the Las Vegas community. Over this past year I have met many people in our medical marijuana establishments. Being someone who has healed himself using full plant cannabis medicine I have much to offer our growing Nevada medical marijuana industries. I am enrolled in Trim Ready dispensary class 11/20/2016. I am enrolled in both the Cultivation Class and Edibles manufacturing classes on 11/27. When I complete dispensary certification on November 20th I will ask Brenda Gunsallus, owner of Sahara Wellness, my favorite person in the business, to sponsor my MME Agent card. I am just a few short weeks away from being a vetted member of the Las Vegas medical marijuana industry and onto a new life. I am Blessed to be the real deal success story that when you do not give up, regardless the odds against, fight hard fearlessly, you can win over anything. I am proof that for me cannabis changed my life from dark shadows of disease to a bright sunny new future in the city of lights I want to share my experience, skills, and knowledge, with others. I am once again looking forward to the future.

Here is my pressing issue.

I have lived in this same apartment at Ogden Villas, [redacted] for 18 months (702-818-5109). I rented furniture from Ogden Villas for $40 per month on top of my $425 month rent as I arrived in Las Vegas with just backpack and suitcase . By September 2015 I had acquired my own furniture. I put in a written request with Ogden Villas to have the rental furniture removed. The complex removed the furniture before September was over. When I paid my November 2015 rent for $425 I was told by office manager Jody Blackley I must continue paying $425 rent plus the $40 the furniture they took back or be evicted. I replied that is ridiculous. She replied it is the way it is. Jodie was moved to another site. Manager Liz, the manager who originally signed me into Ogden Villas, replaced Jodie. I brought attention to Liz that I am still being made to pay for furniture I returned. Liz said paying for furniture I returned makes no sense, she will look into it, and I must still pay the $40 for furniture I returned until it is figured out or be evicted. Liz moved to another a site. Manager Patty put a notation in my file I am still being charged for furniture I do not have. After thirteen months of being told by every floating manager that I must continue paying for products & services I do not receive under threat of eviction I receive notice my rent is being increased $40 to $505 (copy attached). They are raising my rent forty dollars each month on top of my already being overcharged $40 each month for furniture I do not have. I see this as a common sense opportunity to clear the slate by me accepting not paying November 2016 rent $465 for the $520 Ogden owes me for furniture and start the year off with this long overdue issue sorted and done. I write up a proposal (copy attached), give a copy to manager Patty to give to Jody, and mailed a copy to Plenty of Places corporate offices. On Thursday November 3rd I received email from Plenty of Places stating I can no longer access my online plenty of places account. Thursday November 10th I found an eviction notice attached to my door (copies attached).

I am a model tenant who has done nothing to cause any trouble here nor anyone anywhere.

I have paid my rent on time every month since I have been here. I have not once been a bother to anyone. All my neighbors like me. I keep to myself and do not get involved with the dramas of other residents. My apartment is clean without ever a problem with insects.

While Ogden wants to charge me $505 a month rent there are other tenants on disability benefits who were residents who were here before me that are paying $425 per month

I had three important stipulations to making the move to Vegas. 1 Tile floor, 2 second floor, 3 near a store

1. My decade of wicked battles against an invisible illness no one understands is brought to me by a tiny insect bite I did not know I received. Carpet grosses me out in a sense. Like indoor grass. For someone disabled with cans-joint related conditions with chronic pain maintaining carpet is an added chore. This apartment is all ceramic tile and is ideal for my needs

2. To have the stairs as a forced form of exercise. I prefer the less noise and traffic. I have trees outside my window. One year past a walk down Fremont to The Experience was an accomplishment. Today, most days, I walk over a mile around the neighborhood enjoying the Las Vegas sunrise with coffee. I commonly walk to our senior center on bonanza, library right up N LV Blvd., anywhere I want to go. I am truly Blessed beyond belief in all aspects of life

3. Store for access to necessary supplies close by when physically unable to make it to proper markets. The owners and crew at 7-Eleven Fremont & 15th all know me. After 18 months we get along quite well.

My requirements were met with this apartment and I moved here. I love my apartment home here in Downtown Fremont.

I have no money to move nor anyplace to move to. No friends nor family to help. I lost everything to battle with disease including nearly all my past family and friends. Thinking my offer so common sense and in favor of Ogden Villas they will accept I spent the $465 skipped November rent on renewing my medical cannabis card and enrolling in the three Nevada mme certification courses. If I am evicted over this lack of action by this company who admittedly owes me but is unable to reach a solution other than evicting their debt (me) I will be put out homeless on the street with the little I can carry. My two cats I rescued from shelter over one year ago will go back to the shelter. The few belongings I have been able to accumulate over this past 18 months into the dumpsters. Ten years battle against invisible illness to get into the position to once again have an on the grid life shattered. All of this because a manager Jody Blakley, who's agents lead me on for 13 month, refuses to see the common sense and right in not evicting a disabled, good tenant, who offers to accept $465 to clear up the $520 it is her cause the company she works for owes me

Friday morning, November 11th, I spoke with Fatima from Plenty of Places corporate offices. We spoke in length about Ogden Villas and this situation. Fatima assured me she will speak with her manager and get back to me by end of day. Fatima did not get back to me

Monday morning, November 13th at 11:15 am I called Fatima at Plenty of Places corporate offices to see what progress she has made on this issue (562) 989-9932). Fatima told me her and Jody Blakley have been speaking about this situation but have yet to come up with a resolution. Fatima assured me she will speak with her manager and get back to me by day's end.

Fatima did not get back to me.

I am concerned Fatima is stretching this out as Jody has done with the furniture overpayments, and before they get back with a resolution the police will be at my door evicting me to the street

Is there anything you can do to help Plenty of Places see the wrong in kicking out a good tenant who just wants the fair deal of not paying for products-services not provided, with the slate clean for what they have overcharged me? I agree to pay the $40 increase on top my $425 true rent for $465 per month beginning December 03, 2016

Please feel free to check me out. I am one of the good guys. I have had a life Blessed with many jobs, careers, experiences, knowledge, and skills, in a variety of industries that I am looking forward to putting to use after not being able to work at all for over ten long years. I am here to help.

What I am looking for exactly:

1. November Rent Receipt showing rent paid
2. Notice in change of terms of tenancy showing my monthly rent $465.00 due by 3rd of each month
3. Letter from mgr Jody Blakley's supervisor stating there will be no discrimination, retribution, nor actions, against me by Jody Blakley over this issue

Thank you for your time, considerations, and continued service

Sincerely,

Jon Andrew Rothberg

New Study Highlights the Influence of Fathers on Children's Development

Experts agree that the presence of a father in a child's life is important. But contrary to the accepted view that a father's impact on his child's cognitive and behavioral development is limited, a study at the University of Michigan delved deeper and showed that children can suffer both short- and long-term effects from a father's stress and mental health problems. Another key finding was that fathers' and mothers' mental health had similar effects on toddlers' behavior problems, and a father's depression symptoms actually had greater influence on a child's social skills later in life.

EXTERNAL EMAIL

Good afternoon Mayor,
Attached, please find the photos of the individuals that Kenny mentioned who found their way to our property in the last 7 days. It is the same report with different faces each week. Dozens and dozens more were stopped at the entrance or, turned away by someone in the casino. We have seen a noticeable increase in these individuals aggressiveness lately that makes the problem worse. These individuals are also barricading themselves in our restrooms requiring us to use force at times along with open use of illicit drugs. We spent $1,300,000 in security last year, including $353,000 paid to a third party security company for external coverage and that still is not enough. We know this is a community problem but we are asking for your help on this. The church up the street is promoting this problem to our area with the daily feedings that are conducted. We are at a loss of resources on how to address this.

Thank you in advance. All of us at the El Cortez appreciate what you do for our property and, the betterment of downtown as a whole.

Dear Commissioner,

We've met at a previous panel for VIPI and as a member of Veterans in Politics I sometimes come across various situations that may be beyond my comfort zone. Yesterday was one such example; I have a friend who lives in your area at [redacted]. Her name is Nancy Spilotro. Nancy is an elderly lady of 76 years of age, she has a son named Vincent who now resides with her although he is seldom there. Now, Nancy has a fairly famous name in this town, chiefly behind the activities her late husband is rumored to have been part of. That being said, no one deserves to be living in the conditions that she now survives through.

On Sunday, I went to check on her and it was bad, extremely bad. I've been wanting to get Nancy into a program for quite sometime now, but she believed her son would make everything okay. That didn't happen. To describe the situation is difficult, I am not ashamed to say that is is so bad that I actually shed a tear when I got home...There is dog, cat feces and urine everywhere in the house. No flush handle on the toilet, not a clean dish in site, no faucet handle on the kitchen sink no gas a stove with one dial and one working burner if the gas was on. etc.. etc.. etc.. As the lady from the fire dept said today she can smell it from the front door she doesn't need to see.

Nancy asked to be taken to hospital today so I called ambulance she was having chest pain...She is now at Sunrise and I'm looking to get her into some type of assisted living program. It would be horrific in my eyes to allow this lady to go back into this environment. The other parts of the abuse she's suffering deals with her SS benefits and prescription drugs that her son seems to be taking from her. She mentioned that him and his wife have both put hands on her in the past. I find this absolutely unacceptable and I hope you do to...

As a bit of a side note, I had gone to check on her because I mentioned her to the Mayor on Sat. and she told me to have her call her. I had no idea things had gotten this bad or I would have mentioned this to Mayor Goodman. I write you on directions from Steve Sanson based on her being a resident in your area. Can you help???

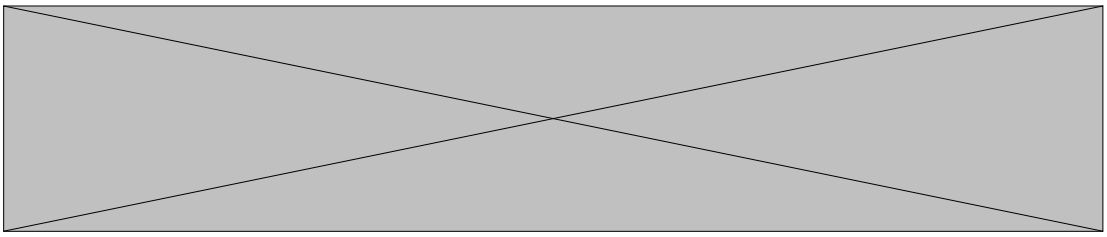
A message from Senator Kamala D. Harris



ICYMI: Kamala Harris at 53rd Anniversary of Bloody Sunday: "Look to Selma"

On Sunday, U.S. Senator Kamala D. Harris delivered remarks at the Martin and Coretta King Unity Breakfast in Selma, Alabama, as a part of the 25thAnnual Selma Bridge Crossing Jubilee. This is the 53rdAnniversary of the Selma-to-Montgomery March, and this year also marks the 50th anniversary of the assassination of the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. In addition to the breakfast, Harris also attended service at Brown Chapel African Methodist Episcopal Church, and walked across the Edmund Pettus Bridge alongside a congressional delegation.

Key excerpts from Harris' remarks:

• "From all of that history, past and present, what is clear to me is that Selma laid a blueprint. The Selma marchers showed us that while they crossed that bridge, they also built a bridge. They showed the power of coalitions when they brought together the SCLC and SNCC, white marchers and Black marchers, rabbis next to ministers, and people from across the country. They marched that bridge and they built bridges."

• "Selma, it is true we are indeed living yet again in difficult times. And, indeed, sometimes we are weary. But to any of us who feels daunted, or discouraged, or dispirited, I say if you need inspiration? Look to Selma. When we are pulled back and feel dispirited by an unjust Department of Justice as they escalate the War on Drugs and reinvigorate mandatory minimums and incarcerate instead of rehabilitate, look to Selma for your inspiration. When it feels impossible to make progress for young immigrants who are being targeted and threatened with deportation from the only country they have known and called home, look to Selma for your inspiration. When we are weary as we read that black unemployment, homeownership, and incarceration rates are the same or worse today than they were the days of Dr. King, I say look to Selma for our inspiration. And when we are faced with a powerful lobby that encourages immoral inaction which prevents all of our children from being safe from gun violence in a classroom and on the street, from suburbs to the cities, I say look to Selma for our inspiration. For Selma, you taught us – they taught us our power and they taught us how to use that power. And yes, the challenges right now are tough. And yes, the road can seem long. But I say let us remember those famous words which I will paraphrase of Coretta Scott King, who reminded us that the fight for justice, the fight for Civil Rights must be fought and won with each generation."

• "Those marchers laid the foundation for the leaders of today. And we must carry on their work. They laid the foundation so that Hank Sanders could represent Selma for 35 years in the State Senate. And so Rose Sanders could become the first Black woman to be an Alabama judge. To carry on their work, to carry on that work. And they laid the foundation so that John Lewis and Terri Sewell and Barbara Lee can serve in the United States Congress. To carry on the work. Those marchers laid the foundation so that Barack Obama would be elected President of the United States and then re-elected President of the United States. To carry on the work. And they laid the foundation so that I could become only the second Black woman elected to the United States Senate, and serve alongside Cory Booker and Tim Scott. They laid that foundation. And they laid the foundation so that this community, and I will say with a particular point of pride, and so that the Black women of this community could replace Jeff Sessions with the lawyer who brought to justice the Birmingham bombers, Doug Jones."

Children Get Heavier When Parents View Them as Overweight, Studies Show

Young children whose parents consider them to be overweight tend to add more pounds than other children as they age, according to data from two recent studies. Researchers from the University of Liverpool and Florida State University College of Medicine also found that children whose parents viewed them as being overweight saw their body size more negatively and were more likely to try to lose weight. The link between parent perception and a child's weight gain held true regardless of how much the child actually weighed when the study began.

Friends & Colleagues,

It never hurts to have friends in high places. Fortunately for the UNLV School of Medicine, U.S. Sen. Catherine Cortez Masto is a true believer in the UNLV brand of academic medicine, where education, research and clinical care are combined to provide the best possible medical experience. In July, the senator helped shine a spotlight on the importance of the medical school in the community by hosting a round table discussion with medical experts at our Shadow Lane Campus. The subject? The high cost of prescription drugs. Last year, Sen. Cortez Masto toured the UNLV Medicine Ackerman Center and its fundraising arm, the Grant a Gift Autism Foundation. She was impressed with what she saw: "I will continue to fight in Congress to support the critical work that happens here and to make sure we're doing everything we can for individuals with autism and their families." Today, in interview fashion, we feature some of the senator's thoughts on important healthcare issues, thinking that may well help us transform medical care in Southern Nevada.

U.S. Sen. Catherine Cortez Masto: Friend of UNLV School of Medicine

How do you think the UNLV School of Medicine will help transform medical care in Southern Nevada?

UNLV School of Medicine is training a new generation of doctors committed to providing high-quality health care to patients in our community. Many of these medical students have strong ties to the Silver State, and their positive impact will be felt in Southern Nevada for years to come.

What is being done to create more residencies and fellowships in Nevada, which often have much to do with keeping young doctors in a state?

Nevada suffers from one of the worst health care workforce shortages in the country, and we need all hands on deck to address this crisis. That means working together across levels of government, with our universities and the private sector to support and provide opportunities for young doctors in Nevada. We're actively exploring ways to give hospitals the flexibility to hire more residents above the federal caps. Most solutions will require additional investment by the federal government in new training slots and programs, which is also something I'm looking into.

What do you see as the best way to ensure that Americans have access to health insurance -- and do not have to worry about being refused for pre-existing conditions? Do you see Nevada as being a leader in this regard?

The best way to ensure access to health insurance is to make it affordable. That means extending the Affordable Care Act's (ACA) subsidies to new families who need them and enhancing them when they don't go far enough to help families who are already eligible. I'm working on legislation to do just that. We need to defend and strengthen the consumer protections secured in the ACA, including those for individuals with pre-existing conditions. Nevada's legislature has taken steps to safeguard Nevadans' health care if Republicans are successful in their efforts to overturn the ACA. Earlier this year, Governor Sisolak signed into law AB170, which guarantees protections for pre-existing conditions for Nevadans enrolled in insurance plans under the state's authority. And I'm fighting in the Senate on behalf of Nevadans, and all Americans, to ensure the pre-existing conditions protections under the ACA are preserved at the federal level from this Administration's attempts to sabotage the ACA.

Among Democrats who hope to become President, there has been much talk about doing away with private health insurance in favor of a government Medicare kind of plan. What is your stand on this topic and why?

Health care is the number one issue in the State of Nevada. Voters in Nevada are going to make up their own minds about which candidate's approach they want to get behind, but what remains clear is this: Democrats are fighting to defend and strengthen Americans health care; Republicans are trying to sabotage it and rip it away.

Unfortunately, there have been too many parents not getting children vaccinated because they believe vaccinations cause autism and assorted other problems. There is absolutely no medical justification for this. How can the government better address this growing problem that has resulted in far more cases of measles, chickenpox etc -- diseases once thought to be things of the past because of vaccinations.

Information is key. We need to educate parents about the danger not vaccinating poses to their children and others. The government has a role to play; the success of anti-smoking campaigns are a perfect example of how we can change unhealthy behaviors and save lives. In fact, the Senate HELP committee recently passed legislation to address high health care costs that included funding for a national vaccine awareness campaign. This issue also underscores just how critical public health funding and infrastructures are.

You are working to lower prescription drug prices in the U.S. -- Reuters has reported that in Britain the world's 20 top selling medicines are three times cheaper than in the U.S. What are the challenges to lowering prescription drug prices in the U.S.?

Congress has a role in holding pharmaceutical companies accountable for pricing drugs out of reach for too many Americans. Part of the challenges is the lack of transparency around drug prices. I've introduced legislation that would increase transparency and provide Congress with the data we need to address high costs and hold drug companies accountable. We've also long struggled with the appropriate balance between a system that prioritizes affordability for patients while also fostering the leading research and development we need to discover more innovative prescription drug treatments. Right now, far too many lifesaving medicines have a price tag that put them out of reach of those who need them. That balance is skewed too far towards rewarding manufacturers; we have to readjust that. We can absolutely bring prices down without jeopardizing innovation – there's enough money in the system to do that.

The cost of healthcare continues to rise far faster in the U.S. than in other industrialized nations. What can be done to bring costs under control?

America is one of the wealthiest countries in the world. There is no reason we can't have affordable health care and prescription drugs for hardworking people in this country. There's a lot we can do to address the high cost of health care. First and foremost, we must protect the gains we've made under the Affordable Care Act and also fix some of the problems we've seen with it. We can also work to stabilize our health care market for low-income and middle-class families in our rural communities, allow Medicare to negotiate drug prices for struggling seniors, and increase drug price transparency for all Americans.

Your grandfather was an immigrant with a grade school education. Your father became an important figure in the Nevada's political and business community, becoming a Clark County Commissioner for four terms and president of the Las Vegas Convention and Visitors Bureau for 13 years. You and your sister were the first in your family to go to college. How does your family's experience affect your work on immigration matters?

My family's story informs my work because I understand the value immigrants bring to Nevada and the country. I understand that these families are hard-working people whose wish is to build a better life and contribute to their communities. That's why I'll continue to stand up when our communities are attacked by this Administration. I recently went to the border for the second time to check on the conditions for migrant children and families. This Administration's cruel and inhumane treatment of immigrant families is wrong, and I'll continue to fight to hold them accountable and fix our broken immigration system.

You have been a leader in working to reduce domestic violence and sex trafficking. Could you please describe some of the steps you've taken and why you've taken on those challenges?

As Nevada's Attorney General, I fought to protect the rights of domestic violence survivors and human trafficking victims. Their resilience in the face of pain and trauma is so inspiring. It's motivated my work in the Senate. Today, I'm working to support survivors and provide our law enforcement with the tools they need to bring perpetrators to justice. Last year, I successfully passed bipartisan legislation requiring a study on the connection between domestic violence and traumatic brain injury. In January, I introduced a bipartisan bill to ensure that law enforcement officers get training on recognizing the signs of children who may be at risk of trafficking and other forms of exploitation by expanding the Interdiction for the Protection of Children program. I've also introduced two bills, Savanna's Act and the Not Invisible Act, to address the epidemic of missing and murdered Native women, who are often victims of trafficking or domestic violence. And I'll continue to do everything in my power to combat violence against women and children.

There are those in the science/medical fields who believe women, first-generation students and minorities are under-represented in careers in science, technology, engineering and math (STEM). What can be done to ensure that more young people make careers in STEM?

We know there's a dearth of women and people of color in the STEM fields. Statistics show that Latinos and African Americans only make up 14 percent of the tech workforce, and women make up just 22 percent. This lack of diversity often means minority perspectives and experiences aren't taken into account in developing new technologies, and as a result, some of these technologies don't adequately serve minority consumers. This is a problem for tech users but also for companies' bottom lines. We need to create opportunities for young girls and children of color to pursue a STEM education. We have to understand that these talented kids are an untapped resource for America's 21st century economy. That's why I helped introduce bipartisan legislation that would create grants to encourage our young girls in particular to pursue careers in computer science and have supported legislation that would ensure federal STEM efforts reach minorities, women, veterans, and other underserved populations.

SUCCESS TEAM INTERVIEW QUESTIONS 2019.docx

Dear Mayor Goodman (Future Success Team Partner!),

PlannedActsOfKindness.Org is a global outreach program where people wake up and on their cell phone, computer or device there is a new daily planned act of kindness that they can do with their family, friends, co-workers and in their community.

As you are one of the most inspirational people dedicated to helping others, we are pleased to invite you to become a founding member of Planned Acts Of Kindnesses Success Team.

The goal is to have tens of millions of people around the country and hundreds of millions of people around the world, waking up and doing the same thing on the same day, and unleashing that much powerful, positive energy in the world.

If we want lead happier, healthier and longer life, it's not about earning more and more money, how much we exercise, or the supplements or drugs we take.

Study after study now shows that we must have strong relationships and a strong connection with the community.

Being on our Success Team provides you with a stellar opportunity to shape, support and motivate people of all ages on the important subjects on which you have devoted your life.

As a member of our Success Team, you'd be in very good company as both Jack Canfield and Mark Victor Hansen, co-authors of the "Chicken Soup for the Soul" books, have endorsed our programs.

The Karma Club

Planned Acts of Kindness provides us with the opportunity to achieve this through The Karma Club. Every month there are different activities Karma Club members do: Daily PAKS, invite others to Join the KC, Volunteer with our organization to help others. And when people do these activities, they can level up. Then every day we give gifts to random members at that level.

So, as a member of The Karma Club, “The More You Do, The Greater Your Rewards.” And when you do this, you’ll start to reap the benefits of Karma Consistency.

The World Is In Crisis

But there’s another extremely important benefit of being a member of the Karma Club: The problems of the world — climate change, pollution, overpopulation, pandemics, terrorism, and war — are not going to be solved by governments or corporations, but by ordinary people working together on common causes with a common focus.

The tipping points are not going to be 20 to 30 years in the future, they are now. And, if we don’t get these problems under control the world will be a very different place for billions of people, and not in a positive way.

But to make the impact we need to have this type of sea-change in society, we need your support.

Social Responsibility: Us, You and The Planet!

The main purpose of our Success Teams is to provide management advice, outreach and action relating to “Planned Acts Of Kindness” activities.

Your Success Is Our Business

As a member of our Success Team:

- you have the opportunity to network and build relationships with other Movers and Shakers as we work together for the Betterment of Kids, People and the Planet
- your name, picture, biography, and social media information is featured on our Planned Acts Of Kindness website
- you can become a Founding Signer of the Karma Constitution
- you receive gifts that show our appreciation of your contributions

Office of the Press Secretary

FACT SHEET: New Executive Actions to Reduce Gun Violence and Make Our Communities Safer

Gun violence has taken a heartbreaking toll on too many communities across the country. Over the past decade in America, more than 100,000 people have been killed as a result of gun violence—and millions more have been the victim of assaults, robberies, and other crimes involving a gun. Many of these crimes were committed by people who never should have been able to purchase a gun in the first place. Over the same period, hundreds of thousands of other people in our communities committed suicide with a gun and nearly half a million people suffered other gun injuries. Hundreds of law enforcement officers have been shot to death protecting their communities. And too many children are killed or injured by firearms every year, often by accident. The vast majority of Americans—including the vast majority of gun owners—believe we must take sensible steps to address these horrible tragedies.

The President and Vice President are committed to using every tool at the Administration's disposal to reduce gun violence. Some of the gaps in our country's gun laws can only be fixed through legislation, which is why the President continues to call on Congress to pass the kind of commonsense gun safety reforms supported by a majority of the American people. And while Congress has repeatedly failed to take action and pass laws that would expand background checks and reduce gun violence, today, building on the significant steps that have already been taken over the past several years, the Administration is announcing a series of commonsense executive actions designed to:

1. Keep guns out of the wrong hands through background checks.

   • The Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives (ATF) is making clear that it doesn't matter where you conduct your business—from a store, at gun shows, or over the Internet: If you're in the business of selling firearms, you must get a license and conduct background checks.
   • ATF is finalizing a rule to require background checks for people trying to buy some of the most dangerous weapons and other items through a trust, corporation, or other legal entity.
   • Attorney General Loretta E. Lynch has sent a letter to States highlighting the importance of receiving complete criminal history records and criminal dispositions, information on persons disqualified because of a mental illness, and qualifying crimes of domestic violence.
   • The Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) is overhauling the background check system to make it more effective and efficient. The envisioned improvements include processing background checks 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, and improving notification of local authorities when certain prohibited persons unlawfully attempt to buy a gun. The FBI will hire more than 230 additional examiners and other staff to help process these background checks.

2. Make our communities safer from gun violence.

   • The Attorney General convened a call with U.S. Attorneys around the country to direct federal prosecutors to continue to focus on smart and effective enforcement of our gun laws.
   • The President's FY2017 budget will include funding for 200 new ATF agents and investigators to help enforce our gun laws.
   • ATF has established an Internet Investigation Center to track illegal online firearms trafficking and is dedicating $4 million and additional personnel to enhance the National Integrated Ballistics Information Network.
   • ATF is finalizing a rule to ensure that dealers who ship firearms notify law enforcement if their guns are lost or stolen in transit.
   • The Attorney General issued a memo encouraging every U.S. Attorney's Office to renew domestic violence outreach efforts.

3. Increase mental health treatment and reporting to the background check system.

   • The Administration is proposing a new $500 million investment to increase access to mental health care.
   • The Social Security Administration has indicated that it will begin the rulemaking process to include information in the background check system about beneficiaries who are prohibited from possessing a firearm for mental health reasons.
   • The Department of Health and Human Services is finalizing a rule to remove unnecessary legal barriers preventing States from reporting relevant information about people prohibited from possessing a gun for specific mental health reasons.

4. Shape the future of gun safety technology.

   • The President has directed the Departments of Defense, Justice, and Homeland Security to conduct or sponsor research into gun safety technology.

- The President has also directed the departments to review the availability of smart gun technology on a regular basis, and to explore potential ways to further its use and development to more broadly improve gun safety.

Congress should support the President's request for resources for 200 new ATF agents and investigators to help enforce our gun laws, as well as a new $500 million investment to address mental health issues.

Because we all must do our part to keep our communities safe, the Administration is also calling on States and local governments to do all they can to keep guns out of the wrong hands and reduce gun violence. It is also calling on private-sector leaders to follow the lead of other businesses that have taken voluntary steps to make it harder for dangerous individuals to get their hands on a gun. In the coming weeks, the Administration will engage with manufacturers, retailers, and other private-sector leaders to explore what more they can do.

New Actions by the Federal Government

Keeping Guns Out of the Wrong Hands Through Background Checks

The most important thing we can do to prevent gun violence is to make sure those who would commit violent acts cannot get a firearm in the first place. The National Instant Criminal Background Check System (NICS), which was created by Congress to prevent guns from being sold to prohibited individuals, is a critical tool in achieving that goal. According to the Bureau of Justice Statistics, the background check system has prevented more than 2 million guns from getting into the wrong hands. We know that making the system more efficient, and ensuring that it has all appropriate records about prohibited purchasers, will help enhance public safety. Today, the Administration is announcing the following executive actions to ensure that all gun dealers are licensed and run background checks, and to strengthen the background check system itself:

Clarify that it doesn't matter where you conduct your business—from a store, at gun shows, or over the Internet: If you're in the business of selling firearms, you must get a license and conduct background checks. Background checks have been shown to keep guns out of the wrong hands, but too many gun sales—particularly online and at gun shows—occur without basic background checks. Today, the Administration took action to ensure that anyone who is "engaged in the business" of selling firearms is licensed and conducts background checks on their customers. Consistent with court rulings on this issue, the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives (ATF) has clarified the following principles.

- A person can be engaged in the business of dealing in firearms regardless of the location in which firearm transactions are conducted. For example, a person can be engaged in the business of dealing in firearms even if the person only conducts firearm transactions at gun shows or through the Internet. Those engaged in the business of dealing in firearms who utilize the Internet or other technologies must obtain a license, just as a dealer whose business is run out of a traditional brick-and-mortar store.

- Quantity and frequency of sales are relevant indicators. There is no specific threshold number of firearms purchased or sold that triggers the licensure requirement. But it is important to note that even a few transactions, when combined with other evidence, can be sufficient to establish that a person is "engaged in the business." For example, courts have upheld convictions for dealing without a license when as few as two firearms were sold or when only one or two transactions took place, when other factors also were present.

- There are criminal penalties for failing to comply with these requirements. A person who willfully engages in the business of dealing in firearms without the required license is subject to criminal prosecution and can be sentenced up to five years in prison and fined up to $250,000. Dealers are also subject to penalties for failing to conduct background checks before completing a sale.

Require background checks for people trying to buy some of the most dangerous weapons and other items through a trust or corporation. The National Firearms Act imposes restrictions on sales of some of the most dangerous weapons, such as machine guns and sawed-off shotguns. But because of outdated regulations, individuals have been able to avoid the background check requirement by applying to acquire these firearms and other items through trusts, corporations, and other legal entities. In fact, the number of these applications has increased significantly over the years—from fewer than 900 applications in the year 2000 to more than 90,000 applications in 2014. ATF is finalizing a rule that makes clear that people will no longer be able to avoid background checks by buying NFA guns and other items through a trust or corporation.

Ensure States are providing records to the background check system, and work cooperatively with jurisdictions to improve reporting. Congress has prohibited specific categories of people from buying guns—from convicted felons to users of illegal drugs to individuals convicted of misdemeanor crimes of domestic violence. In the wake of the shootings at Virginia Tech in 2007, Congress also created incentives for States to make as many relevant records as possible accessible to NICS. Over the past three years, States have increased the number of records they make accessible by nearly 70 percent. To further encourage this reporting, the Attorney General has written a letter to States highlighting the importance of receiving complete criminal history records and criminal dispositions, information on persons disqualified for mental health reasons, and qualifying crimes of domestic violence. The Administration will begin a new dialogue with States to ensure the background check system is as robust as possible, which is a public safety imperative.

Make the background check system more efficient and effective. In 2015, NICS received more than 22.2 million background check requests, an average of more than 63,000 per day. By law, a gun dealer can complete a sale to a customer if the background check comes back clean or has taken more than three days to complete. But features of the current system, which was built in the 1990s, are outdated. The Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) will take the following steps to ensure NICS operates more efficiently and effectively to keep guns out of the wrong hands:

- FBI will hire more than 230 additional NICS examiners and other staff members to assist with processing mandatory background checks. This new hiring will begin immediately and increase the existing workforce by 50 percent. This will reduce the strain on the NICS system and improve its ability to identify dangerous people who are prohibited from buying a gun before the transfer of a firearm is completed.

- FBI has partnered with the U.S. Digital Service (USDS) to modernize NICS. Although NICS has been routinely upgraded since its launch in 1998, the FBI is committed to making the system more efficient and effective, so that as many background checks as possible are fully processed within the three-day period before a dealer can legally sell a gun even if a background check is not complete. The improvements envisioned by FBI and USDS include processing background checks 24 hours a day, 7 days a week to improve overall response time and improving notification of local authorities when certain prohibited persons unlawfully attempt to purchase a firearm.

Making Our Communities Safer from Gun Violence

In order to improve public safety, we need to do more to ensure smart and effective enforcement of our gun laws and make sure that criminals and other prohibited persons cannot get their hands on lost or stolen weapons. The Administration is therefore taking the following actions:

Ensure smart and effective enforcement of our gun laws. In a call earlier today, the Attorney General discussed the importance of today's announcements and directed the Nation's 93 U.S. Attorneys across the country to continue to focus their resources—as they have for the past several years under the Department's Smart on Crime initiative—on the most impactful cases, including those targeting violent offenders, illegal firearms traffickers, and dangerous individuals who bypass the background check system to acquire weapons illegally. During the call, the Attorney General also emphasized ongoing initiatives to assist communities in combating violent crime, including ATF's efforts to target the "worst of the worst" gun crimes. These efforts will also complement the following actions announced today:

- The President's budget for FY2017 will include funding for 200 new ATF agents and investigators who can help enforce our gun laws, including the measures announced today. Strategic and impactful enforcement will help take violent criminals off the street, deter other unlawful activity, and prevent guns from getting into the wrong hands.

- ATF is dedicating $4 million and additional personnel to enhance the National Integrated Ballistics Information Network (NIBIN). The NIBIN database includes ballistic evidence that can be used by analysts and investigators to link violent crimes across jurisdictions and to track down shooters who prey on our communities. In February 2016, ATF is standing up the National NIBIN Correlation and Training Center—which will ultimately provide NIBIN matching services at one national location, rather than requiring local police departments to do that work themselves. The Center will provide consistent and capable correlation services, making connections between ballistic crime scene evidence and crime guns locally, regionally, and nationally. These enhancements will support ATF's crime gun intelligence and enforcement efforts, particularly in communities most affected by violent crime.

- ATF has established an Internet Investigations Center (IIC) staffed with federal agents, legal counsel, and investigators to track illegal online firearms trafficking and to provide actionable intelligence to agents in the field. The IIC has already identified a number of significant traffickers operating over the Internet. This work has led to prosecutions against individuals or groups using the "dark net" to traffic guns to criminals or attempting to buy firearms illegally online.

Ensure that dealers notify law enforcement about the theft or loss of their guns. Under current law, federal firearms dealers and other licensees must report when a gun from their inventory has been lost or stolen. The regulations are ambiguous, however, about who has this responsibility when a gun is lost or stolen in transit. Many lost and stolen guns end up being used in crimes. Over the past five years, an average of 1,333 guns recovered in criminal investigations each year were traced back to a licensee that claimed it never received the gun even though it was never reported lost or stolen either. Today, ATF issued a final rule clarifying that the licensee shipping a gun is responsible for notifying law enforcement upon discovery that it was lost or stolen in transit.

Issue a memo directing every U.S. Attorney's Office to renew domestic violence outreach efforts. In the event of an emergency, victims of domestic violence should call 911 or otherwise contact state or local law enforcement officials, who have a broader range of options for responding to these crimes. To provide an additional resource for state, local, and tribal law enforcement and community groups focused on domestic violence, the Attorney General is issuing a memo directing U.S. Attorney's Offices around the country to engage in renewed efforts to coordinate with these groups to help combat domestic violence and to prevent prohibited persons from obtaining firearms.

Increase Mental Health Treatment and Reporting to the Background Check System

The Administration is committed to improving care for Americans experiencing mental health issues. In the last seven years, our country has made extraordinary progress in expanding mental health coverage for millions of Americans. This includes the Affordable Care Act's end to insurance company discrimination based on pre-existing conditions, required coverage of mental health and substance use disorder services in the individual and small group markets, and an expansion of mental health and substance use disorder parity policies, all of which are estimated to help more than 60 million Americans. About 13.5 million more Americans have gained Medicaid coverage since October 2013, significantly improving access to mental health care. And thanks to more than $100 million in funding from the Affordable Care Act, community health centers have expanded behavioral health services for nearly 900,000 people nationwide over the past two years. We must continue to remove the stigma around mental illness and its treatment—and make sure that these individuals and their families know they are not alone. While individuals with mental illness are more likely to be victims of violence than perpetrators, incidents of violence continue to highlight a crisis in America's mental health system. In addition to helping people get the treatment they need, we must make sure we keep guns out of the hands of those who are prohibited by law from having them. Today, the Administration is announcing the following steps to help achieve these goals:

Dedicate significant new resources to increase access to mental health care. Despite our recent significant gains, less than half of children and adults with diagnosable mental health problems receive the treatment they need. To address this, the Administration is proposing a new $500 million investment to help engage individuals with serious mental illness in care, improve access to care by increasing service capacity and the behavioral health workforce, and ensure that behavioral health care systems work for everyone. This effort would increase access to mental health services to protect the health of children and communities, prevent suicide, and promote mental health as a top priority.

I nclude information from the Social Security Administration in the background check system about beneficiaries who are prohibited from possessing a firearm. Current law prohibits individuals from buying a gun if, because of a mental health issue, they are either a danger to themselves or others or are unable to manage their own affairs. The Social Security Administration (SSA) has indicated that it will begin the rulemaking process to ensure that appropriate information in its records is reported to NICS. The reporting that SSA, in consultation with the Department of Justice, is expected to require will cover appropriate records of the approximately 75,000 people each year who have a documented mental health issue, receive disability benefits, and are unable to manage those benefits because of their mental impairment, or who have been found by a state or federal court to be legally incompetent. The rulemaking will also provide a mechanism for people to seek relief from the federal prohibition on possessing a firearm for reasons related to mental health.

Remove unnecessary legal barriers preventing States from reporting relevant information to the background check system. Although States generally report criminal history information to NICS, many continue to report little information about individuals who are prohibited by Federal law from possessing or receiving a gun for specific mental health reasons. Some State officials raised concerns about whether such reporting would be precluded by the Privacy Rule issued under the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996 (HIPAA). Today, the Department of Health and Human Services issued a final rule expressly permitting certain HIPAA covered entities to provide to the NICS limited demographic and other necessary information about these individuals.

Shaping the Future of Gun Safety Technology

Tens of thousands of people are injured or killed by firearms every year—in many cases by guns that were sold legally but then stolen, misused, or discharged accidentally. Developing and promoting technology that would help prevent these tragedies is an urgent priority. America has done this in many other areas—from making cars safer to improving the tablets and phones we use every day. We know that researchers and engineers are already exploring ideas for improving gun safety and the tracing of lost or stolen guns. Millions of dollars have already been invested to support research into concepts that range from fingerprint scanners to radio-frequency identification to microstamping technology.

As the single largest purchaser of firearms in the country, the Federal Government has a unique opportunity to advance this research and ensure that smart gun technology becomes a reality—and it is possible to do so in a way that makes the public safer and is consistent with the Second Amendment. Today, the President is taking action to further this work in the following way:

Issue a Presidential Memorandum directing the Department of Defense, Department of Justice, and Department of Homeland Security to take two important steps to promote smart gun technology.

- Increase research and development efforts. The Presidential Memorandum directs the departments to conduct or sponsor research into gun safety technology that would reduce the frequency of accidental discharge or unauthorized use of firearms, and improve the tracing of lost or stolen guns. Within 90 days, these agencies must prepare a report outlining a research-and-development strategy designed to expedite the real-world deployment of such technology for use in practice.

- Promote the use and acquisition of new technology. The Presidential Memorandum also directs the departments to review the availability of smart gun technology on a regular basis, and to explore potential ways to further its use and development to more broadly improve gun safety. In connection with these efforts, the departments will consult with other agencies that acquire firearms and take appropriate steps to consider whether including such technology in specifications for acquisition of firearms would be consistent with operational needs.

Veterans In Politics International joins Organizations Urge Congress to Protect Patients from Hazards of Drug Importation

Coalition Calls on Congress to Maintain Safe Access to Medicines

Washington, D.C. – The Partnership for Safe Medicines (PSM) on February 28, 2017 sent a letter signed by nearly 170 groups to all members of Congress urging them to continue protecting Americans and stand against efforts that would allow substandard and even dangerous counterfeit medicines to flow freely across U.S. borders and into the hands of the American people.

In the letter, the groups wrote:

“Whether offered broadly or for a narrow set of medications, there’s never a good time to sacrifice safety. No patient is served well by a drug from an unknown source, that has been stored under unknown conditions, and which contains unknown ingredients because it passed through unlicensed, foreign middlemen who operate beyond U.S. law. […]

“Proposals allowing importation would undermine nearly two decades of drug safety policy. Large volume importation of prescription drugs could be permitted under current law only if the Health and Human Services (HHS) Secretary was willing to certify that imported drugs ‘pose no additional risk to the public’s health and safety, and result in a significant reduction in the cost of covered products to the American consumer.

“Recent HHS Secretaries have not been willing to certify such large scale importation as of no significant risk to the public health or that any potential cost savings would outweigh the resources that would be required to ensure the safety and efficacy of any imported products.”

Importation opens the U.S. borders to counterfeit medicines from around the world and puts U.S. consumers at risk of receiving dangerous or even deadly prescription drugs. Moreover, importation is a threat to America's national security as the counterfeit drug trade bankrolls criminal and other illicit activity, including organized crime and narcotics trafficking.

"The United States' closed prescription drug market ensures that consumers receive safe, effective medicines. Allowing for the importation of medicines from other countries would undermine those protections and expose Americans to the very real dangers of counterfeit drugs," said PSM President Marv Shepherd. "We urge Congress to focus on protecting the nation's drug supply to maintain access to safe medicines for U.S. patients."

Las Vegas Municipal Court Celebrates HOPE Court Graduates

A Program Designed to Give a Second Chance to Habitual Offenders

On Wednesday, July 6, 2016, at 2:30 p.m., Judge Heidi Almase, Las Vegas Municipal Court, will celebrate the successful graduation of two participants of the Habitual Offender Prevention and Education (HOPE) Court program. The graduation ceremony and reception will be held in Courtroom 5C at the Regional Justice Center, 200 E. Lewis Avenue, Las Vegas, Nevada 89102.

HOPE Court is an alternative sentencing program designed to give a second chance to habitual offenders suffering from addiction. The program includes housing and job assistance and requires the participants to complete drug treatment and aftercare programs. Every participant is also required to stay out of trouble and abstain from drugs and alcohol use during the program.

Both of HOPE Courts two graduates have nearly one year or more of continuous recovery without the use of mood altering substances. They are all employed and have been completely self-supporting for a minimum of four months to a maximum of over one year. Both of the two HOPE Court graduates have demonstrated fitness for graduation by meeting strenuous criteria for program completion. They are to be commended for their sustained efforts.

Below is a brief summary of the technology:

--New Episodes of LAS VEGAS LAW Premiere Every Thursday Beginning May 12 at 10/9c--

(Silver Spring, Md.)— It's become a cliché that what happens in Vegas stays in Vegas, but for the Clark County District Attorney's office, there's nothing cliché about the crimes that affect their city. With more than 60,000 cases a year, including high-profile homicides, robberies, gang-related crimes and assaults on the Strip, these aren't stories pulled from a Hollywood script. They happen to real people just trying to live and let loose under the big lights of Sin City. Investigation Discovery's (ID) new series LAS VEGAS LAW offers exclusive access to District Attorney Steve Wolfson and his powerhouse team of prosecutors who work tirelessly alongside law enforcement officials to pursue justice in their community. Follow in real time as they assess the crime scene, interview victims and witnesses, strategize their case and ultimately chase a conviction in the courtroom. Shot in cinéma vérité and featuring surveillance footage and photography, the series immerses viewers in the high stakes, immensely dramatic environment that makes Vegas distinctive – and its crimes even more so. LAS VEGAS LAW premieres Thursday, May 12 at 10/9c only on ID.

"LAS VEGAS LAW combines the suspense of Law & Order with the tell-all appeal of American Crime Story: The People v. O.J. Simpson, except we're documenting current criminal cases as they unfold," said Kevin Bennett, general manager of Investigation Discovery. "LAS VEGAS LAW intimately captures all angles of the trial process from both the prosecution and the defense teams, giving viewers unprecedented access to the justice system in a way rarely seen on television."

The first three episodes of LAS VEGAS LAW are:

- LAS VEGAS LAW: "The Evil Men Do"

Series Premiere Episode: Thursday, May 12 at 10/9c

It was a horrific scene in which one man was shot to death and two others were killed in a taxi that went up in a fireball on Las Vegas's iconic Strip. Seeking the death penalty, the DA's office goes after Ammar Harris for the three murders, but will witnesses who were inside Harris's vehicle testify against him so the victims' families can get justice? Meanwhile in the Vegas suburbs, a male massage therapist is charged with sexually abusing two female clients, and a detective who initially didn't believe a crime had occurred finds himself in the middle of the explosive trial.

- LAS VEGAS LAW: "Burden of Proof"

Episode Premiere: Thursday, May 19 at 10/9c

This episode goes inside the "he said/she said" of a sexual assault case. The prosecution has physical evidence: video surveillance showing the man holding an inebriated woman upright as they walk to his room and photos of bruises all over her body. What they don't have is the woman's memory. She can't remember much. The defendant remembers everything, and makes a strong case that nothing illegal occurred in his room. Now the question becomes: who will the jury believe?

- LAS VEGAS LAW: "Out of Control"

Episode Premiere: Thursday, May 26 at 10/9c

It's a case Chief Deputy Richard Scow says "will stick with him forever." The defendant is charged with kidnapping and battery of his friend. Meanwhile across town, the second case goes to trial and, in a twist, two Deputy District Attorneys must convince the jury that a man who stole a case of beer deserves justice, since he was shot by the store clerk. Was the clerk a man protecting his store or a vigilante ready to impose his own "death penalty"?

LAS VEGAS LAW is produced for Investigation Discovery by MY Entertainment. For MY Entertainment, Michael Yudin, Joe Townley, Wil Surratt and Wayne Allyn Root are executive producers, with Greg Klein and Jon Grosskopf as co-executive producers. Antitrust Chief Defends Sticking To Consumer Welfare Focus

Shortly before a D.C. federal judge cleared AT&T's $85 billion merger with Time Warner, the U.S. Department of Justice's top antitrust official on Tuesday said in Washington, D.C., that consumer welfare will continue to be the cornerstone of DOJ antitrust enforcement, rejecting calls to expand the Antitrust Division's goals to include concerns over democratic market structures or other social benefits. Facebook Data Pacts Could Spur GDPR-Like Protections

The recent revelation that Facebook has allowed device makers including Apple, Samsung and Huawei broad access to user data raises fresh questions about the legal and ethical constraints on companies' data usage practices and could prompt a reckoning that would pull the U.S. closer to the tighter controls of the general data protection regulation currently in place in the European Union, attorneys say. Subject: Juvenile Justice Reform, Explaining 2016 Elections, Rules of Direct Mail and More

Juvenile Justice Reform Act: This model bill combines three urgent reforms. First, it restricts the use of pretrial confinement to young offenders who actually pose a danger to society or where this is a realistic chance they may flee from justice. Second, it allows judges to transfer defendants from juvenile to adult courts only upon consideration of specific, limited criteria. Third, it protects accused children by ensuring that they do not waive their constitutional right to counsel.

Group identification, rather than policy, explains the 2016 elections: Was Trump successful because voters support his "policies"? No, was a function of group identification. Americans are usually not searching for a candidate who agrees with their issue positions, they're looking for someone who represents their group. Read about it on IdeaLog, our blog intended to raise eyebrows and engage minds.

Top ten rules of direct mail: Wednesday, June 29 @3pm Eastern, 2pm Central, 1pm Mountain, Noon Pacific. For most electoral and policy campaigns, direct mail is the most effective way to broadcast themes and educate voters. This webinar will explain how to improve the mechanics, message and design of your direct mail. Register here.

State programs to rein in prescription drug costs: The National Academy for State Health Policy published a new policy brief describing what states have been doing over the past several years to control the rising cost of prescription drugs.

Are your high-stakes K-12 standardized tests comparing apples and oranges? It was very recently disclosed that different District of Columbia middle and high schools are taking entirely different versions of the Common Core math test with the school system averaging the scores together, something completely unknown to the public. Maybe you should check your school system.

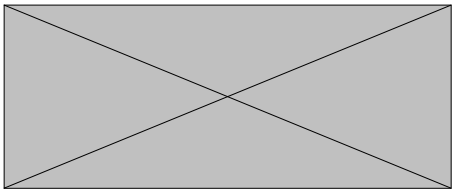
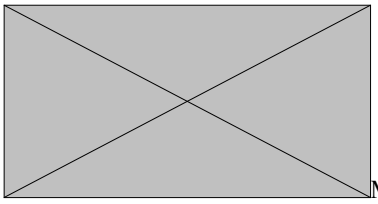
Subject: [Newsletter] [Marketing Mail] Justice Update: Merrick Garland's Record, Status of Sentencing Reform



A Closer Look at Merrick Garland and Criminal Justice



Merrick Garland's criminal justice record has come under the microscope since his nomination to the U.S. Supreme Court last week.

A New York Times report found Garland sided with law enforcement in 10 out of 14 criminal cases where he "voted differently from at least one fellow judge." Other outlets, from USA Today to Vox to The Daily Beast, have portrayed him in a similar way.

But a closer look at his record by Ames Grawert in Reuters finds that Garland, a former prosecutor, "has shown a healthy skepticism of prosecutors and a savvy understanding of how criminal trials actually work." For instance, Garland wrote the unanimous 2008 District of Columbia Circuit Court opinion in Parhat v. Gates that ruled a military tribunal did not have sufficient evidence to declare Huzaifa Parhat an enemy combatant.

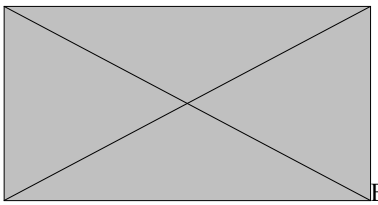
"This decision suggests that Garland as a judge understands the care with which government attorneys must wield their considerable power," Grawert wrote. "His record indicates a willingness to draw on practical experiences when deciding issues related to fair-trial rights and the balance of power between the prosecution and the defense."

Meanwhile, on sentencing reform, Speaker Paul Ryan said today that he's planning to bring the House bill to the floor for a full vote. But in the Senate, there are rumors that senators may stall the bipartisan Sentencing Reform and Corrections Act of 2015 as a reaction to the expected partisan battle over Garland's nomination. The bill would reduce mandatory minimum sentences for some low-level drug crimes, and give judges more discretion in sentencing low-level offenders.

Writing in U.S. News & World Report, Inimai Chettiar noted that it's "a false choice to pit sentencing reform against a Supreme Court battle" and "accord on one shouldn't be overridden by combat on the other."

In an op-ed for The Hill, Chettiar and Lauren-Brooke Eisen underscored the strong role the federal government can play in ending mass incarceration.

Data Shows There's No National Crime Wave



Experts debunked claims of a new national crime wave in an op-ed in InsideSources. Ames Grawert and James Cullen said those warning of a new crime surge are "simply wrong," citing a Brennan Center analysis of 2015 crime data.

"Crime has been declining for 25 years, and 2015 gave no reason to believe the trend is over," they wrote. "There is no crime wave building just over the horizon."

The Atlantic's CityLab also cited Brennan Center data in an article on a Johns Hopkins University study that found a "very weak" link between Baltimore's higher homicide rates and the so-called "Ferguson Effect," which claims that officers are reluctant to make arrests because of intense scrutiny following recent shootings.

Justice Department Mounts New Initiative on Fees and Fines

The Justice Department last week sent state chief justices and state court administrators a letter encouraging them "to reform harmful and unlawful practices" involving defendant fees and fines. The Brennan Center's library of work was cited extensively.

"These charges are often levied against people who can least afford to pay them," said Lauren-Brooke Eisen, author of Charging Inmates Perpetuates Mass Incarceration. "The subsequent punishment for unpaid debts helps spin the revolving door of the criminal justice system. It's one example of a financial incentive that fuels mass incarceration."

Research Roundup

- The United States Sentencing Commission released a comprehensive report on recidivism rates for federal prisoners. In the eight years after their release in 2005, 49 percent of offenders were re-arrested for a new crime or a violation of their supervision conditions. Re-arrest rates for those with little criminal history was about 30 percent, and climbed to 80 percent for those with longer criminal backgrounds.

- A February issue brief by the Pew Charitable Trusts examined crime rates in the 23 states that raised their felony theft threshold (i.e., the value of stolen goods or money that would qualify as a felony) between 2001 and 2011. The study found that increasing the threshold did not cause an increase in larceny rates or overall property crime.

- Researchers from the University of California, Irvine, the RAND Corporation, and the Association of State Correctional Administrators published results of a 50-state survey of corrections officials in 2011 to understand prison downsizing. While 148 correctional facilities closed between 2007 and 2012, 29 new facilities were opened. Overall, however, there was a net reduction of 23,000 beds.

EXPERT ANALYSIS

A 'FAIR' Chance For Infrastructure P3s In Obama Budget

The Obama administration's fiscal year 2017 budget includes an innovative infrastructure finance proposal, known as the Financing America's Infrastructure Renewal program, that may gain traction in the 114th Congress, even if the clock runs out on the Obama administration. Cost-effective infrastructure investment is a policy idea that will always be able to find a constituency in Congress, say attorneys at K&L Gates LLP.

The Yates Memo: 6 Months Later

It has been six months since U.S. Deputy Attorney General Sally Yates announced the now well-known "Yates memo," which, at least initially, suggested a policy shift by the U.S. Department of Justice on the investigation and prosecution of individuals for corporate wrongdoing. Tracing the developments since the Yates memo's inception, it is clear that the policy has already had practical implications, say attorneys with Paul Hastings LLP.

The Regulatory Impact Of President Obama's Final Year

Whether or not one agrees with this president's policies, it has been impressive how he has marshaled his resources to get things done. Now, as we enter the last year of an eight-year presidency, there is a lot of unfinished business and an appetite in the executive branch to "make hay while the sun shines." And there will be little to stand in the administration's way, say attorneys with Crowell & Moring LLP.

Subject: Air BNB

I need to write this to someone.
I was asked to check out of my Air BNB by AirBNB after telling them the host was doing drugs. We never argued and I didn't care if he was doing them but didn't want to inhale anything starting a new job as a doctor.

They put me in a hotel until Friday, May 27th, but I was booked until May 30th.

Then they blocked me from getting another AirBNB and I have to work on Wednesday and Thursday then check out Friday, Ill be homeless unless I spend everything I have on a hotel room for Memorial Day weekend.

They are now keeping me on hold and won't tell me why I am blocked from getting another Air BNB.

I have no idea what to do I don't want to get angry or stressed out the day before I start a job. Police officers have been making comments to me, the hotel is right next to a police station. I am being told I am being made homeless and I just don't know what to do. I am going at 1pm today to find out if I got covered for malpractice and might have got denied and they are telling me to kill myself too.

Then they tell me I have no idea whats going on. I have been visited by counterterrorism detectives and harassed so that I can't go to the bathroom. It has happened for years and there is no way to confront it. I can't do anything and they put me in impossible situations where I am offered jobs and have to pay everything I have saved on disability then end up homeless.

The hotel employees are also hassling me, then say that Im crazy if I try to ask for help. I have proven that and won 3 HUD lawsuits, but I have been made homeless over 10 times and they say it is part of the plan. I end up on the street and then they attack me physically and search all of my things that happen to be with me.

I am so tired of this shit. There are people obviously trying to get me violent and I can't get help.

Hired by

1. US Military contractor Chenega- then didn't get to start job
2. Federal IHS contractor hired me, drug tested me, then refuse dot let me
3. The State of New York then hires me and dumps me without letting me start

There are maids outside my room talking shit to me and people are telling me to kill myself at the gym and when I walk down the street people try to slam into me.

Then I hear a loud ringing in my ear.

Im sorry but I am not psychotic. I am being put in a situation that is life threatening and none of my family will even talk with me or people from high school. How can I be treated like a terrorist with no privacy for so many years and no protection. lawyers refuse to help me.

Will someone please call me,
Cornelius

It is now 3:23am on Saturday, July 2nd. I have been hearing fireworks all night. I've been on hold with the police department for a half hour waiting to report them. I have a huge appetite for banning fireworks and I imagine all those other people calling in do as well. Needless to say, I've had very little sleep again and off to work I go in a few hours. And it's taking every ounce of self control I have to not run outside and scream profanities to the top of my lungs. Leaving town on Sunday might be way too late. I should have left a week ago. Finally after 30 minutes I get through to the police department to report the fireworks. My dog is panting and shaking. I am exhausted.

All that I have discovered is that to date there has not been an appetite for banning fireworks (though most forms of them have been banned and are illegal). At this moment the fierce electrical storm in the area is even worse and of course not controllable at all…ban or laws! It is sending my pets into total panic mode seeking miniscule hiding places, digging into corners and trying to squeeze into the tiny spaces wherever they can find them.

> Your description of your own neighborhood over the years just confirms my own belief that the only solution is to implement a ban on fireworks in city neighborhoods. It has been done in many other cities as I have discovered via the Internet. I can only assume that you or our city and state representatives would know how to go about putting a ban in place. I only know how to teach and play the cello.

There was a string of bans in the '90s when Seattle, Bellevue, Everett and Redmond were among many to nix the tradition. In 2005, cities such as Des Moines and Renton approved their own bans. Bellingham put a ban into place in 2014. One-by-one over the past couple decades, Puget Sound area communities have voted to rid their towns of the explosives.*

> I can see no other solution, Mayor Goodman. I realize nothing can be done this 4th of July, but surely by July 4th, 2017 isn't it possible we could do what some of the Washington communities are doing? Isn't the fact that we are a drought stricken state enough reason to implement a ban? Although I believe the simple fact they disturb the peace and frighten to death our pets is sufficient reason to consider the ban.

Thank you again for your email.

They have come either from our neighborhood, adjacent neighborhoods and even set off by traveling vehicles. All except the fewest ARE illegal and try though we have to get them stopped, one at a time or groups of them, new people replace previous occupants, and kids forever joyride through the streets nearby or in hearing range. I finally called the non emergency police number around 9:00 pm to report the fireworks. The dispatcher informed me that they had already received a call about the area I mentioned and a patrol car had been sent out. She also told me that they hate this time of the year for this very reason. She even thanked me for my efforts to try and get this nonsense stopped. I had to give my little dog drugs last night and because of his trembling and barking, I got very little sleep. Today I have to teach private music lessons. I don't have the luxury of sleeping all day like those who were shooting off the fireworks do, no doubt.

This will continue throughout the week because I am quite sure Las Vegas doesn't have the necessary police officers to patrol these neighborhoods for idiots who can't curb their enthusiasm for using these illegal fireworks in our city neighborhoods. A ban should be implemented on ALL fireworks in neighborhoods. But because you say you cannot do that, your police force will be answering calls all week from residents who, like me, just want to live in peace. We are the ones who work and pay taxes.

Issue 148 – June 5, 2018

I am immensely proud of our charter class. This week they wrapped up their first year of medical school and did extremely well the entire way— scoring above the national average on 9 out of 12 national board exams. Keep in mind that these exams are typically taken in year two! The positive results are further evidence that the UNLV School of Medicine is on the right track with our instruction and the unique design of our curriculum. Of course, many of our students are excelling in the classroom while juggling very busy lives. One of our students has three young children at home. But that's only part of Faun Botor's remarkable story. Her ability to achieve happiness and succeed at life when many others might have given up is something to behold. I hope you'll enjoy reading about Faun, the challenges she has faced, and why we're so proud she is part of the UNLV School of Medicine.

FAUN BOTOR: AN INDOMITABLE WILL

At the age of seven, she was homeless, living in a car with her mother and younger brother. When she was 14, her mother died of alcohol abuse. Her father, who was in and out of her life, died of a cocaine overdose. The first of her three children was diagnosed with autism.

At age 30, Faun Botor became a member of the charter class of the UNLV School of Medicine.

Talk about the resiliency of the human spirit.

You see her entering University Medical Center — UMC is the medical school's main training hospital — and she's smiling, asking you about your day. Her jam-packed day, one that starts with getting her little ones ready for an autism clinic or daycare, is going wonderfully, she says.

So it goes when you're living your dream.

"When I was in eighth grade, my mother (she worked either as a casino dealer or housekeeper) was in and out of the hospital due to liver and renal failure. As weird as it sounds, when I was there, I felt at home. I loved being around the nurses and physicians... the smell of a hospital. That was when I knew I wanted to become a doctor," she says. "Over the years though, that dream went on the backburner as I explored other career paths, got married and started a family. I eventually became a sonographer and worked in OB/GYN and perinatology (high risk obstetrics) for a few years before my passion for medicine became reignited at the age of 26. I went back to school to finish my prerequisites (at Nevada State College) while working and continuing to grow my family. I finally applied and got accepted to UNLV School of Medicine at 29-years-old and now at 31 I am finishing my first year."

What reignited her dream of becoming a doctor five years ago was her year-and-a-half old son's need for surgery to correct a congenital hernia.

"Dr. (Clare) Close was his physician, and before he went back to the OR I was so anxious, scared, and all the other emotions a first-time mom feels when their child is about to go into surgery. She came to my husband and I and explained everything in such a calm and competent way that all our fears were alleviated. At that moment I realized that I wanted to have that kind of influence with patients and parents. I knew then that I wanted to pursue medical school."

Born in Maryland, Botor's memories of her time in Florida — she lived there from second through fifth grade — are delivered matter of factly, yet describe chaos. Moving from apartment to apartment and sometimes living in a car with food scarce, she remembers that her mother drank heavily. "She was a very happy drunk, even though we were pretty poor. I had to take on a lot of responsibility, taking care of my younger brother, cleaning, cooking and paying bills."

She says that experience and what followed when her family moved to Nevada — she continued to manage the household when her mother worked at a casino — taught her "what responsibility was. It showed me I didn't want to go down that route."

Her schoolwork didn't suffer. "It was my escape. I wanted to do well. I always found time to study."

After Botor's mother died while she was in middle school, her aunt and uncle raised her and her brother, giving them more of a chance to succeed. Her brother is now getting a master's degree at the University of Nevada. "We went from being poor to strictly middle class. There was a lot more structure, a lot of rules….Neither of my parents had a college degree, but my aunt went back to college and became a school teacher later in life, which showed me that it's never too late to follow your dream."

Her aunt and uncle helped her get into Clark High School's math and technology program. Working after school at Dairy Queen and as a flag football referee, she was an all "A" student, graduating as valedictorian. She then entered the University of Nevada at Reno on scholarship. There, she tutored students, worked as a lifeguard and taught swim classes for spending money.

After two years in college, she decided she wanted to see Europe. She taught English to survive. She also met her future husband, Daniel Botor, a native of Poland.

"He was from a small coal mining town — coal dust was everywhere. But it was really nice to a have a really close family."

At the age of 24, she learned her father had died of a drug overdose. "I knew he was addicted to gambling but I had no idea he was into drugs until later. I learned he had been arrested for drug related charges... Sometimes when we saw him he was super nice to me and my brother. I think it was a guilt thing and he'd buy us something nice."

After marriage, Botor started college again, this time at UNLV. In 2011, she earned a degree in comprehensive medical imaging, with a 3.8 grade point average. "I just wanted to get a degree so we could start a family."

A couple years later her dream of becoming a doctor resurfaced. "My first day at Nevada State I was on the verge of tears. I kept wondering if it was the right thing to do. My husband and I discussed it a lot. I just had a child. It was while I was at Nevada State that our son was diagnosed with autism. His teacher had been worried that he had a hearing problem... getting that diagnosis was not an easy day. He is verbal... his behaviors are pretty good, he's not too disruptive. He's making progress but we're pretty sure he won't be able to live independently."

Now with their three children — Alexander, 6, Matthew, 2, and Lillian, 1 — the Botors have to carefully coordinate their schedules. "My husband is a cage supervisor at a casino and we're lucky he works the graveyard shift. Sometimes he takes the kids to the clinic or daycare and sometimes I do. It's not easy, but it's working."

She studies largely when the children are sleeping. She thinks often of Gary and Debra Ackerman, who provided her with a full scholarship to medical school. "They are amazing people with big hearts. I get to see them quite often."

Following medical school, Botor says she'll probably do a residency in either pediatrics or OB/GYN. "I'll be 37 or 38 when I'm done but that still gives me around 25 years of helping people as a doctor."

She'll also be sharing her life experience with young people.

"I try to stick around kids as much as possible. I want them to know that there may be hardships in life but you can find a way to a better future."

INVESTIGATION DISCOVERY'S ALL-NEW SERIES "LAS VEGAS LAW" GRANTS VIEWERS UNPRECEDENTED ACCESS TO THE PROSECUTORS THAT PROTECT SIN CITY

--New Episodes of LAS VEGAS LAW Premiere Every Thursday Beginning May 12 at 10/9c--

(Silver Spring, Md.)— It's become a cliché that what happens in Vegas stays in Vegas, but for the Clark County District Attorney's office, there's nothing cliché about the crimes that affect their city. With more than 60,000 cases a year, including high-profile homicides, robberies, gang-related crimes and assaults on the Strip, these aren't stories pulled from a Hollywood script. They happen to real people just trying to live and let loose under the big lights of Sin City. Investigation Discovery's (ID) new series LAS VEGAS LAW offers exclusive access to District Attorney Steve Wolfson and his powerhouse team of prosecutors who work tirelessly alongside law enforcement officials to pursue justice in their community. Follow in real time as they assess the crime scene, interview victims and witnesses, strategize their case and ultimately chase a conviction in the courtroom. Shot in cinéma vérité and featuring surveillance footage and photography, the series immerses viewers in the high stakes, immensely dramatic environment that makes Vegas distinctive – and its crimes even more so. LAS VEGAS LAW premieres Thursday, May 12 at 10/9c only on ID.

"LAS VEGAS LAW combines the suspense of Law & Order with the tell-all appeal of American Crime Story: The People v. O.J. Simpson, except we're documenting current criminal cases as they unfold," said Kevin Bennett, general manager of Investigation Discovery. "LAS VEGAS LAW intimately captures all angles of the trial process from both the prosecution and the defense teams, giving viewers unprecedented access to the justice system in a way rarely seen on television."

The first three episodes of LAS VEGAS LAW are:

- LAS VEGAS LAW: "The Evil Men Do"

Series Premiere Episode: Thursday, May 12 at 10/9c

It was a horrific scene in which one man was shot to death and two others were killed in a taxi that went up in a fireball on Las Vegas's iconic Strip. Seeking the death penalty, the DA's office goes after Ammar Harris for the three murders, but will witnesses who were inside Harris's vehicle testify against him so the victims' families can get justice? Meanwhile in the Vegas suburbs, a male massage therapist is charged with sexually abusing two female clients, and a detective who initially didn't believe a crime had occurred finds himself in the middle of the explosive trial.

- LAS VEGAS LAW: "Burden of Proof"

Episode Premiere: Thursday, May 19 at 10/9c

This episode goes inside the "he said/she said" of a sexual assault case. The prosecution has physical evidence: video surveillance showing the man holding an inebriated woman upright as they walk to his room and photos of bruises all over her body. What they don't have is the woman's memory. She can't remember much. The defendant remembers everything, and makes a strong case that nothing illegal occurred in his room. Now the question becomes: who will the jury believe?

- LAS VEGAS LAW: "Out of Control"

Episode Premiere: Thursday, May 26 at 10/9c

It's a case Chief Deputy Richard Scow says "will stick with him forever." The defendant is charged with kidnapping and battery of his friend. Meanwhile across town, the second case goes to trial and, in a twist, two Deputy District Attorneys must convince the jury that a man who stole a case of beer deserves justice, since he was shot by the store clerk. Was the clerk a man protecting his store or a vigilante ready to impose his own "death penalty"?

LAS VEGAS LAW is produced for Investigation Discovery by MY Entertainment. Subject: the serious break down of the family court system and judicial system in general

To whom this may concern, to whom ultimately ends up reading this email,

This is a last ditch effort to get somebody, anybody to open their eyes to what has become of the family court system, in the county of clark for this particular reference but not limited to. And the same for the law enforcement and judicial system for the officers on the street to detectives (the detectives i have the unpleasure of dealing with recently have actually been a bit of a helping hand with advise and good sense of their own to see thru false police reports but not all of them) to the attorneys that the wealthy hire to the judges that ultimately decide our fate in the end (and anymore whether or not you are inocent or guilty does not play the neccessary role in deciding your fate.

Here is my story, and im not looking for anybodies pity, im simply looking to raise an eyebrow or to and hopefully get everybody or at least a few of the agencies to do their own emmiediate investigation and if deemed neccessary then please, I beg of you to intervien in my particular case / cases before this goes any farther and anymore irreversable damage is aloud to take place.

On january 17th in the evening an argument between wife (Ashley Deiana) maiden name (McClelland) and myself (Peter Deiana) started at around 7:pm as was unfortunately becoming a regular as our marriage was suffering from to much outside interference and influence from my inlaws and my wifes brother. The argument esculated quickly and I felt the need to remove myself from the esculating argument not to mention our kids were present and observing the argument. I retreated to the garage attached to the house as that was my space; were I calm easy and am comfortable in that space because it was my work area/workshop mechanically speaking. Emeidiatly I was followed out to the garage by my under the influence of prescription pills and alchohol and ever worsening; very combative wife. She emeidiatly started to continue the argument and taunting my to become aggressive with her, much like the character of a school yard bully starting a fight. I reacted by very loudly; with the hope somebody would hear and could possibly be some sort of a witness to what was happening; because I had a bad feeling of what was going to happen as her actions where speaking for her; I demanded she leave me alone and leave the garage so that the incident wouldnt exculate and we both could calm in seperate areas. She did not comply what so ever with these demands but instead started to belittle me with words I would rather not repeat in this initial email fearing It might insult or deture a reader of this cry for help. During her egging on of me, and desperately trying to get me to confront her in a combattive state and her flaring around of her body and arms; unaware that our little 1 year old at the time boy was standing very close to her watching the entire epasode unfold; she knocked our son down to the ground rather violently. After witnessing this happen I emeidiatly started in his direction. As I got cloe enough I started in to retrieve him from the floor and remove him from the situation. At that very moment my wife took advantage of my non defensive state and lunged at me and with a closed fist punched me roughly 7 times in my face. In complete shock from what just accured I retreated to the far side of the gargae and demanded she leave the garage once again. She continued to ignore my demands and my son laying on the ground next to her. After repeatedly yelling very loud demands for her to vacate the garage she continued to egg me on to become combative against her. I stayed retreated and did not even defend myself against her assualt. Finaly I picked up my cell phone and called my brothe and sister in law to come help defuse the situation as they already knew of the escalating problems in our marriage and had just recently been trying to get me to leave her and file for divorce (which at the time I did not want to do because I did not want to put our 2 little children thru that). My wife thought I was calling the police and picked up our son and retreated into the house to very soon return a different person entirely. She seriously looked like she had torn her clothing, splashed some water in her face possibly slapped herself a couple of times because her face was all red and proseeded in front of me to call MY BROTHER. As soon as he answered the phone she looked right at me and instantly became histerical pretending to be out of breath and crying begging him for help because she had nobody else to call and she went back into the house (an act as to give the allusion that I was combative). Note: I did not call the police and either did she (why she did not I would assume because she knew she was in the wrong and the aggressor. I did not call the police because I did not want to put my family thru all of that and the fact that she works for the school district and would lose her job. looking back now after the trouble she has caused I should have called the police and if done over I curtainly would call the police.My Brother and his wife saw threw her false persona and act of being a victim of me being the aggressor. ultimately my wife confided in my brother after calming down after becoming combative towards my sister in law as well, in that she did follow me out to the garage with the intent to escalade the argument to a combative state as she always does because she injoys pushing my buttons and watching it upset me!.ultimetly my brother convinced me to move out and away from the situation that showed possibilities of happening again and again. With my brother insisting on this and my wifes repeated requests for me to leave our home and move out, I did just that under the help and supervision of my brother and his wife 2 days later without incedent.

Now this is where needing help comes into play.

Emiediatly after I moved out my wife started turning the incedent in the garage completely around spreading rumor that I started everything and I hunted her down and continued the argument and ended in me striking her! Then 2 days later without warning she awoke in the morning to her surprise, me moving out. But yet I have a witness that overheard my wife on the phone very happy and bragging to her mother that i was moving out, like she was instructed to do whatever and to get me to move out. with being successful she was actually giddy about it on the phone with her mother like she was anxcious to hear her mothers approval.
The day I moved out, January 19th,2015 was the last time I saw either of my children. My wife emeidieatly entered into an act of child abduction and alienation of me thru the children. She was all over town concealing the childrens location and their wellbeing from me and even left the state with the children more than a few times. Her mother and father and brother live in New Mexico. Being outraged by these actions as would any loving father I begged her to stop this behavior and bring the children back, bring them to me or even bring them to a police station and confess what she was doing. She openly admitted what she was doing and that she was being spitefull because I had actually left our home and moved out of the situation at hand, as instructed to do by her numerious times over and over again. Being frustrated at her non compliance to me requests and my attempts at educating her on what she was doing was hurting the kids and could lead to irreversable damage mentally and she was also violating my rights as well I started threatening her with every legal course of action I could think was even relavant to the senioro. Nothing worked. She went out of her way to make it look like our house was abandond and nobody was living there anymore and her and the kids were nowhere to be found. I called the police numeruois times explaining the situation and requesting a well check up be performed. No contact was even made. I contacted C.P.S. and voiced my concern about having no contact with my children, her refusal to let me have contact with the children and the fact that she drinks heavily and abuses prescription pain pilss very regularly, and ultimately she was able to talk her way thru that.Taunting me continuassly my wife even instructed me a few times to come over to the house and pick up the kids from her. I made the visit to the house as instructed to do to find nobody there all 3 times. This now became a sick game to her. constantly harrasseing me, teasing me and egging me on pushing my buttons and using our children as pawns. This quickly escaladed to her refusal to involdge birthday party plans for either of our children and refusing to accept or meet or for me to even hand off the presents that I had purchased. Not fair for the children not fair to me. Now knowing she has done one wrong after another and that she could be in serious trouble for her actions and emeidietly after i had made her aware that I had come accross proof that her mother and brother andherself had been planning pretty much what had happened and also would lead into her leaving the state for good with the children, most of our belongings and already had the house layout that she already had planned to move into all laid out on paper in her own handwriting, she proceeded under false pretensions to get a temporary restraining order against me wife a bombardment of lies including her brother saying that i made a phone call to him stating that i was going to kill the entire family including my kids. Also had the baby sitter tell me and tell the police that she had told my wife that I had been threatening her and her entire family and had no choice but to stop watching my son during the workweek out of fear of me. I found that her statement of not watching my son anymore to be a collaberated lie constucted by my wife to try to keep my children concealed from me. Since her getting the TPO against me I have endured constant harrassment from her taunting me about her keeping the kids from me and being as spiteful as she can be. Under the belief that she can get me arrested easilly having a TPO she numerous times filed false police reports against me from harrassemnent (the very next day after I told her that I would file harrasment charges if she didnt stop harrassing me emeidiatly) to kicking in the front door of the house to domestic abuse as me being the aggressor and her and the children being the victims. All along the way all of this making it into thedivorce case paper filings over and over again to be used against me in custody proceedings. absolutely everything that she had done to me she turned around and said I had done those exact things to her and threatening false testimony from her brother stating i threatened to kill their entire family including our children... She accuses me of being a drunk and an abbuser of her and the children. She has been instructed by her attorney whom is being paid by my wifes very very wealthy parents that own 2 pharmacies (at which she is provided the drugs she abuses) (and which is under investigation for just that same thing- Fraudulantly handing out of prescription drugs repeatedly- and I am a witness in that case for the state board of pharmacy and my wife and her parents know this)and has and still is playing the role of an actual battered woman victim and abused children by me as well to the point she has accepted donations, advocate help at no charge and has even staid weekends at their get away battered womens safehouses to gain the support and help of others in assertainer her true objective of stripping me of my parental rights, getting me arrested for any number of false allegations and lies, breaking me down mentally with hopes that I would take my own life (this actually was discussed by herself and her mother) (her mother at one point actually told me personally that I should do everyone a favor, save time and money, and just kill myself setting my wife and kids free to live life however they want) (nice people) (it got so bad at points that I seriously contemplated doing just that, the only reason I didnt go threw with it was my best little buddy my little boy Tucker and his smiles and him clinging to me evrytime i step thru the door and the joy that brings the both of us.... just to have him illegally spitefully kept from me for over 5 months now) completely allienating me to our children (which started before I even left the house) it was noticed a few months before I moved out by myself and others that any and all pictures around the house that had me present in them all started to dissapear and were replaced by more and more family pictures of the kids my wife and her mother father and brother without me in any of them. I had also found out that my wifes mother had threatened cutting my wife off completely off of all family moneys and any and all inheratancees which would reach in the millions of dollars as long as she was to stay married to me. She even went as far as changing her and her husbands wills and sending them to my wife with note attatched explaining what they did with the wills and what was and what is now and to stay if she didnt leave me and "change her ways". These happenings happenend less then a year before from when the violante eposode took place and threw out that year my wife took the kids out of state to her parents house every holiday leaving me to be abandend by myself on these family holidays.

I could go on and on but out of fear that one will get bored reading a lenghty affidavate of the last 5 months of my life instead of feeling the need to help the stop reading instead.
I will rap this up by saying my wife has continued to make false accusation after accusation, conspired with 5 others to cause great and irreversable damage to me including to my character and my well being along with professional life and financially; including her attorney which whom knowing that this fraud against the courts and myself is all part of my wifes big plan and he still stays on as her attorney. I have to believe because he is actually working for my wifes mother who has made it obvious to myself that she is in control and calling the shots and he cant refuse the gauranteed payments. He is acting against his own attorney code of ethics/conduct. I have mentioned this to him myself to recieve no comment on his part. Her malicious and illegal wrong doings have already caused me a great deal of pain, loss of character, loss of work and pay, loss of employement and the possibility of being falsely imprissoned and worst of all of it the fact that she knowingly, maliciously and spitefully has kept me from my kids and the kids from myself, no contact what so ever. She has gone out of her way to see to it including cancelling my cell phone know she left me with no money no home no belongings and no job at the time. She also cancelled my car off the insurance lieing to the agents telling them that the car was sold and no longer in the family (3 times) with out telling or discussing with me that was her plan so it caused a huge mess with the DmV I still dont have straigtened out yet.The crimes committed by her include and are not limited to: child abduction, parental allienation, abtaining a TPO under false pretenses, false police reports, false accusations of threatening to commit a felony, purgury, forgery, contempt of court, filing a fraudulant sworn under oath affidavite with the courts 4 seperste times, committing fraud against the court to abtain court orders in her favor for custody, committing fraud against the courts to obtain court orders to relocate with our children without my permission, criminal conspiracy with 5 othe people, cohersing others to make false accusations and testimonies on her behave that could lead to arrest and lose of rights, offering her own false testimonies that could lead to arrest false imprisonment and loss of rights, and child abuse and endangerment, violating my rights as a father, violating my childrens rights to have a relationship with their father, violating my civil and constitutional rights..

I have accused her of these which all could and can be proven with evidence that I have and I have rebutted every accusation and filed motion after motion after request just to get bombarded with rebuttle after rebuttle and overwhelming materials to study and answers and proceedings and oppositions and what it seems to be boiling down to is not what the truth is not who committed crimes or didnt but sad to say in our family court your fate is being decided by whom has the most money, who can pay for a dirt bag lawyer the longest and not how is innocent and not who is guilty; BUT ACTUALLY COMES DOWN TO WHO CAN RESITE THE LAW AND LINK THE LAW THAT BEST FITS YOUR SIDE OF THE STORY TO THE BEST OLD CASE DECIDED BY THE SUPREME COURT. IF YOU CAN WIN THAT GAME YOU CAN WIN YOUR CASE. I dont know exactly when judges and other officials stopped careing about the truth and instead want to be dazzled by your knowing the law and your ability to resite case studies some that are older than I am and putting others fates in the hands of how studies better or retains info better or just says the right things to tickle judges fancy that day, but it is embarrassing, disgraceful, and insulting to have to be apart of these foolish and outlandish proceedings that are anything but just. The family courts are doing nothing more than ruining countless number of lives, how many lives were actually lost at the hands of a family court proceeding?? somebody should do a study on that. and of all that took their own lives how many where guys and how many were women. I bet you my life that hardly any will be found to have been women. because in the family courts if you are a man you are guilty automatically. I cant tell you how badly ive been treated by all departments of the family courts. I have no record non at all, ive done nothing wrong nothing at all but yet my wife is a woman and a woman with a lawyer so whatever lies come out of her mouth and whatever accusations her and her attorney drum up are automatically the truth.

THIS ALL HAS TO COME TO AN END ONE WAY OR ANOTHER
I HAVE 2 LITTLE CHILDREN THAT ARE BE AT THE VERY MINIMUM MENTALLY ABUSED WILL SOMEBODY PLEASE HELP ME PUT A STOP TO THESE OUTLANDISH PROCEEDINGS AND STOP AND HOLD RESPONSABLE FOR THEIR ACTIONS MY WIFE AND ATTORNEY AND 4 OTHER CONSPIRACISTS AND THE COURTS THAT ARE LETTING THIS HAPPEN. HELP ME BE REUNITED WITH MY CHILDREN, THEY HAVE DONE NOTHING TO DESERVE THIS AND EITHER HAVE i.

Thank you in advance,
Pete Deiana

Hippie Bus History continued... What is the association of the nonfiction book titled: "The Electric Acid Kool Aid Test " authored by Tom Wolfe to the death cults of Charles Manson and to that of Jim Jones and the tragedy at Jonestown, Guyana? Fiction you say?

Overview

The Electric Kool-Aid Acid Test is a nonfiction book by Tom Wolfe that was published in 1968. The book is remembered today as an early – and arguably the most popular – example of the growing literary style called New Journalism. Wolfe presents an as-if-firsthand account of the experiences of Ken Kesey and his band of Merry Pranksters, who traveled across the country in a colorfully painted school bus, the destination of which was always Furthur, as indicated on its sign, but also exemplified by the general ethos of the Pranksters themselves. Kesey and the Pranksters became famous for their use of LSD and other psychedelic drugs in hopes of achieving intersubjectivity. The book chronicles the Acid Tests (parties in which LSD-laced Kool-Aid was used to obtain a communal trip), the group's encounters with (in)famous figures of the time, including famous authors, Hells Angels, and The Grateful Dead, and it also describes Kesey's exile to Mexico and his arrests.

Plot

Tom Wolfe chronicles the adventures of Ken Kesey and his group of followers. Throughout the work, Kesey is portrayed as someone starting a new religion. Due to the allure of the transcendent states achievable through drugs and because of Kesey's ability to preach and captivate listeners, he begins to form a band of close followers. They call themselves the "Merry Pranksters" and begin to participate in the drug-fueled lifestyle. Starting at Kesey's house in the woods of La Honda, California, the early predecessors of acid tests were performed. These tests or mass usage of LSD were performed with lights and noise, which was meant to enhance the psychedelic experience.

The Pranksters eventually leave the confines of Kesey's estate. Kesey buys a bus in which they plan to cross the country. It is driven by the legendary Neal Cassady, the person upon whom Dean Moriarty character in Jack Kerouac's On the Road was based. They paint it colorfully and name it Furthur. They traverse the nation, tripping on acid throughout the journey. As the Pranksters grow in popularity, Kesey's reputation grows as well. By the middle of the book, Kesey is idolized as the hero of a growing counterculture. He starts friendships with groups like Hells Angels and their voyages lead them to cross paths with icons of the Beat Generation. Kesey's popularity grows to the point that permits the Pranksters to entertain other significant members of a then growing counterculture. The Pranksters meet The Grateful Dead, Allen Ginsberg and attempt to meet with Timothy Leary. The failed meeting with Leary leads to great disappointment. A meeting between Leary and Kesey would mark the meeting of East and West. Leary was on the East Coast, and Kesey represented the West Coast.

In an effort to broadcast their lifestyle, the Pranksters publicise their acid experiences and the term Acid Test comes to life. The Acid Tests are parties where everyone takes LSD (which was often put into the …

Cultural significance and reception

The Electric Kool-Aid Acid Test is remembered as an accurate and "essential" book depicting the roots and growth of the hippie movement.

The use of New Journalism yielded two primary responses, amazement or disagreement. While The Electric Kool-Aid Acid Test was not the original standard for New Journalism, it is the work most often cited as an example for the revolutionary style. Wolfe's descriptions and accounts of Kesey's travel managed to captivate readers and permitted them to read the book as a fiction piece rather than a news story. Those who saw the book as a literary work worthy of praise were amazed by the way Wolfe maintains control. Despite being fully engulfed in the movement and aligned with the Prankster's philosophy, Wolfe manages to distinguish between the realities of the Pranksters and Kesey's experiences and the experiences triggered by their paranoia and acid trips. Wolfe is in some key ways different from the Pranksters, because despite his appreciation for the spiritual experiences offered by the psychedelic, he also accepts the importance of the physical world. The Pranksters see their trips as a breach of their physical worlds and realities. Throughout the book Wolfe focuses on placing the Pranksters and Kesey within the context of their environment. Where the Pranksters see ideas, Wolfe sees Real-World objects.

While some saw New Journalism as the future of literature, the concept was not without critics and criticism. There were many who challenged the believability of the style and there were many questions and criticisms about whether accounts were true. Wolfe however challenged such claims and notes that in books like The Electric Kool-Aid Acid Test, he was nearly invisible throughout the narrative. He argues that he produced an uninhibited account of the events he witnessed. As proponents of fiction and ortho…

The Electric Kool-Aid Acid Test is best if you blow through the first fifty pages and take your leisure with the rest. There's equal information in the introduction as in the meat of the story, but less of the fun, and a little more cruelty to the real people behind Wolfe's "new journalism" report.

Subject: Barking dogs/Animal Control Help

To Whom It May Concern:

My name is Kimberly Snyder. I live at [redacted]. I am the homeowner.

Ever since I purchased my home in 2015, I have been dealing with barking dogs. Specifically, my adjacent neighbor leaves his dog outside almost all day, if not the entire day. It barks all of the time, especially if I am in my own backyard, trying to enjoy my pool. I understand that it needs to be outside to use the restroom; however, this dog is left outside for hours, and therefore barks for hours. I know you probably think I am exaggerating but I am not.

I have notified my neighbor several times regarding this issue via face-to-face conversation and texts. He thinks that "dogs will be dogs" and that he is not doing anything wrong. So the problem persists to this day. (I have never complained when the dog was kept INSIDE!)

As you are aware, Clark County Code of Ordinances Section 10.36.010 entitled "Noise annoyance" CLEARLY states that dogs must not be kept so that their barking "causes annoyance to...any person in the vicinity." My neighbor is in OBVIOUS VIOLATION of this ordinance.l

So here is the problem. I reached out to Clark County Animal Control regarding this issue. I was emailed the following response:

You
Clark County Animal Control still does not accept anonymous noise complaints. Please be advised that a post card will be mailed to the residence of the offending party and both parties will received a letter from the Neighborhood Justice Center for a request for mediation to resolve the complaint. This process is intended to provide for quick resolution. The Neighborhood Justice Center letter should arrive a few days after the postcard is received. Should mediation fail to resolve the problem you will need to contact our office to be provided with a District Attorney's packet in order for the case to be screened for potential prosecution. This process also requires the corroboration of two additional neighbors to process the criminal complaint. All witnesses will need to agree to testify in court.

Thank you,

Phone: 702-455-7710
Fax: 702-455-8102

As you have read:

1. Animal Control no longer responds to noise complaints. I was told from Commissioner Sisolak's office that this is because Animal Control is short staffed (and cannot respond to the thousands of complaints called in yearly). So obviously this is a huge problem throughout Las Vegas, and the county's response is to cut funding for it?
2. Court ordered mediation is the first step now, then the DA's office. However, the DA's office needs TWO NEIGHBORS to be WILLING TO TESTIFY IN COURT. So proving obvious guilt is contingent upon me finding two neighbors willing to go to court? What other violation (=crime) requires two independent neighbor witnesses? Especially when such issue could be substantiated with one visit from Animal Control!

I implore you to please look at this failing system for barking dogs. I beg of you to please do something about this. Or please direct me to someone who can truly make a difference and help me.

Thank you so much,
[redacted]

FCC Support Of Sprint, T-Mobile Deal Won't Tie DOJ's Hands

Federal Communications Commission Chairman Ajit Pai voiced support Monday for Sprint and T-Mobile's $26 billion megamerger based on new divestiture and 5G buildout commitments, in what deal opponents say is an unusual move getting ahead of U.S. Department of Justice scrutiny that's unlikely to simply accept the commission's approval.

Mayor Carolyn Goodman

Dear Lady Mayor,

Here is yet another typical work week example illustrating the level of safety concerns I have endured on a regular basis, particularly taking an increased spike in occurrences during the past year, as I continually attempt to perform as a professional comedy ventriloquist beneath the Fremont Street Experience canopy.

The following video footage was captured- during a seven day period beginning on the 8/17/2016 and culminating on 8/23/2016. May I please take a brief moment, during your busy schedule, to setup the following filmed piece that highlights a clear lack in quality of the security safety and policing procedures presently in place on Fremont Street Experience- security protocol that is supposedly designed to protect visiting tourists, locals and street performers from harm/harassment.

Unfortunately, for me I am harassed on three separate occasions during my performances by individuals; the first openly calling me the 'N' word he having early spat on a passing tourist and shouted profanities at children, the second verbally abusing me (while allegedly she appears under the influence of medication/drugs) and the third and extremely way beyond annoying gentleman firstly starts of with a racist tirade directed towards me in the form of asking me if I had an authorized USA' immigration 'Green Card' before threatening to 'knock' me out!

I being a professional entertainer, with many decades of international experience managed, as expected, to display an immense amount of restraint and composure while enduring an horrendous amount of verbal racist abuse at the hands of the above featured individuals.

One must never lose sight of the fact that if I or anyone else had been irresponsible enough to have placed the merest of fingers on any of my abusers, rest assured we would be currently residing in Clark County' jail cell.

One can clearly hear during the video clip, a passing tourist say, "he was also saying things to the kids." relating to the the person that had early also spat on a member of the public.

Sadly the response from the Fremont Street Security' officers was to say, "that's the City Ordinance, man you have a right to do what you want being mentally ill has nothing to do with it."

I have written to Mr. Robert Gallego (Director of Security/Parking) at the Fremont Street Experience and supplied him at a great deal of time, effort and personal expense to my office- numerous previous video clips highlighting safety lapses on the Fremont Street Experience.

One can only fairly conclude that Mr. Gallego deems such racist harassing behavior somewhat acceptable.

Yours truly,

Scarlet Ray Watt

Medicare Extra for All

A Plan to Guarantee Universal Health Coverage in the United States

By the CAP Health Policy Team

The United States is alone among developed countries in not guaranteeing universal health coverage. Over the past half century, there have been several expansions of health coverage in the United States. The most recent coverage expansion, the Affordable Care Act (ACA), was an historic accomplishment, expanding coverage to 20 million Americans. In the near term, there is an urgent need to resist sabotage of the ACA, push for stabilization, and expand coverage through Medicaid expansion. At the same time, it is imperative to chart a path forward for the long-term future of the nation's health care system.

The Center for American Progress proposes a new system, "Medicare Extra for All," modeled on the highly popular Medicare program that now covers Americans age 65 and older. It would be available to everyone regardless of income, health status, age, or insurance status. At the same time, it would preserve employer coverage as an option for those Americans satisfied with their current coverage.

Medicare Extra includes important enhancements to the current Medicare program, and would eliminate underinsurance, offering coverage with zero or low deductibles as well as no-cost preventive care, generic drugs, and treatment for chronic disease. Premiums would be capped based on income to ensure affordability and handled automatically through the tax system. The cost of coverage would be offset by significantly reducing health care costs combined with additional tax revenue options. It also would implement long overdue reforms to the payment and delivery system and take advantage of Medicare's administrative efficiencies. Learn more about this innovative new plan.

SUCCESS TEAM INTERVIEW QUESTIONS 2019.docx

Dear Carolyn (Future Success Team Partner!),

PlannedActsOfKindness.Org is a global outreach program where people wake up and on their cell phone, computer or device there is a new daily planned act of kindness that they can do with their family, friends, co-workers and in their community.

As you are one of the most inspirational people dedicated to helping others, we are pleased to invite you to become a founding member of Planned Acts Of Kindnesses Success Team.

The goal is to have tens of millions of people around the country and hundreds of millions of people around the world, waking up and doing the same thing on the same day, and unleashing that much powerful, positive energy in the world.

If we want lead happier, healthier and longer life, it's not about earning more and more money, how much we exercise, or the supplements or drugs we take.

Study after study now shows that we must have strong relationships and a strong connection with the community.

Being on our Success Team provides you with a stellar opportunity to shape, support and motivate people of all ages on the important subjects on which you have devoted your life.

As a member of our Success Team, you'd be in very good company as both Jack Canfield and Mark Victor Hansen, co-authors of the "Chicken Soup for the Soul" books, have endorsed our programs.

The Karma Club

Planned Acts of Kindness provides us with the opportunity to achieve this through The Karma Club. Every month there are different activities Karma Club members do: Daily PAKS, invite others to Join the KC, Volunteer with our organization to help others. And when people do these activities, they can level up. Then every day we give gifts to random members at that level.

So, as a member of The Karma Club, “The More You Do, The Greater Your Rewards.” And when you do this, you’ll start to reap the benefits of Karma Consistency.

The World Is In Crisis

But there’s another extremely important benefit of being a member of the Karma Club: The problems of the world — climate change, pollution, overpopulation, pandemics, terrorism, and war — are not going to be solved by governments or corporations, but by ordinary people working together on common causes with a common focus.

The tipping points are not going to be 20 to 30 years in the future, they are now. And, if we don’t get these problems under control the world will be a very different place for billions of people, and not in a positive way.

But to make the impact we need to have this type of sea-change in society, we need your support.

Social Responsibility: Us, You and The Planet!

The main purpose of our Success Teams is to provide management advice, outreach and action relating to “Planned Acts Of Kindness” activities.

Your Success Is Our Business

As a member of our Success Team:

- you have the opportunity to network and build relationships with other Movers and Shakers as we work together for the Betterment of Kids, People and the Planet
- your name, picture, biography, and social media information is featured on our Planned Acts Of Kindness website
- you can become a Founding Signer of the Karma Constitution
- you receive gifts that show our appreciation of your contributions

- you are invited to attend Planned Acts of Kindness Outreach Events
- you may be included in Media Events
- you have the power to leverage Planned Acts Of Kindnesses Social Responsibility Outreach Message to reach larger and larger audiences to generate powerful, positive goodwill for you and your organization

Your Time Is Valuable

We understand that your time is very valuable, so we are making your participation as painless as possible: You can elect to attend meetings in person or via conference/video calls. Each meeting consists of a 30-45 minute group discussion. There will also be email and phone follow-up.

That said, I am always available to chat or meet to discuss additional ways we can work together to further our collective missions. Partnerships are very much welcome.

Please take a few minutes to look over the attached interview questions. Regardless of whether you choose to become a part of the Founding Success Team, we hope you take the 20 minutes or so to complete and return your digital questions.

You Are Very Much Appreciated …

As the Founder and Program developer for "16 Things Kids Can Do" and "Planned Acts Of Kindness" I personally wish to thank you in advance for considering becoming a part of the tremendously important work, we are striving to accomplish through our organization.

i will not be trying your suggestion and you are welcome to ignore my complaint/concern. It is, after all, your tourist economy, not mine.

Stockton PD uses the same report system as You do for Las Vegas.

VID_20160717_211406.mp4

While in Las Vegas for the night My family decided to slip over to Balley's from Ellis Island for a late dinner. Thanks to the poor quality of the sidewalk my wife caught her foot on an uplift in front of a souvenir stand and fell face first in to the sidewalk. She commented it would be a nice story, except she had not been drinking.

(4136 Koval Lane, Las Vegas, NV 89169)

The result was a badly bruised wrist and a dusty dignity.

So, after leaving them at Balley's for dinner I trudged over to Walgreen's across from the Mirage Hotel. Amazed at the huge crowd so late on a Sunday night I decided to capture a short video clip to share while I plowed through the crowd.
~07/17/16, 9:27 PM UTC-7

Over the next 15 minutes or so I experienced several alerts on my phone related to access to the hot spot feature and networking on my phone. It repeatedly resulted in changing the phone into airplane mode a total of 5 times, with me rebooting the phone every time.

The only conclusion I can make is that there were repeated attempts to hack into the phone as this has not happened before, nor has it happened in the following 45 hours. Nor did it happen once I had crossed the street to the Mirage Hotel.

Thank you. Please do something about investigating the hacking attempt.

And please fix that sidewalk... Now that we are home we will be visiting to doctor to be sure the injury is only a bit of bruising.

Subject: Apr 19, CMS 2016 new Hospital CoPs for Pharmacy and Medication

Good morning,

In 2016, the CMS issued a 45-page memo announcing many changes to the hospital CoP pharmacy standards. It includes changes to ten tag numbers or sections, compounding of medication and beyond use date (BUD), and to bring them into alignment with acceptable standards of practice.

There have also been many changes in the nursing section of the CoPs that address medication usage. This includes changes to timing of medication, self-administered medication, compounding, bloód, and safe opioid use. CMS is now issuing a deficiency report showing when the pharmacy is cited for being out of compliance. Additionally, the CMS interpretive guidelines address pharmacy related standards and medication management, which is not only a significant issue with CMS but also with The Joint Commission. Also, for the first time, CMS has mentioned that nursing needs to be aware of some of the pharmacy standards and vice versa.

Medication error is one of the biggest areas of concern in hospitals today. According to CMS, around 1.9 million inpatients have to suffer from drug related adverse outcomes, which accounts for almost 5% of all readmissions. Around 838,000 outpatients have drug related adverse events. Hospitals that spènd more resources on medication issues generally have lower rates. The stakes have never been higher for hospitals to prevent patient re-admissions.

Join expert speaker Sue Dill Calloway, RN, MSN, JD, in this Live Webinar—"CMS 2016 New Pharmacy and Medication Hospital CoP Standards" on Tuesday, April 19 at 1 pm ET, to identify the top problematic areas in pharmacy standards and medication management and get practical strategies to overcome these problems. Get a better understanding of verbal orders for medication, NS standing orders, order for medications, and policy required by CMS for high risk drugs, and more!

Plus, you'll get 2 AAPC-approved CEUs for attending this 2-hour session!

Session Objectives:

- Why hospitals that receive Medícare/Medicaíd reimbursement must follow the medication guidelines for all patients.
- Identify the CMS requirements on BUD and compounding.
- Comprehend the CMS' various requirements for pharmacy policies and procedures.
- Understand why CMS requires a policy for high risk drugs such as double checks or dose limits.
- How to locate the CMS Manual?

- New and revised standards, regulations, and laws put forth by CMS, TJC and the federal government.
- Review the CMS 45 page memo regarding pharmacy and medication changes. Also, understand the final changes.
- Discuss the standardization of prescribing and communication practices.

Session Agenda:

- Pharmaceutical services requirements
- Common problematic pharmacy standards
- Standards of care
- Recent CMS memos: safe injection practices, infection control breaches, luer misconnections, insulin pens
- Meeting the needs of patients
- Condition or standard level deficiencies
- Required policies and procedures

A Symposium Honoring the Work of Professor Chris Blakesley

Professor Blakesley, a well respected expert, both nationally and internationally, on issues of international and comparative law relating to topics ranging from human rights to terrorism to family law is retiring from UNLV. The symposium is an appropriate way for the UNLV William S. Boyd School of Law to recognize Professor Blakesley's contributions. The symposium will take place:

April 7, 2017

8:15 a.m. - 6:30 p.m.

UNLV William S. Boyd School of Law

Thomas & Mack Moot Courtroom

The symposium, Reconsidering the International Legal Order in Changing Times, will consist of presentations and discussions throughout the day on Friday, April 7. All sessions will be in the Thomas & Mack Moot Court Facility on the UNLV campus.

We are planning the symposium around roundtable discussions and panels that will bring together scholars and lawyers whose work is as informed, provocative, wide ranging, and significant as Professor Blakesley's many contributions on so many stages and in so many forums.

The symposium will include discussion of the following topics: (1) emerging trends and challenges in international law and human rights law; (2) cybercrime and cyberterrorism; (3) global issues in criminal law; (4) prosecution and alternatives in international criminal law; (5) comparative criminal law and criminal procedure; (6) international and comparative family law; and (7) terrorism and the Constitution.

About Chris Blakesley

Professor Blakesley has been recognized by UNLV as a Barrick Distinguished Scholar, and he holds The Cobeaga Law Firm Professorship at Boyd. Before joining our faculty in 2002, he held the J.Y. Sanders Chair of International and Comparative Law at the Louisiana State University Law Center, where he taught before and after teaching at the University of Pacific McGeorge School of Law. Professor Blakesley's achievements are too extensive to include in full; he earned his B.A. and J.D. from the University of Utah, a masters and doctoral degree in law from Columbia University, and an M.A. in International Law & Diplomacy from the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy at Tufts University. Chris's legal practice was in the Office of the Legal Adviser to the U.S. Department of State under Dr. Henry Kissinger, where he worked on matters of international criminal law, including counter-terrorism, extradition, and mutual assistance in criminal matters. Professor Blakesley has written a dozen books on topics ranging from terrorism to family law. He is also a member of the American Law Institute as well as the boards of editors and boards of advisors of many international publications, institutes, and research centers.

A full schedule of the symposium can be found here.

Hi Mayor! Two years ago (yes he kept the email!) Jon Ralston asked us about this whether you were considering returning the money he gave your campaign, and after talking with you we responded you were aware of the issue and would wait and see what the outcome of the investigation is,
Now that he has been indicted Jon wants to know whether you are planning to return the money he donated to your campaign.
Feel free to call me if you want to chat, I wanted to email you this so you had the PDF.

INVESTMENT COMPANY EXECUTIVES INDICTED FOR $1.5 BILLION PONZI SCHEME

WASHINGTON – The president and chief executive officer and two former Asia-based executives of a Las Vegas investment company were indicted today for their roles in an alleged $1.5 billion Ponzi scheme.

Assistant Attorney General Leslie R. Caldwell of the Justice Department's Criminal Division, U.S. Attorney Daniel G. Bogden of the District of Nevada and Special Agent in Charge Laura A. Bucheit of the FBI's Las Vegas Division made the announcement.

"The defendants allegedly preyed on thousands of unsuspecting Japanese victims to enrich themselves by operating a billion-plus dollar Ponzi scheme," said Assistant Attorney General Caldwell. "This prosecution shows that the Criminal Division will pursue not only those who victimize American citizens, but also those who use the U.S. as a home base to defraud victims abroad."

"Investment fraud and other financial fraud cases are a high priority for the U.S. Attorney's Office in Nevada," said U.S. Attorney Bogden. "These defendants are accused of using a Nevada corporation to conduct their $1.5 billion fraud scheme and falsely telling thousands of overseas victims that their investments would be safely held and managed by an independent, third-party escrow agent in Nevada. Fraudulent ruses and schemes perpetrated by Nevadans using Nevada corporations and entities will continue to be addressed by this office."

"These indictments are a reminder of the FBI's determination to identify, investigate and bring to justice those who are committing financial crimes against innocent consumers," said Special Agent in Charge Bucheit. "We are appreciative of the continued support we receive from our international, federal, state and local law enforcement partners."

Edwin Fujinaga, 68, of Las Vegas; Junzo Suzuki, 66, of Tokyo; and Paul Suzuki, 36, of Tokyo, were charged in an indictment with eight counts of mail fraud and nine counts of wire fraud. Fujinaga also is charged with three counts of money laundering. The indictment seeks from all three defendants forfeiture of the proceeds from the alleged crimes.

Fujinaga was the president and CEO of Las Vegas-based MRI International Inc. (MRI). Junzo Suzuki previously was MRI's executive vice president for Asia Pacific, and Paul Suzuki previously was the company's general manager for Japan operations. MRI purportedly specialized in "factoring," whereby the company purchased accounts receivable from medical providers at a discount, and then attempted to recover the entire amount, or at least more than the discounted amount, from the debtor.

According to allegations in the indictment, from at least 2009 to 2013, Fujinaga and the Suzukis fraudulently solicited investments from thousands of Japanese residents, and MRI currently owes investors over $1.5 billion. Specifically, the indictment alleges that Fujinaga and the Suzukis promised investors a series of interest payments that would accrue over the life of the investment and that would be paid out along with the face value of the investment at the conclusion of the investments' duration. The defendants allegedly solicited investments by, among other things, promising investors that their investments would be used only for the purchase of medical accounts receivable (MARS) and by representing that investors funds would be managed and safeguarded by an independent third-party escrow company.

The indictment further alleges that MRI operated as a Ponzi scheme, wherein the defendants used new investors' money to pay prior investors' maturing investments. According to the indictment, the defendants also allegedly used investors' funds for purposes other than the purchase of MARS, including paying themselves sales commissions, subsidizing gambling habits, funding personal travel by private jet, and other personal expenses.

The charges contained in an indictment are merely accusations. A defendant is presumed innocent until and unless proven guilty.

This case is being investigated by the FBI's Las Vegas Division. Significant assistance was provided by the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, the Criminal Division's Office of International Affairs and Japanese authorities. This case is being prosecuted by Assistant Chief Albert B. Stieglitz Jr. and Trial Attorney Melissa Aoyagi of the Criminal Division's Fraud Section and First Assistant U.S. Attorney Steven W. Myhre of the District of Nevada.

Subject: to Carolyn Goldmark-- Anthem sues Express Scripts

Hello Mayor Goldmark,
HVD Rx Programs can typically reduce drug spend by about 31%. See HealthValueDirect (HVD) below.

"One of the drivers of low value in health care is the continuous entrance of new drugs that add no value to care." Donald Berwick MD, The Triple Aim.
FDA focus is on safety, not on whether a drug works. Many drugs that don't work... have exorbitant rates.
Below: •Mayo Clinic Petition ...Offended by excessive cost & nominal benefit, clinicians call for value.
•Memorial Sloan Kettering very publicly refuses to carry Zaltrap.

Anthem sues Express Scripts for $15 billion over drug pricing Barrons 7/23/16
PBMs Notoriously Game Pricing, Drug Mix (eg., they promote new drugs with no value).
If insurers can't unravel PBM pricing/ achieve value...how can employers? Employers are paying for low value.

How To Control American Drug Costs 11/10/16 by Brian Klepper (HVD) TheCollabRxBlog
Summary/outline by Bill Cole, marketer of HVD.

Congress received $3.3 billion in campaign contributions from the pharmaceutical sector between 1997-2015, or a stunning $343,000 per legislator per year. (opensecrets.org)
Congress' prohibits Medicare from negotiating drug prices. (Commercial health plans largely/blindly follow Medicare's lead).
U.S. drug pricing.. has two core problems JAMA 2016:
1 "we have granted government-protected monopolies to drug manufacturers"
2 Medicare is required to cover new drugs – including sub-optimal ones – priced at whatever the market will bear.
For perspective on this...
"MOST cancer drug approvals have not been shown to, or do not, improve clinically relevant end points." JAMA 2015
See also •Why Does the FDA Approve Cancer Drugs That Don't Work? 10/22/15 thehealthcareblog
... with surrogate end points ... there is even LESS focus on whether a drug works.
Cleopatra Oncology Trial authors dropped a bombshell: "The addition of pertuzumab (at $713,219).. is unlikely to provide reasonable value for money spent in the US compared with other interventions generally deemed cost effective."
"There is a crucial step in the drug development and approval process that is missing-- an evaluation of cost and value." Dr. Goldstein has urged the FDA to develop, refine and adopt a framework that establishes value-based pricing for all oncology drugs seeking approval. Daniel Goldstein MD.
Value methodologies do exist.
•The Institute for Clinical and Economic Review (ICER) independently assesses the value of new drugs.
•The American Society of Clinical Oncology recently unveiled its drug value framework,
•The Center for Health Policy and Outcomes at Memorial Sloan Kettering Cancer Center.
- - - - -
Most DO NOT CALL FOR VALUE.
•Cancer care is so lucrative ONE IN FOUR health systems is now building a cancer center.
•besides use of the most expensive drugs available... there's plain old egregious pricing **:

HighMark claims UPMC hospital network has Over-Billed it by $300 million for cancer drugs since 2010.
Pittsburgh Post-Gazette 9/4/14 Billing of the service is shifted... from doctor office to hospital outpatient.
"Chemo treatments that once cost Highmark $10,000 now cost more than $30,000."
Funny Anecdote: Highmark's own Allegheny Health Network has long engaged in these same billing practices.
A few CALL FOR VALUE--
•Mayo Clinic's petition to "..Lower the High Price of Cancer Drugs" In the past, it has been all but forbidden to consider cost, but clinicians have been so offended by excessive cost & nominal benefit, they have begun to mobilize. 118 leading oncologists from major cancer centers signed Mayo's petition.

RE: Keep your current PBM/s, add our Rx program/s.
Health Value Direct. Brian Klepper, principal
HVD has developed reseller relationships with high performance organizations.
Direct Contracting with high performing vendors is a market approach, and a huge win for patients & purchasers.
You keep your BCBS/Aetna/UHC administrator -- but will still use them to process claims for the direct contracts.
Health Systems -- very few are going through the agony now of laying in the tools and trying to shift the culture so they can change utilization & cost patterns.
Health Plans -- make a % of total cost... incentive to make health care cost more.
Health Plans avoid high performance organizations, because they disrupt their conventional network care/cost patterns and reduce the revenues associated with over-treatment.
"Providers need to be rewarded because they are high performers, rather than because they have improved" Paul Ginsburg PhD (low performers / "quality improvers" "care improvers" would lose market share (Economics 101).
Risk is managed. It may be financial, clinical or administrative...depending on program/s selected.
Programs target waste. They go beyond excellent care delivery.
Many programs operate outside of the CPT code system. HVD should be recruited to help.

•Compare with 10%-15% by UCR repricing or PPO wrap network discounts. 15% off = your wrap "negotiators" aren't negotiating.
•Objective reimbursement standards (not a % off subjective billed charges). •Guaranteed 48 hour turnaround time.

Quote of the Day

“Anybody who understands the political system knows the last time, the only time we’ve had a Republican-controlled Legislature and governor’s office in 89 years, they failed to get this done. It’s not going to happen again.”

— CD3 candidate Danny Tarkanian on the political headwinds re: funding for Education Savings Accounts (ESA) program

The Nevada Supreme Court struck down the funding method in September 2016, saying that lawmakers cannot take money from public schools to be used for private educational programs. An effort to get ESAs funded by other means during the 2017 session failed to move forward.

Hi Mayor! Two years ago (yes he kept the email!) Jon Ralston asked us about this whether you were considering returning the money he gave your campaign, and after talking with you we responded you were aware of the issue and would wait and see what the outcome of the investigation is,
Now that he has been indicted Jon wants to know whether you are planning to return the money he donated to your campaign.
Feel free to call me if you want to chat, I wanted to email you this so you had the PDF.

INVESTMENT COMPANY EXECUTIVES INDICTED FOR $1.5 BILLION PONZI SCHEME

WASHINGTON – The president and chief executive officer and two former Asia-based executives of a Las Vegas investment company were indicted today for their roles in an alleged $1.5 billion Ponzi scheme.

Assistant Attorney General Leslie R. Caldwell of the Justice Department's Criminal Division, U.S. Attorney Daniel G. Bogden of the District of Nevada and Special Agent in Charge Laura A. Bucheit of the FBI's Las Vegas Division made the announcement.

"The defendants allegedly preyed on thousands of unsuspecting Japanese victims to enrich themselves by operating a billion-plus dollar Ponzi scheme," said Assistant Attorney General Caldwell. "This prosecution shows that the Criminal Division will pursue not only those who victimize American citizens, but also those who use the U.S. as a home base to defraud victims abroad."

"Investment fraud and other financial fraud cases are a high priority for the U.S. Attorney's Office in Nevada," said U.S. Attorney Bogden. "These defendants are accused of using a Nevada corporation to conduct their $1.5 billion fraud scheme and falsely telling thousands of overseas victims that their investments would be safely held and managed by an independent, third-party escrow agent in Nevada. Fraudulent ruses and schemes perpetrated by Nevadans using Nevada corporations and entities will continue to be addressed by this office."

"These indictments are a reminder of the FBI's determination to identify, investigate and bring to justice those who are committing financial crimes against innocent consumers," said Special Agent in Charge Bucheit. "We are appreciative of the continued support we receive from our international, federal, state and local law enforcement partners."

Edwin Fujinaga, 68, of Las Vegas; Junzo Suzuki, 66, of Tokyo; and Paul Suzuki, 36, of Tokyo, were charged in an indictment with eight counts of mail fraud and nine counts of wire fraud. Fujinaga also is charged with three counts of money laundering. The indictment seeks from all three defendants forfeiture of the proceeds from the alleged crimes.

Fujinaga was the president and CEO of Las Vegas-based MRI International Inc. (MRI). Junzo Suzuki previously was MRI's executive vice president for Asia Pacific, and Paul Suzuki previously was the company's general manager for Japan operations. MRI purportedly specialized in "factoring," whereby the company purchased accounts receivable from medical providers at a discount, and then attempted to recover the entire amount, or at least more than the discounted amount, from the debtor.

According to allegations in the indictment, from at least 2009 to 2013, Fujinaga and the Suzukis fraudulently solicited investments from thousands of Japanese residents, and MRI currently owes investors over $1.5 billion. Specifically, the indictment alleges that Fujinaga and the Suzukis promised investors a series of interest payments that would accrue over the life of the investment and that would be paid out along with the face value of the investment at the conclusion of the investments' duration. The defendants allegedly solicited investments by, among other things, promising investors that their investments would be used only for the purchase of medical accounts receivable (MARS) and by representing that investors funds would be managed and safeguarded by an independent third-party escrow company.

The indictment further alleges that MRI operated as a Ponzi scheme, wherein the defendants used new investors' money to pay prior investors' maturing investments. According to the indictment, the defendants also allegedly used investors' funds for purposes other than the purchase of MARS, including paying themselves sales commissions, subsidizing gambling habits, funding personal travel by private jet, and other personal expenses.

The charges contained in an indictment are merely accusations. A defendant is presumed innocent until and unless proven guilty.

This case is being investigated by the FBI's Las Vegas Division. Significant assistance was provided by the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, the Criminal Division's Office of International Affairs and Japanese authorities. This case is being prosecuted by Assistant Chief Albert B. Stieglitz Jr. and Trial Attorney Melissa Aoyagi of the Criminal Division's Fraud Section and First Assistant U.S. Attorney Steven W. Myhre of the District of Nevada.

EXPERT ANALYSIS

How The Courts Review Executive Orders

The cases challenging President Donald Trump's executive orders fit within the established legal framework that limits, but does not preclude, judicial review of such orders, says Steven Gordon of Holland & Knight LLP.

Cutting Labeling Regs May Harm Companies' Bottom Lines

President Donald Trump recently signed an executive order on reducing regulations, with the goal of creating a less burdensome, lower-cost regulatory environment for businesses. However, some federal regulations — for example, those related to food labeling — can actually smooth the operation of nationwide consumer products businesses, and aid the expansion of smaller companies into additional markets, says Jill Hutchison of Jenner & Block LLP.

Complying With Expanded Access Policy Drug Laws

Section 3032 of the 21st Century Cures Act details the act's expanded access policy, which requires manufacturers and distributors to publicly declare their policies regarding investigational drugs' availability for expanded access. Such policies may have negative repercussions, so companies must carefully weigh several considerations when deciding how to comply, say attorneys with Wilson Sonsini Goodrich & Rosati PC.

FDA Finally Addresses Interchangeable Biosimilars

In the six years since Congress passed the Biologics Price Competition and Innovation Act, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration has issued a number of guidances addressing the standards for establishing biosimilarity. But now we have the first FDA guidance addressing the higher standard for interchangeability, say attorneys with Mayer Brown LLP.

Does The NLRA Protect Racist Insults By Picketing Workers?

Cooper Tire & Rubber Company v. National Labor Relations Board, a case currently under consideration in the Eighth Circuit, will determine whether the NLRB correctly ruled that racist insults hurled at replacement workers by a striking employee remain protected conduct. The facts show an intriguing sacrifice of race relations by the NLRB at the altar of protecting striking workers, says Tim Garrett of Bass Berry & Sims PLC.

United States Senate (S.120) & United States House of Representatives (H.R.246)

Both the United States Senate and the United States House of Representatives have introduced resolutions condemning efforts to delegitimize Israel and the movement to boycott Israel. Here is an excerpt of this important resolution:

"Whereas the Global Boycott, Divestment, and Sanctions Movement (BDS Movement) targeting Israel is a campaign that does not favor a two-state solution and that seeks to exclude the State of Israel and the Israeli people from the economic, cultural, and academic life of the rest of the world;

Whereas the BDS Movement targets not only the Government of Israel, but also academic, cultural, and civil society institutions in Israel, as well as individual Israeli citizens of all political persuasions, religions, and ethnicities, and in some cases even Jews of other nationalities who support Israel;

Whereas the BDS Movement does not recognize, and many of its supporters explicitly deny, the right of the Jewish people to national self-determination;

Whereas a founder of the BDS Movement has denied the right of the Jewish people in their homeland, saying, "We oppose a Jewish state in any part of Palestine. No Palestinian, rational Palestinian, not a sell-out Palestinian, will ever accept a Jewish state in Palestine.";"

SUPPORT

United States Senate (S.852)

This important bill establishes a working definition of anti-Semitism for the enforcement of Federal antidiscrimination laws concerning education programs or activities:

“Antisemitism is a certain perception of Jews, which may be expressed as hatred toward Jews. Rhetorical and physical manifestations of antisemitism are directed toward Jewish or non-Jewish individuals and/or their property, toward Jewish community institutions and religious facilities.”

SUPPORT

Fairness for High-Skilled Immigrants Act of 2019

United States House of Representatives (H.R.1044) & United States Senate (S.386)

One of the strongest aspects of the alliance between the United States and Israel is the economic relationship, high tech partnerships, and shared investments. This bill will help strengthen that relationship by allowing more Israeli high skilled workers to enter the United States.

This bill increases the per-country cap on family-based immigrant visas from 7% of the total number of such visas available that year to 15%, and eliminates the 7% cap for employment-based immigrant visas. This bill enjoys widespread bipartisan support in both the U.S. Senate and House of Representatives.

SUPPORT

A resolution recognizing Israeli-American culture and heritage and the contributions of the Israeli-American community to the United States

United States Senate (S.143)

United States Senator Kevin Cramer, along with Senators Marco Rubio and Ted Cruz introduced Senate Resolution 143, Recognizing Israeli-American culture and heritage and the contributions of the Israeli-American community to the United States. The resolution also condemns anti-Israel rhetoric that serves to marginalize and disenfranchise this unique constituency.

Encourage your Senator to support this important resolution and support the right of Israeli-Americans to connect with their culture and celebrate their heritage free from bias and bigotry.

Subject: Apr 19, CMS 2016 new Hospital CoPs for Pharmacy and Medication

Good morning,

In 2016, the CMS issued a 45-page memo announcing many changes to the hospital CoP pharmacy standards. It includes changes to ten tag numbers or sections, compounding of medication and beyond use date (BUD), and to bring them into alignment with acceptable standards of practice.

There have also been many changes in the nursing section of the CoPs that address medication usage. This includes changes to timing of medication, self-administered medication, compounding, bloód, and safe opioid use. CMS is now issuing a deficiency report showing when the pharmacy is cited for being out of compliance. Additionally, the CMS interpretive guidelines address pharmacy related standards and medication management, which is not only a significant issue with CMS but also with The Joint Commission. Also, for the first time, CMS has mentioned that nursing needs to be aware of some of the pharmacy standards and vice versa.

Medication error is one of the biggest areas of concern in hospitals today. According to CMS, around 1.9 million inpatients have to suffer from drug related adverse outcomes, which accounts for almost 5% of all readmissions. Around 838,000 outpatients have drug related adverse events. Hospitals that spènd more resources on medication issues generally have lower rates. The stakes have never been higher for hospitals to prevent patient re-admissions.

Join expert speaker Sue Dill Calloway, RN, MSN, JD, in this Live Webinar—"CMS 2016 New Pharmacy and Medication Hospital CoP Standards" on Tuesday, April 19 at 1 pm ET, to identify the top problematic areas in pharmacy standards and medication management and get practical strategies to overcome these problems. Get a better understanding of verbal orders for medication, NS standing orders, order for medications, and policy required by CMS for high risk drugs, and more!

Plus, you'll get 2 AAPC-approved CEUs for attending this 2-hour session!

Session Objectives:

- Why hospitals that receive Medícare/Medicaíd reimbursement must follow the medication guidelines for all patients.
- Identify the CMS requirements on BUD and compounding.
- Comprehend the CMS' various requirements for pharmacy policies and procedures.
- Understand why CMS requires a policy for high risk drugs such as double checks or dose limits.
- How to locate the CMS Manual?
- New and revised standards, regulations, and laws put forth by CMS, TJC and the federal government.
- Review the CMS 45 page memo regarding pharmacy and medication changes. Also, understand the final changes.
- Discuss the standardization of prescribing and communication practices.

Session Agenda:

- Pharmaceutical services requirements
- Common problematic pharmacy standards
- Standards of care
- Recent CMS memos: safe injection practices, infection control breaches, luer misconnections, insulin pens
- Meeting the needs of patients

5-18-16 @8:26 Judge Yelling believes her lawyer saying litigant was 2 hours late. Then 9:19 "If you can't obey my orders, will consider. Do not disrespect me got it", "I am very frustrated with you two."

6-28-16 Trial, Attorney George Maglares did not come as he had shot himself. The Judge still held a TPO Hearing. @2:36 Judge said "there was over 100 reasons dad should not get Joint custody!" @3:00 biasedly said she was "Gravely concerned," Judge would not let dad speak. @ 6:20 said she was gravely concerned. @7:00 concerned that dad is controlling. @ 14:45 saying she was fearing. @42:14 Judge Biasedly saying how concerned she is. @41:51 Judge said "I have been Concerned about this case for weeks, you keep me up at night Mr. McDonald" @42 :51 She says how concerned she is. @42:57 mom attorney and mom made up complete lies Temporarily Visitation is suspended no contact with the children until future order of the court "then dad did not get to see them for almost 90 days! How can this Judge rule unbiased if dad is keeping her up at night and she thinks dad is going to harm his ex and his children due to moms allegations without any evidence.

7-7-16, day after litigant's daughter's birthday... Order to show cause, talking parents email that his friend wrote. 23:00 very concerning to litigant @24:01 Concerned Very Concerned, @24:20 Litigant must protect your children put in temporary order yet didn't see litigants kids in over 90 days this didn't seem temporary how is best for his kids not to see their father for over 90 days when Dad saw them every weekend for almost a year? @27:40 asked to bring his kids on vacation was denied @ 28:40 Concerned Judge believed his exs story about blue dots and how dad's ex made up story of litigant showing his son that he is showing tracking mommy @29:41 Judge denied meaningful trip with litigants children.

Charleston.

[redacted]

5-2-17, Judge Marquis holding hearing without litigant, allowing hearsay evidence as fact, biased opinions essentially stripping litigant of parental rights with our due process, even when Supreme Court case is still pending. @ 1:06 Judge would not suspend child support but granted $200 per month @ 2:41 mom attorney tried to bring up criminal conviction of the domestic violence. @ 5:23 Russell Collings brought up the Domestic violence, lied about new case, @ 8:13 asked for sole physical and legal custody.

[redacted]

9-5-17, hearing with attorney Robert Lueck, Judge Marquis denies any visitation with the children. Dad has not had contact with his children in 10 months. @3:30 Collings said she is concerned that I am going to go get the kids and take off with them! @4:08 Judge said I am concerned yet dad did not get to refute what was said or clarify. @6:15 Asked for some kind of visitation and Judge said "request is denied"

09-27-17, Judge Marquis denied any visitation, granted new evidence hearing. @01:06 Russell Collings Request closed hearing, and said it's blew up on social Media. @8:48 Judge more concerned about criminal cases. @9:30 explained the TPO violations. @12:14 Judge was concerned about dad being monitored. @19:20 trying to justify supervised hearings. @27:04 Donna's house said that dad was unsuitable for supervised visits. @28:33, evidentiary hearing warranted. @42:20 Judge would not allow any visitation or custody. @43 Judge biasedly stated the 14 DV classes. @44:20 Judge said that he is talking about a different case, Judge does not know, the issues! @45: Judge believed that dad violated the TPO and used Email. @47:20 Judge said that dad allowed extraordinary amount of time with his children, that is incorrect. @48 Judge would not allow dad to refute, also Judge read off the items that she believes are facts and I have not allowed dad to show his side. @49 Judge says dad was unable to follow rules at Donna's house. @50 Judge biasedly states the Perfume was not unseen by the court. @56 Judge would not consider visitation and that she is concerned and the extraordinary amounts of DV and child abduction yet there was none! @57:40 Judge took away talking parents without even looking at what was said, or the amounts, just believed mom attorney as to the incessant emailing, which is not true! @58 Judge went on to go on everyway essentially ban any contact with dad's own children! 8th time dad have No contact. @1:00 Judge would not reinstate custody or visitation. @1:05 Judge ordered no visitation no contact, even talking parents, yet did not even look at what was said.

Three Marshals escorting dad out for saying "really I am not going to be able to see my kids till March?"

Below is a list of violations Judge Linda Marquis has made on this case:

1. Judge did not recuse herself when dad first entered her court, as she saw dad a week previous, as a witness in his parent's case who she was also the judge.

2. Marquis is new to being a judge, was an ex prosecutor and has no family law experience.

3. Marquis's had 3-4 Marshals in the court room with dad and they would harass dad and tell dad to shut up in an effort to intimidate.

4. Marquis said " I need to protect your ex and children from you"

5. Marquis, Husband is a Family law attorney (This is highly corrupt) He happened to be one of the attorneys dad was transferred to and spoke about his case, after dad attorney had shot-himself and I was seeking new counsel. Marquis brought up at trial and did not recuse herself.

6. At the closed trial 8-25-17 Marquis, had an Officer from DHS sit in and after wards ask dad if he wanted to harm the Judge. This officer's name is Tony Tissenou. Dad did not have any DV or criminal record priors to this divorce and the false conviction of DV (Battery, "Pushing her") is under appeal, no evidence and got baited by dad ex, yet this may be why dad is being denied any contact with his children for almost a year now.

7. Judge said "There is over 100 reasons why you should not get Joint custody!" Without seeing any evidence, nor Discovery ever being held, mom keep applying for TPO's.

8. Judge Marquis said she was "Gravely concerned", Judge would not let dad speak. (How is she going to rule impartially if she is gravely concerned? Believes dad exs lies and the Judge indicated that she is afraid of dad).

9. Judge said "My punishment will be hard and swift and I am very serious, she will be safe and your children will be safe!" How can this Judge rule unbiased if dad is keeping her up at night and she thinks dad is going to harm his ex and his children due to mom allegations, and it is against 8th amendment to Punish a litigant by keeping him from his own children, which she has done for almost a year now!

10. Defendant has never harmed his ex or children!

11. Judge Marquis's, Secretary Connie Domingo worked for both of litigants uncle former Clark County District Court Judge Joseph Bonaventure and cousin Las Vegas Justice of the Peace Joe Bonaventure and there is bad blood.

12. Judge Marquis Put in Contradictory orders that were unfollowable, and his ex used them to get him thrown in jail for over 6 months, 179 days for trying to call his own children.

13. Marquis did not allow Defendant to present Evidence of her abuse, Plaintiff (mom) admitted doing drugs on stand/ partying and Judge did nothing.

Temporary Protective Order vs. Divorce Decree, contradictory orders!
(Dad received 6 months in jail)

1. On the Temporary Protection Orders (TPO) 6-28-16 it states not to go 100 yards from children school.

2. The Divorce Decree (DD) states to pick up the children from school every other Friday and drop off Monday (Dad could have been put in jail every other weekend)!

3. The TPO states not to contact mom except through talking parents.

4. The DD states dad can have reasonable conversations with the children each week .

5. The TPO indicates not to be 100 yards from mom's place of employment (Even though their daughter's daycare is 100 yards From mom's work).

6. The DD states to pick up daughter from daycare every other Friday and drop off on Monday and pay by check.

7. The DD states that on days the children do not have school Fridays. How is dad suppose to march a 2 yr old 100 yards away? And not violate?

8. The TPO indicates dad cannot be 100 yards from the children school or mom. How do dad exchange their 2 year old?

Former Coast Guard official gets prison term in Sewol case

February 11, 2015—South Korea's Gwangju District Court has sentenced a former Coast Guard official to four years in prison for neglecting his duty to safely evacuate passengers in the sinking of the ferry Sewol last April. The disaster claimed more than 300 lives, most of them teenagers on a school trip. The court found that Kim Kyoung-il, the captain of a 100-ton rescue boat and in charge of leading the rescue operation at the scene, failed to take proper measures to remedy the situation.

Dear Concerned American,

Forgotten Not Gone is a local Las Vegas Veteran Nonprofit Organization "Stomping Out Veteran Suicide!" One of the best alternative therapies we've found for helping our Veterans is the use of Cannabis and CBD products. Cannabis is helping our Veterans overcome their military disabilities and mend important relationships. We are seeing Veterans be able to suspend all Narcotics and Psychotropic medicines prescribed through the Veterans Administration and regain their quality of life. Unfortunately, while providing this educational information for alternative therapy, we have identified a trend with the Veterans Administration shaming our Veterans and furthering the Stigma of Cannabis use.

Many Veterans are discovering that they have been diagnosed, as annotated in their medical records, unbeknownst to them, that they have a so-called "Cannabis Use Disorder". There aren't any standard set of qualifying criteria for the diagnosis of this so called "Cannabis Abuse Disorder" nor is there any solution offered once Veterans are secretly diagnosed. The VA is simply shaming Veterans with this unfounded and unjust "Cannabis Use Disorder" label

The demonization of using Cannabis is robbing our Veterans of an improved quality of life as they stay prisoners to the side effects caused by FDA approved prescription pain & psychotropic drugs currently provided by the VA.

Why You Should Care?

- Nevada has one of the highest Veteran suicide rates in the Nation.
- Veterans are reluctant to seek out the education to see if this could be a recovery option for them due to the outdated reefer madness Stigma of Cannabis use.
- Google VA Parking Lot Suicides
- Cannabis is legal in Nevada, but Veterans are being bullied into not seeking or utilizing the medicine that has been proven to give them back their lives.
- Employment opportunities are overlooked by Veterans who have an incredible disciplined work ethic to be of immense value to your team of staff.
- According to a Washington Post report, 19 suicides occurred on VA property between October 2017 and November 2018.

We are reaching out to you as Community Partners to Fight for those who Fought for us. Forgotten Not Gone would like to ask for your assistance in becoming a part of our #HowDareYou Coalition. The Coalition will be formed of Community Patriots wanting to see our Veterans overcome their Military Disabilities, Cannabis Industry Dispensaries, Cultivation Facilities, CBD Producers, testing Facilities.

What will the #HowDareYou campaign help us Fund your Local Veterans:

- Progress in Stomping Out Veteran Suicide in your community.
- The $60,000 generated from the Primary 12 Community Support Partners will secure rent for the 4,000 sq. Ft. vacant building next door to our current location where we have 400 sq.ft space.
- This will house our fleet of over 40+ recumbent Velomobile Trikes / Bikes and allow adequate room for further growth
- FNG will be able to conduct Sponsored Educational Events from our participating #HowDareYou Coalition that will educate our Veterans different ways to consume Cannabis and learn of all the healing benefits to overcome their disabilities.

Summary of Game Plan Initiative

Cannabis is so much more than what we allow those who oppose it, TO LABEL IT. It's a community of caring, healing, responsible, progressive and business minded individuals. Let's show Nevada what we already know, what #VegasStrong really means. The #HowDareYou Coalition will show them how the Cannabis Industry is "Stomping

Out Veteran Suicide!"

We need your help by leaving a comment and sharing on our social media channels with your #HowDareYou story of a Veteran overcoming their disabilities, succeeding in life through the use of Cannabis or CBD products.

Thank You for your Consideration,

Kelley Guidry, Air Force Veteran, Founder #FNG

Dear Jamie:
Thank you for your passionate thesis on distracted drivers and their devastating impacts on human life. I am so sorry to learn of your accident and hope you continue to heal and repair both physically and psychologically from the senseless crash in which you were involved. Luckily for you, you were tended to at UMC in its Burn Unit --- one of the finest in the country. While HIPPA precludes my daughter mentioning you or your hospitalization in any way to me, I glad she and the Unit were there for you.
Regarding your assessments and suggestions, they are spot on in all areas, but I know there is no way to control all of the people all of the time, even some of the people some of the time…and most importantly, WHAT ONE EXPECTS, ONE MUST INSPECT, and each of these takes funding sources. There are no dollars there to hire personnel (law enforcement and others) to monitor all traffic, drivers, incidents on a 24/7 basis on all roads or even selected ones. FINES and INCREASING FINES are in place for violators even including prison time when occurrences are of severest nature. Education is in place in all the schools, in companies, offices, government employment…but sadly without strong enough impact to stop abuse. Take a look at the DARE program: decades of education on use of drugs and today there is more drug abuse than EVER before.
Every parent is to blame who does not parent his/her own child to be responsible, thoughtful, caring, helpful, considerate, accepting, law-abiding, compassionate, honest, involved, and so forth. Technology is a tool and a great one but also it has provided a very destructive pathway to abuse and what you are addressing is just one area where technology has fostered REAL NEGATIVES.
So what do you do:

1. Stay in the fight
2. Address the Nevada Legislature
3. Vote only for those who are honest and will get a GOOD JOB DONE (…not GLORY GRABBERS)
4. Remember what Susan j. Komen's SISTER has achieved … just one person NOT GIVING UP THE FIGHT.. the COUNTRY is FOLLOWING for a CURE FOR BREAST CANCER.

It takes each of us, one day at a time, one person at a time to MAKE A DIFFERENCE.
Continue to DO IT!

Dear Madam Mayor ,

My name is Jamie Farrar, I am an auto pedestrian survivor of a crash that occurred on January 3rd, 2013 I had the honor and pleasure of meeting you at a Survivor's Gala in 2015 and I believe your daughter, Cara was one of my nurses at UMCs Burn Unit.

The letter in which I draft to you now is one that I should have done long ago, but I was both very afraid and very busy getting my BSW at UMC. I was afraid because I am only one person in a sea of voices that I'm sure you hear on a daily basis in regards to the Valley's concerns Afraid that one voice coming from a highly educated woman with CP and a speech impediment would get lost in the shuffle .

With all due respect , ma'am, I refuse to be silent another moment! I thought that if I tuned off the news, crashes like the one that burned and semi paralyzed me would decrease , Instead, they have increased year by year, day by day- two in the last two days alone!

Attached is a paper that I wrote for my degree on ideas for social workers and for the city in order to reduce these accidents . I'd love the opportunity to meet with you to discuss these and other ideas I have!

Thank you for your time and consideration!
Sincerely ,

Jamie Farrar

Hello Lora,

Thank you for the prompt response. I am glad that your office is working to fix this issue with local authorities as its been out of control and the experience been horrible to our customers. Will look forward for the action taken and update you with any new information in this regards. My biggest concern is Drugs being sold and the drinking outside the court house door steps by the handbillers while chasing costumers down the alleys.

The best Customer service is what we are looking for. We do no have a problem having couples choose any chapel in town as long as they have a great experience and not being chased down the alleys and being yelled at or taken advantage off.

Regards,
Ben

Good Afternoon, Mr. Silvano:

Thank you for contacting Mayor Carolyn G. Goodman. We were quite concerned about your email and investigated further. As a result, we have learned that the City's Planning Department, Clark County Marriage Bureau officials, City Marshals, and Metro Police are all also aware of and very concerned about these issues. A meeting of these entities has thus been scheduled to determine how to proceed. We are hopeful that a plan of action will emerge from that discussion which will assist legitimate wedding chapel businesses—a true staple of our community. On behalf of Mayor Goodman, thank you very much for bringing this important matter to our attention. Your interest and activism are appreciated. Please continue to write if there is additional information we should have. Again, thank you.

Comments:	Dear Mayor Goodman, I would like to bring to your attention a huge problem we are facing in the Wedding Chapel business here in City of las vegas. The Handbill people at the doors of the marriage bureau are causing us alot of problems and issues. Customers are coming into our chapel terrified or cheated or taken advantage off from the handbillers. They are chasing them down the street and jumping all over them eventhough the couple informed them they had a chapel. We had incidents where they chased them down to our door steps! in addition chapels have been price manipulating and cheating the customers to just rip them off inside. Also we recently found out therr have been drug sales on the doors of the court house by the handbillers. Drugs such as weed,zanax and other strong drugs. Someone has to take charge and fix this issue as its bringing a bad reputation to the marriage business in Las Vegas and therefore a large drop in marriage licenses are being issued every year. Today there was an incident with Sierra one of the promoters that chased the couple down the street shouting and yelling at them because they didnt go with her. How is that customer service? Any help in finding a solution would be great as the only time the handbillers are following the rules is when a marshal is present and the moment he leaves they go back to their bad habbits.

Dear Commissioner,

We've met at a previous panel for VIPI and as a member of Veterans in Politics I sometimes come across various situations that may be beyond my comfort zone. Yesterday was one such example; I have a friend who lives in your area at [redacted]. Her name is Nancy Spilotro. Nancy is an elderly lady of 76 years of age, she has a son named Vincent who now resides with her although he is seldom there. Now, Nancy has a fairly famous name in this town, chiefly behind the activities her late husband is rumored to have been part of. That being said, no one deserves to be living in the conditions that she now survives through.

On Sunday, I went to check on her and it was bad, extremely bad. I've been wanting to get Nancy into a program for quite sometime now, but she believed her son would make everything okay. That didn't happen. To describe the situation is difficult, I am not ashamed to say that is is so bad that I actually shed a tear when I got home...There is dog, cat feces and urine everywhere in the house. No flush handle on the toilet, not a clean dish in site, no faucet handle on the kitchen sink no gas a stove with one dial and one working burner if the gas was on. etc.. etc.. etc.. As the lady from the fire dept said today she can smell it from the front door she doesn't need to see.

Nancy asked to be taken to hospital today so I called ambulance she was having chest pain...She is now at Sunrise and I'm looking to get her into some type of assisted living program. It would be horrific in my eyes to allow this lady to go back into this environment. The other parts of the abuse she's suffering deals with her SS benefits and prescription drugs that her son seems to be taking from her. She mentioned that him and his wife have both put hands on her in the past. I find this absolutely unacceptable and I hope you do to...

As a bit of a side note, I had gone to check on her because I mentioned her to the Mayor on Sat. and she told me to have her call her. I had no idea things had gotten this bad or I would have mentioned this to Mayor Goodman. I write you on directions from Steve Sanson based on her being a resident in your area. Can you help???

9th Circ. Raises The Bar On Misprision Of A Felony

Just two days before the appointment of special counsel Robert Mueller, the Ninth Circuit added a new element to one of the potential crimes within his jurisdiction. In U.S. v. Robert & Alice, I'm Mandi.

I'm the Finance Director for Steve Sisolak for Governor. I'm reaching out today because, frankly, we're falling behind. And we need your help, Robert & Alice.

Election Day is less than 90 days away, so it's a sprint from here on out and we need all hands on deck.

We still need to raise $10,000 more online by midnight on Wednesday to reach our mid-month fundraising goal. And without your help we'll never meet it. Can you chip in now?

If you've saved your payment information with ActBlue Express, your donation will go through immediately:

New polls show that this race is a statistical tie. We can't afford to let Adam Laxalt move ahead, but that's exactly what he'll do if we don't match the special interest money pouring into his campaign from out of state groups like the Koch Network.

That's why we need your help to make sure that Team Sisolak keeps up.

Send in $5 or whatever you can to help us get back on track before our mid-month deadline on Wednesday.

Thanks,

Mandi

Subject: ATTENTION PLEASE...Elder Abuse...

Dear Commissioner,

We've met at a previous panel for VIPI and as a member of Veterans in Politics I sometimes come across various situations that may be beyond my comfort zone. Yesterday was one such example; I have a friend who lives in your area at [redacted] Her name is Nancy Spilotro. Nancy is an elderly lady of 76 years of age, she has a son named Vincent who now resides with her although he is seldom there. Now, Nancy has a fairly famous name in this town, chiefly behind the activities her late husband is rumored to have been part of. That being said, no one deserves to be living in the conditions that she now survives through.

On Sunday, I went to check on her and it was bad, extremely bad. I've been wanting to get Nancy into a program for quite sometime now, but she believed her son would make everything okay. That didn't happen. To describe the situation is difficult, I am not ashamed to say that is is so bad that I actually shed a tear when I got home...There is dog, cat feces and urine everywhere in the house. No flush handle on the toilet, not a clean dish in site, no faucet handle on the kitchen sink no gas a stove with one dial and one working burner if the gas was on. etc.. etc.. etc.. As the lady from the fire dept said today she can smell it from the front door she doesn't need to see.

Nancy asked to be taken to hospital today so I called ambulance she was having chest pain...She is now at Sunrise and I'm looking to get her into some type of assisted living program. It would be horrific in my eyes to allow this lady to go back into this environment. The other parts of the abuse she's suffering deals with her SS benefits and prescription drugs that her son seems to be taking from her. She mentioned that him and his wife have both put hands on her in the past. I find this absolutely unacceptable and I hope you do to...

As a bit of a side note, I had gone to check on her because I mentioned her to the Mayor on Sat. and she told me to have her call her. I had no idea things had gotten this bad or I would have mentioned this to Mayor Goodman. I write you on directions from Steve Sanson based on her being a resident in your area. Can you help???

Monte Brokate

November 6, 2017

Dear Mayor Goodman,

Honorable Members of the Las Vegas City Council:

I strongly recommend that you repeal the pet sale ban prior to its going into effect.

For my pet stores, I only purchase puppies from USDA registered and inspected breeders, and then only if they have two years of clean USDA inspection reports. Most of my breeders I have inspected personally. I offer warranties on all my puppies. Going to a puppy mill for puppies would bankrupt me in short order.

Supply can be regulated, but demand cannot. Prohibition, the war on drugs, etc., there are plenty of examples. By outlawing the legal, retail sale of pets, you send those wanting a purebred puppy straight into the hands of online sellers and flea markets, where puppy mills sell the vast majority of their puppies. Only by allowing the safe, retail sale of pets can we get rid of puppy mills!

Sincerely,
Monte Brokate

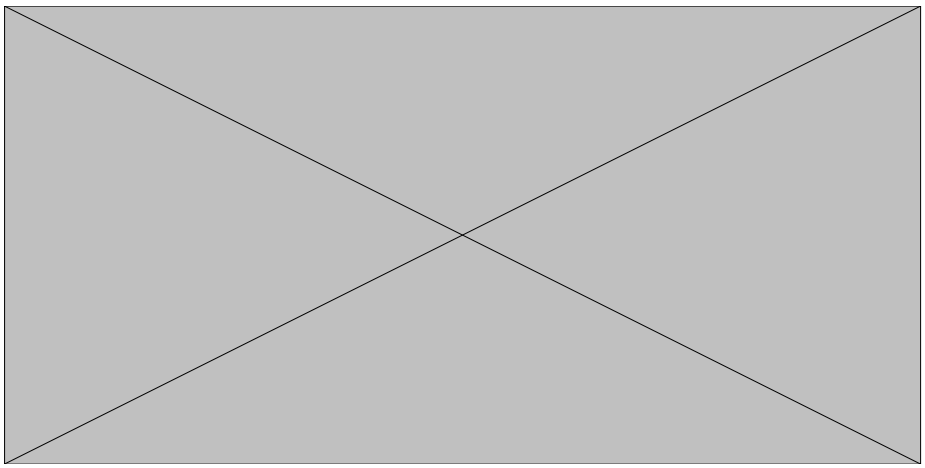
Subject: ONDCP Announces $89 million in Grants, and Upcoming Commission Meeting

ONDCP's Drug-Free Communities (DFC) Support Program announced 719 DFC grant awards totaling $89 million for FY 2017



The $89 million in DFC Support Program grants to 719 local drug prevention coalitions, announced on September 20, is the largest number of single-year grantees since the program's founding.

The grants will provide local community coalitions funding to prevent youth substance use, including prescription drugs, marijuana, tobacco, and alcohol.

The DFC Program, created by the Drug-Free Communities Act of 1997, is the Nation's leading effort to mobilize communities to prevent youth drug use. Grounded in the philosophy that local problems need local solutions, the DFC Program is designed to support communities as they mobilize individuals and organizations to reduce youth substance use.

For Fiscal Year 2017, the new DFC grant awards represent a total Federal investment of $12.6 million in grants. DFC continuation grants represent a total Federal investment of $76.7 million. The DFC Support Program is a matching Federal grant where each community provides a minimum of one-to-one match in local funding for each Federal dollar awarded, thereby doubling the government's investment while leveraging local support.

Included in these FY 2017 awards are 3 new DFC Mentoring grants totaling $225,000 and 3 DFC Mentoring continuation grants totaling $225,000. Mentoring grants are awarded to existing DFC coalitions to assist new coalitions build the capacity necessary to apply for DFC funding on their own in the future.

To learn more about the DFC Program as well as our Fiscal Year 2017 grant award recipients, please visit: https://www.whitehouse.gov/ondcp/grants-programs. If you are one of the 719 DFC-funded community coalitions receiving funds in FY 2017 make sure Recovery Walks!

On Saturday, September 23, ONDCP Acting Director Richard Baum will take part in the Nation's largest Recovery Month celebration, Recovery Walks! A 2.3-mile celebratory walk through downtown Philadelphia that is followed by a rally at Penn's Landing, the event attracted 26,000 participants last year and is expected to be even larger this year. Director Baum will help lead the walk, will address participants at the rally, and will present framed copies of President Trump's National Alcohol and Drug Addiction Recovery Month Proclamation to the event's hosts, PRO-ACT (Pennsylvania Recovery Organization - Achieving Community Together) and the Philadelphia Department of Behavioral Health and Disability Services.

ONDCP Engagement with the Police, Treatment and Community Collaborative (PTAC)

In coordination with Treatment Alternatives for Safe Communities (TASC), ONDCP had the opportunity to meet with a number of pre-arrest diversion programs who are part of the Police, Treatment and Community Collaborative (PTAC) on September 13th. The meeting was hosted by the International Association of Chiefs of Police. The PTAC Collaborative was launched in April 2017 with a mission to strategically widen community behavioral health and social service options available through law enforcement diversion. The group is named for the collaborative relationship between police, treatment, and community necessary to make police diversion possible, with a stated purpose of providing national vision, leadership, voice, and action to reframe the relationship between law enforcement, treatment, and community.

The roundtable meeting brought together programs who are utilizing new and collaborative pathways to treatment to include self-referral, active outreach, "naloxone plus," officer prevention, and officer intervention. While all of these programs provide promising early results and excellent bridges between the law enforcement and behavioral health communities, each community must determine which approach solves its problem, fits the local situation, and can be addressed through current behavioral health capacity.

October is National Substance Abuse Prevention Month

Join ONDCP in recognizing National Substance Abuse Prevention Month. NSAPM is an annual observance focused on raising the public awareness and encouraging communities to take action and get involved to prevent substance use. Each year families, communities, and organizations across the country come together to raise awareness about the importance of substance use prevention and the importance of investing in prevention first. This year's theme is the "Power of Investing in Prevention". We encourage communities to join together to ensure evidence-based prevention programs, policies, and practices are implemented at the local level.

As part of prevention month, we encourage coalitions and providers to host community health events and partner with their local Federally Qualified Health Centers (FQHC) funded by the Health Resources and Services Administration (HRSA) during DEA's Take Back Day on October 28, 2017. Take Back Day is an opportunity for coalitions and providers to raise awareness about screening and treatment services for those in need. Please continue to utilize DEA's Take Back Day to return unwanted prescriptions and utilize this event to bring together providers.

Las Vegas Municipal Court Celebrates HOPE Court Graduates

A Program Designed to Give a Second Chance to Habitual Offenders

On Wednesday, May 24th, 2017, at 2:00 p.m., Judge Heidi Almase, Las Vegas Municipal Court, will celebrate the successful graduation of two participants of the HOPE Court program. The graduation ceremony will be held in the City Hall Council Chambers, 495 S. Main St, Las Vegas, Nevada 89101.

HOPE Court is an alternative sentencing program designed to give a second chance to offenders suffering from addiction. The program includes housing and job assistance and requires the participants to complete drug treatment and aftercare programs. Every participant is also required to stay out of trouble and abstain from drugs and alcohol use during the program.

The current HOPE Court graduates have demonstrated fitness for graduation by meeting strenuous criteria for program completion and have continuous recovery without the use of mood altering substances. They are employed and have been completely self-supporting for over one year. Our graduates are to be commended for their sustained efforts

Sonoma State College was the most liberal college in the United States from its inception in the 1960's onward. If it wasn't the most liberal college in the United States during that time, it was only second to UC Berkeley. The key word is inception. Could the movie plot listed below for the movie: Inception (2010) be another example of the manipulation of the masses through experimentation and drugs altering our state of mind and well being? Or can it be done through remote viewing and creating remote viewing? A newer technology in the mind control trade? This is very evil. Through Dr. Blue?

Overview

Kenneth Elton Kesey was an American novelist, essayist, and countercultural figure. He considered himself a link between the Beat Generation of the 1950s and the hippies of the 1960s.
Kesey was born in La Junta, Colorado, and grew up in Springfield, Oregon, graduating from the University of Oregon in 1957. He began writing One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest in 1960 following the completion of a graduate fellowship in creative writing at Stanford University; the novel was an immediate commercial and critical success when published two years later. During this period, Kesey participated in government studies involving hallucinogenic drugs (including mescaline and LSD) to supplement his income.
Following the publication of One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest, he moved to nearby La Honda, California, and began hosting happenings with former colleagues from Stanford, miscellaneous bohemian and literary figures (most notably Neal Cassady), and other friends collectively known as the Merry Pranksters; these parties, known as Acid Tests, integrated the consumption of LSD with multimedia performances. He mentored the Grateful Dead (the de facto "house band" of the Acid Tests) throughout their incipience and continued to exert a profound influence upon the group throughout their long career. Sometimes a Great Notion—an epic account of the vicissitudes of an Oregon logging family that aspired to the modernist grandeur of William Faulkner's Yoknapatawpha saga—was a commercial success that polarized critics and readers upon its release in 1964, although Kesey regarded the novel as his magnum opus.
In 1965, following an arrest for marijuana possession and subsequent faked suicide, Kesey was imprisoned for five months. Shortly thereafter, he returned home to the Willamette Valley and settled in Pleasant Hill, Oregon, where he maintained a secluded, family-oriented lifestyle for the rest of his life. In addition to teaching at the University of Oregon—an experience that culminated in Caverns(1989), a col…

Early life
Kesey was born in La Junta, Colorado, to dairy farmers Geneva (née Smith) and Frederick A. Kesey. In 1946, the family moved to Springfield, Oregon. Kesey was a champion wrestler in high school and college in the 174-pound weight division. He almost qualified to be on the Olympic team, but a serious shoulder injury stopped his wrestling career. He graduated from Springfield High School in 1953. An avid reader and filmgoer, the young Kesey took John Wayne, Edgar Rice Burroughs, and Zane Grey as his role models (later naming a son Zane) and toyed with magic, ventriloquism, and hypnotism.
In 1956, while attending the University of Oregon School of Journalism and Communication in neighboring Eugene, Oregon, Kesey eloped with his high-school sweetheart, Oregon State College student Norma "Faye" Haxby, whom he had met in seventh grade. According to Kesey, "Without Faye, I would have been swept overboard by notoriety and weird, dope-fueled ideas and flower-child girls with beamy eyes and bulbous breasts." Married until his death at the age of 66, they had three children: Jed, Zane, and Shannon. Additionally, with the approval of Faye Kesey, Ken fathered a daughter, Sunshine Kesey, with fellow Merry Prankster Carolyn "Mountain Girl" Adams. Born in 1966, Sunshine was raised by Adams and her stepfather, Jerry Garcia.

Kesey had a football scholarship for his freshman year, but switched to the University of Oregon wrestling team as a better fit for his build. After posting a .885 winning percentage in the 1956–57 season, he received the Fred Low Scholarship for outstanding Northwest wrestler. In 1957, Kesey was second in his weight class at the Pacific Coast intercollegiate competition. He remains "ranked in the top 10 of Oregon Wrestling's all time winning percentage."

Subject: Emergency Price Gouging, Helping DACA Dreamers, Drug Price Law and More

Protection from Price Gouging During Emergencies Act: It is all-too-common that sellers try to make windfall profits during emergencies, like hurricanes, earthquakes and floods. Most states do not have an effective law to protect consumers. The Protection from Price Gouging During Emergencies Act is based on a recent California statute.

Never say "tax reform": We are about to embark on a nationwide debate over taxes. Newspapers want to call this a debate over "tax reform." It is not. Progressives should never say "tax reform" and never accept this phrase as the basis for debate. Whether it's a matter before federal, state or local governments, progressives champion tax "fairness," not "reform." The one word sets us up for victory and the other for defeat. Read more in the latest IdeaLog, our blog intended to raise eyebrows and engage minds.

How states and localities can help DACA "dreamers" and their families: Wednesday, September 20 @ 3pm Eastern, 2pm Central, 1pm Mountain, Noon Pacific. Donald Trump rescinded the Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals (DACA) program and threw the issue to Congress. This presentation will explain the status of DACA, "dreamers," and what federal legislation might come, and then it will suggest ways that states and localities can help dreamers and their families. To sign up for this webinar, click here.

Why you should copy Maryland's new drug price gouging law in your state: This op-ed by a Johns Hopkins University professor describes Maryland's new law that empowers the state Attorney General to sue when the prices of generic and off-patent brand-name drugs skyrocket for no reason other than greed. A model of the Maryland bill is here.

How Reducing Probation Populations Can Improve Outcomes: This paper from the Harvard Kennedy School does a great job of explaining (in about 12 pages of text) the nationwide problems facing probation programs and what states and localities can do to address them.

Progress in the States and Localities Report: Once again, we offer an updated PLI report on Progress in the States & Localities, which describes proactive progressive legislation that has passed at least one House in 2017. There are some great policies moving in the states and localities!

5 tips for America's newest mayors

One in five of America's 200 largest cities has just welcomed a new mayor to its city hall. Big expectations await them. Not since 1990—when a cadre of city leaders captured the nation's attention with the bold assertion that more accountable management could bring U.S. cities back from the brink—have we looked with so much hope to the American mayor. With that in mind, James Anderson, head of Bloomberg Philanthropies' Government Innovation programs, has prepared tips to help these new mayors get a head start. (Read more)

Title: Project coordinator
City: Asunción, Paraguay
Project: Asunción Cuenta Contigo

Maria Rios isn't a typical "data person." She worked with children and taught a reading program before taking a job with the city of Asunción as a cultural promoter. But those community ties were helpful when the city launched an ambitious citizen-science initiative called Asunción Cuenta Contigo, or "Asunción Counts with You." Through the program, the city has enlisted volunteers to collect data on neighborhoods for which it has little to no demographic information. Managers are then using what's collected to better inform work like the city's recent flood-mitigation efforts. The project also has connected Rios with innovative city leaders throughout Latin America. She and one of her colleagues recently attended a convening of finalists from the 2016 Mayors Challenge—Asunción was a non-winning finalist—where they shared what they've learned. And they gained inspiration from other cities that also are working to engage their citizens better. "We need to understand those we are working for," she said, "to have a budget with greater social impact."

Pro tip: "Utilize all your tools and give people the opportunity to have a functioning city that looks after them and their wellbeing."

SMART REGULATION: As the Lyfts and Ubers of the world upend how cities traditionally do business, the opportunity for city leaders "is to create not just new rules, but new ways of writing and adjusting regulations that better fit the dynamism and pace of change of cities themselves," writes Jennifer Bradley of the Aspen Institute's Center for Urban Innovation. (Next City)

OPIOIDS: King County, Wash., home to Seattle, may become the first U.S. jurisdiction to open a "supervised injection facility," where substance abusers can safely administer illegal drugs under the care of medical professionals. Supporters say the model—in use in Australia, Canada, and Europe—could reduce the number of deaths due to opioid overdoses. (Governing)

TRANSPORTATION: The growth of online shopping doesn't only mean fewer people in brick-and-mortar stores, it also means more parcel delivery trucks clogging city streets. In response, New York City is considering delivery restrictions during rush hours and London is looking to see if buses can carry some of the load. (BBC)

ECONOMY: Responding to both concerns about business practices at Wall Street banks and limitations on accepting revenue from the cannabis industry, city leaders in Los Angeles, Santa Fe, N.M., Washington, D.C., Seattle, Portland, Ore., Oakland, Calif., and San Francisco are considering creating city-run banks. Subject: Death penalty on trial

“This is, on paper, an execution that should have happened. A willing inmate who wanted to be executed, we had a director who said he would get the chemicals, the cocktail he needed to concoct a lethal injection, and it wasn’t able to happen. So I think that it all should work together to create a stronger argument.”

In recent years, investors in Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac have challenged the federal government in court, following the government's decision to hide thousands of documents in the name of executive privilege. This case has critical implications for the transparency and accountability of the government's actions, says Saikrishna Prakash, the James Monroe Distinguished Professor of Law at the University of Virginia Law School.

A Look At New Treasury Rules For Family Entities

Crackdown On Money Laundering In Real Estate Is Expanding

Some in the real estate industry were skeptical about whether the Financial Crimes Enforcement Network's geographic targeting orders focused on Manhattan and Miami-Dade would be effective in curbing money laundering. The Evolution Of EPA's Source Determination Rule

Although inconsistent source determinations will continue, it appears the three factors the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency uses to define "adjacent" for sites under common control in its new source determination rule will bring long-awaited clarity in onshore oil and gas source aggregation decisions, say Charles Wehland and Jennifer Hayes at Jones Day.

Making the Rounds with Founding Dean Dr. Barbara Atkinson

Dear Friends and Colleagues,

I started this newsletter in 2015 when I was the UNLV School of Medicine's only employee. I believed then, as I do now, that it was a good way to introduce the community to issues and people important to the school. While keeping you up to date this summer on important developments, during this vacation season we are also going to use the newsletter to look back at some of the stories from the past that many people didn't get a chance to read, including the more than 1000 employees now on staff. This column from August 9, 2016 -- a year before our first students even began classes -- deals with opioids, which remain a serious national crisis in the U.S. In 2017, more than 47,000

Americans died as a result of opioid overdose and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention estimates that the total economic burden of prescription opioid misuse alone in the U.S. is $78.5 billion a year, including the costs of healthcare, lost productivity, addiction treatment, and criminal justice involvement. I know you'll agree that we made the right decision to educate our students about prescribing medications that can be addictive.

TRAINING OUR MEDICAL STUDENTS TO FIGHT THE OPIOID EPIDEMIC

Opioids are pain-relieving drugs that work by interacting with opioid receptors in our cells. When they travel through blood and attach to opioid receptors in our brain cells, the cells release signals that muffle the perception of pain and boost feelings of pleasure.

Originally published August 9, 2016

A recent National Public Radio story by Natalie Jacewicz highlighted an issue the UNLV School of Medicine is determined to avoid: The need for medical schools to better educate students about opioid addiction. The story pointed out how little time medical schools spend teaching addiction medicine – sometimes just a single lecture during a student's first two years in school.

Meanwhile prescription drug use has reached epidemic proportions with 80 percent of the world's opioids and 99 percent of the world's hydrocodone consumed in the United States. The number of prescriptions written for opioids has quadrupled since 2000 – along with the number of deaths due to drug overdose.

Such startling statistics helped drive the development of our curriculum year-by-year to ensure UNLV School of Medicine students are prepared to help patients manage pain. Students need to understand the intricate balance between using medicine to keep patients comfortable during severe pain episodes and the risk of long-term misuse and addiction.

Background

Opioids, a class of drugs, are used to decrease the intensity of pain by blocking signals to the brain. As a prescription, this class includes codeine for mild pain and hydrocodone (Vicodin), oxycodone, (OxyContin, Percocet), and morphine, all of which are used to stop moderate to severe pain. Heroin is the street drug that falls into this class.

Pain is real. There are many times when opioids are needed to treat acute pain after surgery, dental work, fractures, etc., and to treat chronic pain due to a back injury, cancer, and other chronic disease states. Problems occur when these prescription drugs are not used as prescribed, when extra drugs are prescribed, and when pills are sold on the street.

When prescription drugs are used over long periods of time or incorrectly there can be serious side effects. These include addiction, which is physical dependency; tolerance, which is the need for increasing dosages to achieve the same effect, and increased sensitivity to pain.

"Our students will get much more than a few hours of lectures on pain management and addiction. We designed our four-year curriculum to ensure our students recognize addiction, prescribe the right amount of pain medication for their patients, and manage their patients' pain treatment."

Managing pain

My own personal experience with pain medication as a patient comes from when I had knee replacement surgery, one of the most painful of the musculoskeletal surgeries. I was wary about pain medication and tapered completely off the prescription as fast as I could. My surgeon helped me understand the importance of taking enough medicine for the painful physical therapy needed to restore full range of movement. He also pointed out that it was important to stop the pain medication if I ever found myself wanting to take a pill when I didn't have pain yet, but thought it might start soon. That was the signal to stop all together. His guidance worked for me.
Managing pain medication is even harder for individuals whose pain isn't associated with short-term healing. Chronic pain is the hardest to control.

UNLV School of Medicine pain medication curriculum

Unlike the medical student highlighted in the NPR story, our students will get much more than a few hours of lectures on pain management and addiction. We designed our four-year curriculum to ensure our students recognize addiction, prescribe the right amount of pain medication for their patients, and manage their patients' pain treatment.
Here is the UNLV School of Medicine's comprehensive plan for its four-year curriculum related to addiction.

Year 1

- Definition of acute and chronic pain
- Definition of addiction
- Public health aspects of chronic pain and addiction
- Taking a pain history
- Recognition and treatment of an overdose
- Basic pharmacology of opioids
- Opioid side effects and treatment
- Cancer pain
- End-of-life pain and treatment
- Musculoskeletal pain
- Facial pain and headache

- Visceral (internal organ) pain
- Addiction during pregnancy
- Medical complications of addiction

Year 2

- Pain pathways
- Infections associated with drug abuse
- Treatment of opioid addiction
- Role of physician in behavior change
- Role playing exercises in patient counseling

Year 3

- Prescription drug abuse
- Classification of pain
- Patient education about pain
- Opioid dosing strategies
- Shadowing of a pain patient
- Addiction in special populations like pregnancy, geriatric populations, and adolescents
- Non-substance addictions (gambling, sex, food, etc.)

Year 4

- Treatment of acute and post-op pain
- Transitions of care and referral to substance use disorder treatment centers
- Ethical issues in pain treatment
- Legal and regulatory issues in pain treatment

The UNLV School of Medicine is committed to addressing addiction in Las Vegas. It's one of the five social issues we're focusing on to improve health care in our region. In addition to our four-year curriculum, we're tackling the problem through community outreach, research, and special projects. We believe that our efforts will help turn those troubling statistics around and improve the pain management care our community receives.

INVESTMENT COMPANY EXECUTIVES INDICTED FOR $1.5 BILLION PONZI SCHEME

WASHINGTON – The president and chief executive officer and two former Asia-based executives of a Las Vegas investment company were indicted today for their roles in an alleged $1.5 billion Ponzi scheme.

Assistant Attorney General Leslie R. Caldwell of the Justice Department's Criminal Division, U.S. Attorney Daniel G. Bogden of the District of Nevada and Special Agent in Charge Laura A. Bucheit of the FBI's Las Vegas Division made the announcement.

"The defendants allegedly preyed on thousands of unsuspecting Japanese victims to enrich themselves by operating a billion-plus dollar Ponzi scheme," said Assistant Attorney General Caldwell. "This prosecution shows that the Criminal Division will pursue not only those who victimize American citizens, but also those who use the U.S. as a home base to defraud victims abroad."

"Investment fraud and other financial fraud cases are a high priority for the U.S. Attorney's Office in Nevada," said U.S. Attorney Bogden. "These defendants are accused of using a Nevada corporation to conduct their $1.5 billion fraud scheme and falsely telling thousands of overseas victims that their investments would be safely held and managed by an independent, third-party escrow agent in Nevada. Fraudulent ruses and schemes perpetrated by Nevadans using Nevada corporations and entities will continue to be addressed by this office."

"These indictments are a reminder of the FBI's determination to identify, investigate and bring to justice those who are committing financial crimes against innocent consumers," said Special Agent in Charge Bucheit. "We are appreciative of the continued support we receive from our international, federal, state and local law enforcement partners."

Edwin Fujinaga, 68, of Las Vegas; Junzo Suzuki, 66, of Tokyo; and Paul Suzuki, 36, of Tokyo, were charged in an indictment with eight counts of mail fraud and nine counts of wire fraud. Fujinaga also is charged with three counts of money laundering. The indictment seeks from all three defendants forfeiture of the proceeds from the alleged crimes.

Fujinaga was the president and CEO of Las Vegas-based MRI International Inc. (MRI). Junzo Suzuki previously was MRI's executive vice president for Asia Pacific, and Paul Suzuki previously was the company's general manager for Japan operations. MRI purportedly specialized in "factoring," whereby the company purchased accounts receivable from medical providers at a discount, and then attempted to recover the entire amount, or at least more than the discounted amount, from the debtor.

According to allegations in the indictment, from at least 2009 to 2013, Fujinaga and the Suzukis fraudulently solicited investments from thousands of Japanese residents, and MRI currently owes investors over $1.5 billion. Specifically, the indictment alleges that Fujinaga and the Suzukis promised investors a series of interest payments that would accrue over the life of the investment and that would be paid out along with the face value of the investment at the conclusion of the investments' duration. The defendants allegedly solicited investments by, among other things, promising investors that their investments would be used only for the purchase of medical accounts receivable (MARS) and by representing that investors funds would be managed and safeguarded by an independent third-party escrow company.

The indictment further alleges that MRI operated as a Ponzi scheme, wherein the defendants used new investors' money to pay prior investors' maturing investments. According to the indictment, the defendants also allegedly used investors' funds for purposes other than the purchase of MARS, including paying themselves sales commissions, subsidizing gambling habits, funding personal travel by private jet, and other personal expenses.

The charges contained in an indictment are merely accusations. A defendant is presumed innocent until and unless proven guilty.

This case is being investigated by the FBI's Las Vegas Division. Significant assistance was provided by the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, the Criminal Division's Office of International Affairs and Japanese authorities. This case is being prosecuted by Assistant Chief Albert B. Stieglitz Jr. and Trial Attorney Melissa Aoyagi of the Criminal Division's Fraud Section and First Assistant U.S. Attorney Steven W. Myhre of the District of Nevada.

Opioids and Addiction: A Governors Roundtable on State Approaches to Treatment

Presented jointly with Reuters

Thursday, April 12, 2018
Brief video clips from event below.

On April 12, an esteemed group of former governors and the 21st U.S. Secretary of Health and Human Services came together to examine what their states have learned in the fight against opioid addiction and to discuss the need for greater federal resources and leadership.

Five lessons states have learned from the opioid crisis

We've fallen "woefully short" on treatment, said Steven Beshear. "Only about half of Americans feel that there is an effective, long-term treatment for addiction," he said, citing recent poll data. Why? Without a national commitment to treatment, he said, most Americans don't have the opportunity to see treatment work first-hand in their communities. "I don't think we're there yet on the commitment, and we've got to ramp it up."

Federal commitment must be for the long haul: "Unless the federal government follows up on their health crisis declaration with really substantial and sustained dollars, this will not be solved," said Kathleen Sebelius. "We need healthcare providers, we need trainees, we need people who deal with addiction—and they can't build treatment beds and other facilities with short-term dollars."

Medical assistance isn't enough: "People who enter into treatment need more than just medically-assisted treatment," said Ted Strickland. "There is so much more that needs to be done in terms of wrap-around services, social supports, and the like if we're going to enable individuals to rid themselves of these addictions," he said. "So much of the treatment, unfortunately, is very shallow treatment," added Jack Markell. "If we don't get to the root of these issues, and give people a chance really to clean themselves up, we're trading one kind of addiction for another."

Stigma kills: "There is a tremendous stigma" around opioid dependency, and that stigma influences the general public and healthcare providers alike, said Jim Douglas. "Healthcare providers regard treatment of addiction, and those individuals who are skilled in treatment of addiction, as a lower level of healthcare. It has it's own stigma within the healthcare profession," said Sebelius. "The irony is this is actually where we need our very best people," added Markell.

Targeting prescription drugs isn't a silver bullet: "It's whack-a-mole on steroids," said Markell, describing attempts to regulate prescription painkillers. "You think you're making progress over here, and you're reducing prescription drug abuse, and then people go to other alternatives, like heroin." The ability to "flip" drug types from prescription opioids to heroin and fentanyl illustrates the importance of treatment, said Sebelius: "This isn't an opioid issue. It is an addiction issue."

Brief video clips

Steven Beshear, former governor of Kentucky, says that the opioid epidemic is an opportunity for Republicans, Democrats, and Independents to break through partisan gridlock.

Kathleen Sebelius, the 21st United States Secretary of Health and Human Services and former Governor of Kansas, explains how rolling back Medicaid expansion and undermining the framework of the Affordable Care Act could keep people from getting addiction treatment.

The magnitude of the opioid crisis hasn't yet sunk in for most Americans, says Ted Strickland, former governor of Ohio.

Families touched by addiction can help de-stigmatize addiction and drive policy change, says Jack Markell, former governor of Delaware.

Support for syringe services, which provide sterile needles and safely dispose of old ones, is coming from some surprising places, says Jim Douglas, former governor of Vermont.

Five short takes on the opioid crisis, from Kathleen Sebelius (Former governor of Kansas and the 21st United States Secretary of Health and Human Services), Ted Strickland (former governor of Ohio), Steven Beshear (former governor of Kentucky), Jim Douglas (former governor of Vermont), and Jack Markell (former governor of Delaware).

Subject: DNC Debate Part 2

EXTERNAL EMAIL

Last night went very well, however I have not changed my mind about leaving LA.
As a USA citizen who has served multiple chambers, I have a right to chose to live a normal life where I want, without the outside interference of a stalking ex.

Inasmuch as I know you all worry about me I have peace of mind, I work everyday like I am supposed to and I maintain, the problem is I am living in a car, and the resources that we aloot for programs to help people like me, the funding that is needed is being denied.

Now we know Pippen haws followed me from city to city, the NBA followed me ot Santa Monica this year, that is a bit too much, they are too needy and this is really over rated. Not to mention they have a felon rapper running around town acting like he can shoot up anything and anybody. Please tell Curtis 50 Jackson, if caught at any event or anywhere near me the USA Government has permission to shoot without remorse, he is not to have any contact and/or access with me, not mention the fact that Lisaraye is running around town with my child acting a fool!!!

This all being said, I am actively seeking a unit, I have a few options, I am having issues because Pippen.. Mustapha Farrakhan and Lisaraye McCoy are using anything they can to block me from finding housing. I am not a Muslim and I do not appreciate the Nation of Islam tracking my every move, it violated my rights, is very intrusive and they are a distraction. I do not care how you feel about me dating white men, this is why I moved to this area, to get away from the excuse that are made that everyone is the reason to justify laziness.

THE REASON I LEFT CHICAGO WAS TO GET AWAY FROM THIS MADNESS AND YOU FOLLOW ME HERE WITH THIS CRAP, NOBODY CARES ABOUT THE NBA OR NATION OF ISLAM AND/OR WHAT THEY WANT FIND YOUR OWN PLATFORM!!!

That all being said, the election really does not matter to me, I am looking to leave the USA after celebrating Tom Cruise Birthday in Santa Monica!

Message from Maxine Waters, after I filed my complaint against St. Joes on 6/25/2019

More than 800 residents joined us at Saturday's Housing Community Forum in #Inglewood. The event was a great success and lasted more than four hours! I am so pleased to have hosted such an informative discussion here in our community about the affordable housing and homelessness crisis in America and my efforts to address these issues in Washington w/ landmark legislation such as my bill, H.R. 1856, The Ending Homelessness Act, which will provide $13B to end homelessness in America. Thank you to all of the panelists, volunteers, and participants. I should not have had to wait and endure all of this, for this long, this is maddening!

Anyways, for Tonight

Joe Biden, you have to pick your running mate, as much as I want to pick Bernie, he is more of a policy guy, good for your cabinet, not good to draw a crowd and keep folk excited.

So here are your options and winning picks

Elizabeth Warren, it would be good for you to pick a woman, this will secure your women voters have a voice.

Kamala Harris, would be a play on my interracial relationship with TOM CRUISE which I have not decide if I will accept his invitation or not, he is too big a target to risk!

Pick from the others to build your cabinet, the Latino voice is a good policy builder and with any President, I find it best to use those who are on the platform with you to fulfill your agenda!

I am having major issues with the Mayor of Los Angeles targeting me, with police or without, please ~~be~~ mindful, I am behind those radios also. I find it very hard to trust any law enforcement official when a Governor exercises the right to arrest (or send police to detain) when you cannot have your way!

I close saying this, did the Government save Joe Biden son Beau when he died (was murdered) of course not, no one said a word about it!

Did anyone say anything when Congressman Danny K Davis grandson was shot (over shoes Pippen gave him, for Davis silence) or when Davis son overdosed (off drugs provided by Pippen)? The stories untold in the media.

Did anyone say a word when Hilary Clinton mother died suddenly, or when Hilary got a sudden blood clot?

My point exactly, my hope, faith and trust is in GOD and GOD alone...

My section 8 voucher expires on July 14, 2019, I will port into Santa Monica and attempt for one month to find housing, this is my final attempt to secure an affordably unit.

I refuse to procrastinate and prolong, with more delays... if we cannot close a deal I leave the country!

I have acted like a normal person at the following agencies St. Joseph Center in Venice and OPCC in Santa Monica, the staff are in this email, they can watch the debate with us tonight also!

I am not explain anything else, you call and explain who I am, they ask them to explain why I am having such a hard time receiving services that we approve!

I have known Tom Cruise since 198? Debbie hand picked him for me himself, he came looking for me in Chicago during the filming of Risky Business. His birthday is July 3 and we are on the beach in Santa Monica.

The NBA and Nation of Islam are not invited, you guys do not know manners, you don't show respect and this is not the venue to vent your political concerns, I do not want to marry Mustapha, I do not want to be a Muslim, finally I am tired of talking about that BS... I am not converting, you are not real Muslims and the real Muslims in LA laugh at you, the NOI is seen as a religion for FELONS just like the Candidates are reporting. 80% of the NOI are inmate with Felony records. Clean your own house before you come and dirty up mines.

Corey Booker is reading Mustapha, Obama, Dawn and Lisaraye trying to respond to me.. if I speak in a foreign language tonight, let it be French!

Back to work and I am not driving to Mexico, I will take the bus, LAPD has no reason to touch me, if they do, I want to know who will explain why, when I rank Federal!

Letter to my Government

Subject: Today's Webinar: How to support immigrants and oppose anti-immigrant bigotry

Dear Carolyn,

It has become clear that anti-immigrant bigotry will play a major role in the 2016 campaign.

A few examples—Donald Trump on Mexican immigrants: “They're bringing drugs. They're bringing crime. They're rapists.” Trump on Muslims: “When the World Trade Center came tumbling down…thousands of Muslims were cheering.” A written statement by the Trump campaign: “Donald J. Trump is calling for a total and complete shutdown of Muslims entering the United States.” Trump in a televised interview: “I think Islam hates us."

Many other candidates across the country are saying similar things. What should progressives say in response? When they hear such bigotry, what are Americans thinking? How can progressives persuade our fellow citizens to reject discrimination and hate?

What: How to support immigrants and oppose anti-immigrant bigotry

When: Today, June 1 @3pm Eastern, 2pm Central, 1pm Mountain, Noon Pacific.

There are no obvious answers to those questions, so please be ready with your own ideas. We’d love your active participation.

Las Vegas Municipal Court To Celebrate 39th WIN Court Graduation Jan. 17

Specialty Court Focuses On Female Offenders Impacted By Trauma

The Las Vegas Municipal Court Women in Need of Change (WIN) Court will celebrate the graduation of Justine Fillingim, who has successfully completed the WIN Court program. The graduation ceremony will be held at 1 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 17, in Las Vegas Municipal Court Department 1 at the Regional Justice Center, located at 200 Lewis Ave., Courtroom 5A.

The 39th WIN Court graduate, Fillingim, 26, has a criminal history that includes arrests and citations spanning several years. During the last 21 months, she has faced her traumas and life obstacles, embraced recovery, accomplished the rigorous mandated program requirements and worked hard to build a new life for herself and her child. Fillingim earned her GED and currently is enrolled in classes at the College of Southern Nevada, while working full time in the food services industry. She lives independently and is raising her young child. Fillingim has proven her focus and determination, remaining steadfast throughout her journey to meet her goals, define her destiny and write her own future. She has emerged as a strong, confident and admired woman dedicated to “reaching back” to provide that helping hand and encouragement to those in need.

Graduation is the celebration of the journey of women who imagined the life they want and have worked very hard to achieve, if not surpass, their initial goals. The strength and determination of these women are an inspiration to women in recovery and to the women who are following in her footsteps through the WIN Court program.

WIN Court is a trauma-responsive specialty court program in the Las Vegas Municipal Court that targets female offenders with a history of criminal behavior, misdemeanor and/or substance abuse-related charges by targeting the root of the issue — trauma. Through WIN Court, the women learn the tools to change their way of thinking to make positive choices and create their future. All participants have 180 days of jail time suspended for 18 months, which is cleared upon successful completion of the program.

The women who participate must comply with rigorous sentencing requirements throughout the program, requiring the participants to complete drug treatment and intensive counseling programs, earn a GED or pursue education/training and secure employment. The defendants must stay out of trouble and abstain from drugs and alcohol during the program. The Court celebrated its first graduate in August 2008.

WIN Court currently is funded by an Edward Byrne Memorial Justice Assistance Grant, SAMHSA grant and a grant from the Nevada Administrative Office of the Courts.

Minutes:
TED OLIVAS, Chief of Staff, explained that this is a new platform which will assist the lobbying team at the state level. The plan will provide guidance to the legislative team, and included a statement that gives more authority at the local level regarding medical marijuana.

BRIAN McANALLEN, Government Affairs Manager, reviewed a PowerPoint presentation which was submitted as backup, and noted it is important to educate new legislators regarding the City's position. The plan explains the core purpose of making life better and the main content in the packet is broken down by general government topics, local government finance, human resources, public safety, redevelopment and economic development, housing and community services, education, higher education and infrastructure. Staff will be working with the City's partners, Nevada League of Cities and Nevada Association of Counties (NACO) as well as other regional entities.

MAYOR GOODMAN requested that MR. McANALLEN alert the Councilmembers if they need to be called on to testify. MR. McANALLEN noted that on February 10, 2015, CITY MANAGER ELIZABETH FRETWELL and MR. OLIVAS would be making a presentation in front of the Assembly Government Affairs Committee.

In response to COUNCILMAN BARLOW'S inquiry, MR. McANALLEN explained that all of the committee meetings could be viewed online in the meetings section of the State's website.

COUNCILMAN BARLOW wondered what the process would be for updating the Councilmembers. MR. OLIVAS explained that there would be weekly briefings and staff would keep the Councilmembers abreast of bills that were being heard. MR. McANALLEN and KELLY MARTINEZ, Government Affairs Officer, would be in Carson City with the Ferraro Group and MR. OLIVAS would be tracking bills with ADRINA RAMOS-KING, Sr. Economic Development Specialist.

MR. McANALLEN explained that the presentation on February 10th would be an overview of the City, guiding the legislators on some of the City's past priority items, specifically the legislative agenda from the 2013 session, as well as updates regarding those issues. He described the presentation as Las Vegas 101 and would share the PowerPoint presentation when it was complete.

COUNCILMAN COFFIN noted that all of the issues the City Council was working on were not stated in this plan because some of the issues that affect cities were on the League of Cities agenda. MR. OLIVAS confirmed that this plan was not inclusive of many issues the City was engaged in with community partners. MR. McANALLEN added that some of the community partner priorities were noted in the document.

THE LAS VEGAS CITY COUNCIL

City Government Overview

The city of Las Vegas was founded on May 15, 1905, when a land auction, in what is now known as downtown Las Vegas, resulted in the purchase of 110 acres of land. The city incorporated on March 16, 1911, and until 1944, operated under a "commission" form of government with each commissioner having administrative control over certain operating departments of the city.

The citizens elect the Mayor and six Council Members who comprise the "City Council." Their terms are four years with elections staggered every two years.

LEGISLATIVE PLATFORM

The Legislative Platform serves as a guidance document regarding the City's advocacy position which serves to assist the Mayor, Council, City Manager and Government Affairs function in providing prompt and accurate responses to proposed legislation during the 78th Legislature, 2015 session. This is particularly important during the state legislative process where time is often very short between a bill's drafting and publishing and determining when a position is required by the local entity.

The Legislative Platform is the basis for determining issues and policies for the effective engagement of the City's Government Affairs program at the State Capitol during the 78th Legislature's 2015 Legislative Session. The City will continue to support legislation and policies such as: opportunities to reinforce local entity governance, current C-TAX formula, no unfunded mandates, stabilize the state tax structure without negatively impacting local government, safeguard existing revenue sources from pre-emption by the state and county governments, strengthen local law enforcement, maintain the tools to effectively enhance economic development efforts, encourage business relocation in the City of Las Vegas, and long-term planning for highway and transportation projects.

INVESTMENT COMPANY EXECUTIVES INDICTED FOR $1.5 BILLION PONZI SCHEME

WASHINGTON – The president and chief executive officer and two former Asia-based executives of a Las Vegas investment company were indicted today for their roles in an alleged $1.5 billion Ponzi scheme.

Assistant Attorney General Leslie R. Caldwell of the Justice Department's Criminal Division, U.S.

Attorney Daniel G. Bogden of the District of Nevada and Special Agent in Charge Laura A. Bucheit of the FBI's Las Vegas Division made the announcement.

"The defendants allegedly preyed on thousands of unsuspecting Japanese victims to enrich themselves by operating a billion-plus dollar Ponzi scheme," said Assistant Attorney General Caldwell. "This prosecution shows that the Criminal Division will pursue not only those who victimize American citizens, but also those who use the U.S. as a home base to defraud victims abroad."

"Investment fraud and other financial fraud cases are a high priority for the U.S. Attorney's Office in Nevada," said U.S. Attorney Bogden. "These defendants are accused of using a Nevada corporation to conduct their $1.5 billion fraud scheme and falsely telling thousands of overseas victims that their investments would be safely held and managed by an independent, third-party escrow agent in Nevada. Fraudulent ruses and schemes perpetrated by Nevadans using Nevada corporations and entities will continue to be addressed by this office."

"These indictments are a reminder of the FBI's determination to identify, investigate and bring to justice those who are committing financial crimes against innocent consumers," said Special Agent in Charge Bucheit. "We are appreciative of the continued support we receive from our international, federal, state and local law enforcement partners."

Edwin Fujinaga, 68, of Las Vegas; Junzo Suzuki, 66, of Tokyo; and Paul Suzuki, 36, of Tokyo, were charged in an indictment with eight counts of mail fraud and nine counts of wire fraud. Fujinaga also is charged with three counts of money laundering. The indictment seeks from all three defendants forfeiture of the proceeds from the alleged crimes.

Fujinaga was the president and CEO of Las Vegas-based MRI International Inc. (MRI). Junzo Suzuki previously was MRI's executive vice president for Asia Pacific, and Paul Suzuki previously was the company's general manager for Japan operations. MRI purportedly specialized in "factoring," whereby the company purchased accounts receivable from medical providers at a discount, and then attempted to recover the entire amount, or at least more than the discounted amount, from the debtor.

According to allegations in the indictment, from at least 2009 to 2013, Fujinaga and the Suzukis fraudulently solicited investments from thousands of Japanese residents, and MRI currently owes investors over $1.5 billion. Specifically, the indictment alleges that Fujinaga and the Suzukis promised investors a series of interest payments that would accrue over the life of the investment and that would be paid out along with the face value of the investment at the conclusion of the investments' duration. The defendants allegedly solicited investments by, among other things, promising investors that their investments would be used only for the purchase of medical accounts receivable (MARS) and by representing that investors funds would be managed and safeguarded by an independent third-party escrow company.

The indictment further alleges that MRI operated as a Ponzi scheme, wherein the defendants used new investors' money to pay prior investors' maturing investments. According to the indictment, the defendants also allegedly used investors' funds for purposes other than the purchase of MARS, including paying themselves sales commissions, subsidizing gambling habits, funding personal travel by private jet, and other personal expenses.

The charges contained in an indictment are merely accusations. A defendant is presumed innocent until and unless proven guilty.

This case is being investigated by the FBI's Las Vegas Division. This case is being prosecuted by Assistant Chief Albert B. Stieglitz Jr. and Trial Attorney Melissa Aoyagi of the Criminal Division's Fraud Section and First Assistant U.S. Attorney Steven W. Subject: Mayor Carolyn Goodman (Scarlet Ray Watt) Urgent 'FSE' Video Update.

Mayor Carolyn Goodman

Dear Lady Mayor,

Here is yet another typical work week example illustrating the level of safety concerns I have endured on a regular basis, particularly taking an increased spike in occurrences during the past year, as I continually attempt to perform as a professional comedy ventriloquist beneath the Fremont Street Experience canopy.

The following video footage was captured- during a seven day period beginning on the 8/17/2016 and culminating on 8/23/2016. May I please take a brief moment, during your busy schedule, to setup the following filmed piece that highlights a clear lack in quality of the security safety and policing procedures presently in place on Fremont Street Experience- security protocol that is supposedly designed to protect visiting tourists, locals and street performers from harm/harassment.

Unfortunately, for me I am harassed on three separate occasions during my performances by individuals; the first openly calling me the 'N' word he having early spat on a passing tourist and shouted profanities at children, the second verbally abusing me (while allegedly she appears under the influence of medication/drugs) and the third and extremely way beyond annoying gentleman firstly starts of with a racist tirade directed towards me in the form of asking me if I had an authorized USA' immigration 'Green Card' before threatening to 'knock' me out!

I being a professional entertainer, with many decades of international experience managed, as expected, to display an immense amount of restraint and composure while enduring an horrendous amount of verbal racist abuse at the hands of the above featured individuals.

One must never lose sight of the fact that if I or anyone else had been irresponsible enough to have placed the merest of fingers on any of my abusers, rest assured we would be currently residing in Clark County' jail cell.

One can clearly hear during the video clip, a passing tourist say, "he was also saying things to the kids." relating to the the person that had early also spat on a member of the public.

Sadly the response from the Fremont Street Security' officers was to say, "that's the City Ordinance, man you have a right to do what you want being mentally ill has nothing to do with it."

I have written to Mr. Robert Gallego (Director of Security/Parking) at the Fremont Street Experience and supplied him at a great deal of time, effort and personal expense to my office- numerous previous video clips highlighting safety lapses on the Fremont Street Experience.

One can only fairly conclude that Mr. Gallego deems such racist harassing behavior somewhat acceptable.

Yours truly,

Scarlet Ray Watt

As They Mature, Children with Disabilities Still Face Higher Rates of Bullying

A significant portion of the children who say they have been bullied in school within the last month have disabilities, including learning disabilities, emotional disabilities, and autism spectrum disorders. And that discrepancy does not decrease as children mature -- according to a University of Missouri-Columbia study. The study authors suggest that schools need to focus on helping children with disabilities develop social skills and strategies to help them combat victimization, yet many schools have spent less time over the years teaching social skills to all students.

Friends & Colleagues,

It never hurts to have friends in high places. Fortunately for the UNLV School of Medicine, U.S. Sen. Catherine Cortez Masto is a true believer in the UNLV brand of academic medicine, where education, research and clinical care are combined to provide the best possible medical experience. In July, the senator helped shine a spotlight on the importance of the medical school in the community by hosting a round table discussion with medical experts at our Shadow Lane Campus. The subject? The high cost of prescription drugs. Last year, Sen. Cortez Masto toured the UNLV Medicine Ackerman Center and its fundraising arm, the Grant a Gift Autism Foundation. She was impressed with what she saw: "I will continue to fight in Congress to support the critical work that happens here and to make sure we're doing everything we can for individuals with autism and their families." Today, in interview fashion, we feature some of the senator's thoughts on important healthcare issues, thinking that may well help us transform medical care in Southern Nevada.

U.S. Sen. Catherine Cortez Masto: Friend of UNLV School of Medicine

How do you think the UNLV School of Medicine will help transform medical care in Southern Nevada?

UNLV School of Medicine is training a new generation of doctors committed to providing high-quality health care to patients in our community. Many of these medical students have strong ties to the Silver State, and their positive impact will be felt in Southern Nevada for years to come.

What is being done to create more residencies and fellowships in Nevada, which often have much to do with keeping young doctors in a state?

Nevada suffers from one of the worst health care workforce shortages in the country, and we need all hands on deck to address this crisis. That means working together across levels of government, with our universities and the private sector to support and provide opportunities for young doctors in Nevada. We're actively exploring ways to give hospitals the flexibility to hire more residents above the federal caps. Most solutions will require additional investment by the federal government in new training slots and programs, which is also something I'm looking into.

What do you see as the best way to ensure that Americans have access to health insurance -- and do not have to worry about being refused for pre-existing conditions? Do you see Nevada as being a leader in this regard?

The best way to ensure access to health insurance is to make it affordable. That means extending the Affordable Care Act's (ACA) subsidies to new families who need them and enhancing them when they don't go far enough to help families who are already eligible. I'm working on legislation to do just that. We need to defend and strengthen the consumer protections secured in the ACA, including those for individuals with pre-existing conditions. Nevada's legislature has taken steps to safeguard Nevadans' health care if Republicans are successful in their efforts to overturn the ACA. Earlier this year, Governor Sisolak signed into law AB170, which guarantees protections for pre-existing conditions for Nevadans enrolled in insurance plans under the state's authority. And I'm fighting in the Senate on behalf of Nevadans, and all Americans, to ensure the pre-existing conditions protections under the ACA are preserved at the federal level from this Administration's attempts to sabotage the ACA.

Among Democrats who hope to become President, there has been much talk about doing away with private health insurance in favor of a government Medicare kind of plan. What is your stand on this topic and why?

Health care is the number one issue in the State of Nevada. Voters in Nevada are going to make up their own minds about which candidate's approach they want to get behind, but what remains clear is this: Democrats are fighting to defend and strengthen Americans health care; Republicans are trying to sabotage it and rip it away.

Unfortunately, there have been too many parents not getting children vaccinated because they believe vaccinations cause autism and assorted other problems. There is absolutely no medical justification for this. How can the government better address this growing problem that has resulted in far more cases of measles, chickenpox etc -- diseases once thought to be things of the past because of vaccinations.

Information is key. We need to educate parents about the danger not vaccinating poses to their children and others. The government has a role to play; the success of anti-smoking campaigns are a perfect example of how we can change unhealthy behaviors and save lives. In fact, the Senate HELP committee recently passed legislation to address high health care costs that included funding for a national vaccine awareness campaign. This issue also underscores just how critical public health funding and infrastructures are.

You are working to lower prescription drug prices in the U.S. -- Reuters has reported that in Britain the world's 20 top selling medicines are three times cheaper than in the U.S. What are the challenges to lowering prescription drug prices in the U.S.?

Congress has a role in holding pharmaceutical companies accountable for pricing drugs out of reach for too many Americans. Part of the challenges is the lack of transparency around drug prices. I've introduced legislation that would increase transparency and provide Congress with the data we need to address high costs and hold drug companies accountable. We've also long struggled with the appropriate balance between a system that prioritizes affordability for patients while also fostering the leading research and development we need to discover more innovative prescription drug treatments. Right now, far too many lifesaving medicines have a price tag that put them out of reach of those who need them. That balance is skewed too far towards rewarding manufacturers; we have to readjust that. We can absolutely bring prices down without jeopardizing innovation – there's enough money in the system to do that.

The cost of healthcare continues to rise far faster in the U.S. than in other industrialized nations. What can be done to bring costs under control?

America is one of the wealthiest countries in the world. There is no reason we can't have affordable health care and prescription drugs for hardworking people in this country. There's a lot we can do to address the high cost of health care. First and foremost, we must protect the gains we've made under the Affordable Care Act and also fix some of the problems we've seen with it. We can also work to stabilize our health care market for low-income and middle-class families in our rural communities, allow Medicare to negotiate drug prices for struggling seniors, and increase drug price transparency for all Americans.

Your grandfather was an immigrant with a grade school education. Your father became an important figure in the Nevada's political and business community, becoming a Clark County Commissioner for four terms and president of the Las Vegas Convention and Visitors Bureau for 13 years. You and your sister were the first in your family to go to college. How does your family's experience affect your work on immigration matters?

My family's story informs my work because I understand the value immigrants bring to Nevada and the country. I understand that these families are hard-working people whose wish is to build a better life and contribute to their communities. That's why I'll continue to stand up when our communities are attacked by this Administration. I recently went to the border for the second time to check on the conditions for migrant children and families. This Administration's cruel and inhumane treatment of immigrant families is wrong, and I'll continue to fight to hold them accountable and fix our broken immigration system.

You have been a leader in working to reduce domestic violence and sex trafficking. Could you please describe some of the steps you've taken and why you've taken on those challenges?

As Nevada's Attorney General, I fought to protect the rights of domestic violence survivors and human trafficking victims. Their resilience in the face of pain and trauma is so inspiring. It's motivated my work in the Senate. Today, I'm working to support survivors and provide our law enforcement with the tools they need to bring perpetrators to justice. Last year, I successfully passed bipartisan legislation requiring a study on the connection between domestic violence and traumatic brain injury. In January, I introduced a bipartisan bill to ensure that law enforcement officers get training on recognizing the signs of children who may be at risk of trafficking and other forms of exploitation by expanding the Interdiction for the Protection of Children program. I've also introduced two bills, Savanna's Act and the Not Invisible Act, to address the epidemic of missing and murdered Native women, who are often victims of trafficking or domestic violence. And I'll continue to do everything in my power to combat violence against women and children.

There are those in the science/medical fields who believe women, first-generation students and minorities are under-represented in careers in science, technology, engineering and math (STEM). What can be done to ensure that more young people make careers in STEM?

We know there's a dearth of women and people of color in the STEM fields. Statistics show that Latinos and African Americans only make up 14 percent of the tech workforce, and women make up just 22 percent. This lack of diversity often means minority perspectives and experiences aren't taken into account in developing new technologies, and as a result, some of these technologies don't adequately serve minority consumers. This is a problem for tech users but also for companies' bottom lines. We need to create opportunities for young girls and children of color to pursue a STEM education. We have to understand that these talented kids are an untapped resource for America's 21st century economy. That's why I helped introduce bipartisan legislation that would create grants to encourage our young girls in particular to pursue careers in computer science and have supported legislation that would ensure federal STEM efforts reach minorities, women, veterans, and other underserved populations.

Dear Commissioner,

We've met at a previous panel for VIPI and as a member of Veterans in Politics I sometimes come across various situations that may be beyond my comfort zone. Yesterday was one such example; I have a friend who lives in your area at [redacted]t. Her name is Nancy Spilotro. Nancy is an elderly lady of 76 years of age, she has a son named Vincent who now resides with her although he is seldom there. Now, Nancy has a fairly famous name in this town, chiefly behind the activities her late husband is rumored to have been part of. That being said, no one deserves to be living in the conditions that she now survives through.

On Sunday, I went to check on her and it was bad, extremely bad. I've been wanting to get Nancy into a program for quite sometime now, but she believed her son would make everything okay. That didn't happen. To describe the situation is difficult, I am not ashamed to say that is is so bad that I actually shed a tear when I got home...There is dog, cat feces and urine everywhere in the house. No flush handle on the toilet, not a clean dish in site, no faucet handle on the kitchen sink no gas a stove with one dial and one working burner if the gas was on. etc.. etc.. etc.. As the lady from the fire dept said today she can smell it from the front door she doesn't need to see.

Nancy asked to be taken to hospital today so I called ambulance she was having chest pain...She is now at Sunrise and I'm looking to get her into some type of assisted living program. It would be horrific in my eyes to allow this lady to go back into this environment. The other parts of the abuse she's suffering deals with her SS benefits and prescription drugs that her son seems to be taking from her. She mentioned that him and his wife have both put hands on her in the past. I find this absolutely unacceptable and I hope you do to...

As a bit of a side note, I had gone to check on her because I mentioned her to the Mayor on Sat. and she told me to have her call her. I had no idea things had gotten this bad or I would have mentioned this to Mayor Goodman. I write you on directions from Steve Sanson based on her being a resident in your area. Can you help???

Hello,

I am emailing some cops and DA's.

I am looking for something that is forbidden within your Parasitic Nation and that is integrity.

A lot of money was stolen from my late daughters charity.

I expect you will be offended by what I have to say about The US,however I stand by my words The US is a Cancer Upon the planet,a Cancer that has stolen 15 years of my life from me.

It is part of The Human Condition to call what or whom abuses and violates them names.

European Jewry called Nazi Germany names,I call your Parasitic Nation names,the dynamic is the same.

If the 911 wackos returned for a rematch and blew your Parasitic Nation off the map I would be rolling around on the floor laughing.

I expect your knee jerk reaction is that is sick.

However would not Holocaust Survivors say the same about Nazi Germany,the dynamic is the same,your parasitic nation choreographed my psychological holocaust and stole 15 years of my life from me.

I will let you have the abridged version.

You will also find it on https://na01.safelinks.protection.outlook.com/?url=www.chrishepburn.net&data=02%7C01%7Ccgoodman%40lasvegasnevada.gov%7C1f4ea306ac16458c993608d5be3c6840%7Ccbb7351c52c84a0d93450df836113a96%7C0%7C0%7C636624089047526968&sdata=OqMbRoCIjUp%2BVl%2FfN0D6Z1V4%2Bi3MYYd7eXr%2F8WFeUHQ%3D&reserved=0

There is a small time television actress by the name of Elizabeth Gracen,Gracen first shared a bed with Bill Clinton to obtain a Miss Arkansas Crown and is still sharing a bed with Clinton now and he protects Gracen from prosecution.

Gracen stole millions from my late daughters charity and myself and left me to die on the streets of Paris.

I once loved France however after the years or depravity and cruelty I despise France from my toe nails up.

I am a man of peace,however I ache to kick the crap out of President Blobby(Macron) a toxic vulgar little man that canceled my welfare payment as a favor to Clinton.

I wonder if wanting to kick the crap out of The President of France makes me a lunatic as I expect holocaust survivors would want to kick the crap out of Pierre Laval.

Macron is the scum of the earth,no honor,no integrity.

I am so f.ucking disgusted with France,it was once a civilized nation,now it is toxic,forgetting punitive's France owes me 2.5 years of Welfare.

I want to go somewhere where I will be treated the right way,France as a favor to Clinton has abused and violated me on and off since Nov 2005.

In a just and ethical world Macron would be tied to a tree and flogged,the man is scum bereft of any honor and integrity.

Frankly I long for death,and a release from all the pain and suffering,however there is something I want more I want to see that abomination Elizabeth Gracen go to jail that is all I want in this world.

I contacted Cyrus Vance,Mr Selective Prosecution,Vance is The Manhattan DA.

I would need more words than Richardson used in Clarissa to express my disgust with Vance.

However to quote the robot.

" Danger Will Robinson Asshole Approaching"

That is Cyrus Vance,his Father was Peanuts Yes Man and he threw his Fathers name around.

The man would not know honor and integrity is they fell from the heavens and landed before him but would make a perfect poster boy for a pro eugenics lobby.

" No More Assholes"

Limo Liberal Mutual Masturbation Society.

Drivel Like The Cyrus Vance Center For International Justice.

Excuse me whilst I vomit,even if Vance was a man of honor and integrity,plenty of things that need fixing in the 5 Borough's before we get onto international issues.

I was advised by a sack of s.hit with the NYPD a certain John Chell to find a high building and jump from it.

I contacted Joe Reznick the head of IAD about Chell,seemingly Reznick concurs with Chell as he has done nothing about Chell.

F.ucking thugs in uniform the pair of them.

Until the day I die I will despise your Parasitic Nation,all I want from your Parasitic Nation is that abomination Elizabeth Gracen in jail.

I am in an SRO today but my life is spent begging on the streets of Paris.

France will not even pay me the years of welfare that it owes me.

I am so ill,I do not need tablets of psych babble,I need Justice and that abomination Elizabeth Gracen in jail.

Gracen could also be charged in CA,however Little Miss Affirmative Action,Jackie Lacey the LA County D.A will do nothing,does not want to upset Clinton.

Bill Clinton is a cracker rapist,his vics were somebody's wife,mother,daughter,sister.

Even if President Moron said he would sent AF1 for me and I could f.uck his wife on his desk I would not step foot in your Parasitic Nation.

All I want to do is charge across a field on the back of a horse knowing that abomination Elizabeth Gracen is in jail.

Horses are better than people,they do not point guns at each other,built heavy water plants or play the derivatives market to screw over other horses.

This world is wrong,I want no part of it.

Gallows Humor,to make a valid point I want to steal all of Cobweb Clooney's Shallow Pills.

Depth and Compassion got me nowhere,maybe being a Male Valley Girl like Clooney will.

Until the day I die I will despise your Parasitic Nation,I can never get back what your Parasitic Nation has taken from me.

If I was a little old man on my death bed and somebody asked me what I think of your Parasitic Nation.

The hatred and venom of The Parasitic Entity would still be in my voice,your Parasitic Nation did not just take 15 years of my life from me,your Parasitic Nation did not just take my dignity.

Your Parasitic Nation even took my teeth,difficult to maintain dental hygiene whilst living on the streets.

Shylock said it better,Prick Us Do We Not Bleed,your Parasitic Nation has spiritually exsanguinated me.

For what so that cracker sack of s.hit Bill Clinton can have his putrid pox ridden cock sucked by a toxic 2 pit actress.

All I want in this world is justice and that abomination Elizabeth Gracen rotting in jail.

I would also give an arm and a leg to get my hands on Clinton,the man is a coward,a rapist that is very good at abusing women that cannot hit back.

I would happily take Clinton apart,not just for what he has done to me but as a de facto Mckenzie Man for all the women Clinton has raped.

I have talked or swapped emails with 13,there will be more.

Friend --

Greetings from Gold Hill. This week I finally felt like I was able to get my feet under me as I went to the Capital. I went to several hearings to testify for and against bills wending their way through the Legislative process and met with several Assembly members and Senators surrounding several bills.
As of today, there are 526 bills up for consideration. Some of them are good, some are bad, and some are ugly. I am working with the Nelis software to navigate the bills that require the scrutiny of the Libertarian Party of Nevada.
There were three bills that I testified on this week and one that I couldn't attend but wanted to.

AB 165 – Death with Dignity

On Monday I testified at the Health and Human Services hearing on AB165. This bill deals with enacting a law that would allow a person to receive a prescription that they would administer to end their life in the face of a terminal illness where they have 6 months or less to live.
Many people at the end of their lives are given morphine which acts as respiration inhibitor, while others are taken off life support and allowed to starve or dehydrate to death. This bill provides a compassionate way for a terminally ill patient to end their pain and suffering by their own hand. It contains the proper safeguards to prevent a greedy relative to influence the decision and requires the patient to administer the drugs by their own hand.
We support this bill because it speaks to the concept of self-ownership. We feel that we should be able to chart our own course throughout life and with this grave decision as we face the end of our journey.
Feel free to reach out to the members of the committee hearing this bill and tell them how you feel: Julia.Ratti@sen.state.nv.us, Pat.Spearman@sen.state.nv.us, Joyce.Woodhouse@sen.state.nv.us, Joe.Hardy@sen.state.nv.us, Scott.Hammond@sen.state.nv.us

AB189 Prohibits Body Cavity Search Without Due Process

On Friday I testified at the Assembly Judicial Committee hearing on two bills. AB189 forces a law enforcement officer to obtain a warrant before performing a body cavity search. We support this bill and I offered testimony in support of the bill. The arguments for the bill are obvious; we require a search warrant for the search of our homes, papers and in the case of DUI, our persons. The indignity caused by this procedure, suffered by predominantly women, is immeasurable. We feel that this most intimate type of search should be conducted by medical professionals.

AB200 Authorizes the use of a device (referred to as a "textalyzer") to detect if the driver in an accident where major injuries or death occurred to determine if the driver was texting at the time of the accident.

We oppose this bill and I provided testimony in opposition of this bill on the grounds of it violating the 4th Amendment, the fact that current laws cover this exact scenario without the need of another unfunded mandate, and the notion of the slippery slope. I reminded legislators that George W. Bush told us that the warrantless surveillance of our telephone conversations would be limited to the overseas conversations of suspected terrorists. Edward Snowden revealed just how far down the slope we slipped since the days of that promise.

Feel free to reach out to the members of the committee hearing this bill and tell them how you feel:Steve.Yeager@asm.state.nv.us, Lesley.Cohen@asm.state.nv.us, Shea.Backus@asm.state.nv.us, Skip.Daly@asm.state.nv.us, Edgar.Flores@asm.state.nv.us, Brittany.Miller@asm.state.nv.us, Rochelle.Nguyen@asm.state.nv.us, Sarah.Peters@asm.state.nv.us, Selena.Torres@asm.state.nv.us, Howard.Watts@asm.state.nv.us, Chris.Edwards@asm.state.nv.us, Alexis.Hansen@asm.state.nv.us, Lisa.Krasner@asm.state.nv.us, Tom.Roberts@asm.state.nv.us, Jill.Tolles@asm.state.nv.us

Bills we're watching:

SB201/AB118 Changing the way the payday loan folks operate. These bills will restrict the amount of interest Payday Loan companies can charge and create other regulations surrounding this industry. We generally oppose the restriction of voluntary transactions between willing parties, especially in absence of similar products and services from the traditional banking industry.

SB246 Eliminates the Death Penalty on 1st-degree murder. We oppose the ability of the state to take someone's life. There are no do-overs on capital punishment of innocent people.

SB123 Same-day Voter Registration. We generally oppose the government being able to decide who consents to be governed. Concerns of fraud and verification of voters in a close election aside, we support this bill.

AB226 Prohibits anyone in Nevada from being "chipped" or having any permanent identifying marker. This one is an obvious duh. However, it is worth noting that those of us carrying bank cards with chips are already chipped. One could argue this is a voluntary relationship, but try operating without your chipped bank/credit card for a while… But I digress.

Remember, Nevada provides incredible access and participation in the Legislative Process. If you want to provide testimony, you can do so representing yourself. Access to your government is available on every hearing at the State Legislature in Carson City and Grant Sawyer State Office Building, 555 E. Washington Avenue in Las Vegas. Step up and have your voice heard.

Until next week,

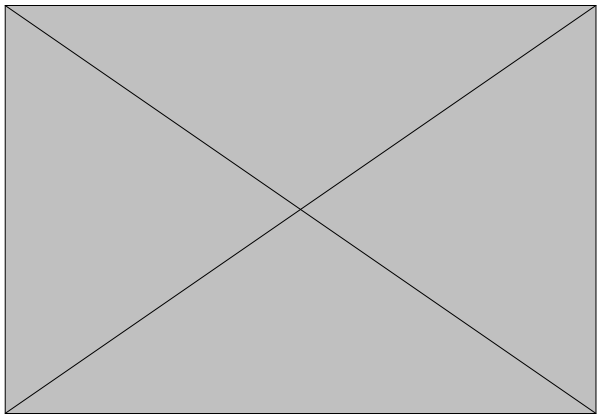
Spreading The Love!



NFWL 2015 Conference Co-Chairs, Representative Lee Denney and Senator Stephanie Bice, made some “social media headlines” this month. Senator Bice called for her fellow Republican friends to donate either $10 or the equivalent worth in food to a local food bank to show that they care. Rep. Denney quickly responded with her “Donation Selfie” in a comment on Senator Bice’s call to action!

Apparently, everyone is going to Oklahoma

Governor Fallin presented him with an OKC Thunder shirt and spoke to some military personnel at the base afterwards.

Governor Fallin will be hosting an opening reception at the Governor’s mansion on the first night of our conference. Guess the President didn’t get the memo that the fun in Oklahoma starts in September!

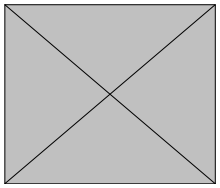
Criminal Justice Reform Panel

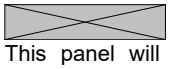
Sunday, Sept. 13, 8:15-10:15am



Criminal justice policy has reached a new vanguard. Today policymakers and stakeholders from across the political spectrum all agree: our current criminal justice system is too expensive and too ineffective.

Bipartisan lawmakers in dozens of states have begun implementing cost-effective reforms that reduce recidivism, improve outcomes, and make our country a safer place.

This panel highlights some of these efforts; notably those in Oklahoma, which has enacted new reforms to protect public safety.



This panel will feature the data-driven criminal justice reforms policymakers should have at their fingertips, and feature experts on the issues of collateral consequences, reentry, and the impact of incarceration on children and families. Two state representatives will outline the reforms enacted in their states and a panel of experts, including Keri Blankinger, Colette Tvedt, Carolyn Lecroy, will provide a wealth of practical policy tools.

Interview with a Rockstar

From Hope to Cures: The Value of Biopharmaceutical Innnovation

Saturday, Sept. 12, 10:30-11:45am

 Innovation—it is what everyone likes to talk about, but what does it really mean for millions of patients battling disease? Join our workshop to learn how medical innovation can help patients live longer, healthier, and more productive lives. New treatments developed by America's biopharmaceutical research companies helped increase childhood cancer survival rates to over 83% today and decreased the death rate for patients battling HIV/AIDS by 85%, heart disease by 30% cancer by 22%.

As one of the most research-intensive and science-driven industries in the U.S., the biopharmaceutical industry, both big and small, is committed to the research and development of new treatments and cures for patients, including those who have serious unmet medical needs.
With more than 7,000 innovative drugs in development worldwide by biopharmaceutical companies and over $500 billion invested in R&D since 2000, hope is certainly on the horizon.

Patients are not the only ones who benefit from new drug development. When new medicines keep patients healthier, the economy gets a boost from a healthier workforce, the cost of healthcare can go down and access improves. Perhaps above all else, medical advances give patients one essential ingredient for survival: hope.

Join the "From Hope to Cures: The Value of Biopharmaceutical Innovation" workshop to learn more about the commitment of the US biopharmaceutical industry to deliver new, innovative treatments for patients in the coming years.

Las Vegas Municipal Court to Celebrate 42nd WIN Court Graduate

Specialty Court Focuses On Women Offenders Impacted by Trauma

The Las Vegas Municipal Court will celebrate the graduation of Rasheka Hinton from the Women in Need of Change (WIN) Court program at 1 p.m. on Thursday, April 25. The graduation ceremony will take place in Las Vegas Municipal Court, Department 1 at the Regional Justice Center, located at 200 Lewis Ave., Courtroom 5A.

Hinton, the 42nd WIN Court graduate, has a criminal history that includes arrests and citations spanning 30 years. During the last 18 months, she has faced her trauma and life obstacles, embraced recovery, accomplished the rigorous mandated program requirements and worked hard to build a new life for herself. Hinton is living independently and working full-time as a cook in a busy kitchen. She has reconnected with her family and built a solid foundation and support community.

Hinton has emerged as a strong, confident and admired leader dedicated to “reaching back” to provide that helping hand and encouragement to those in need. Her determination is an inspiration to the women who are following her example through the WIN Court program.

WIN Court is a trauma-responsive specialty court program that targets women offenders with a history of criminal behavior, misdemeanor and/or substance abuse related charges by targeting the root of the issue- trauma. Through WIN Court, the women learn the tools to change their way of thinking to make positive choices and create their future. All participants have 180 days of jail time suspended for 18 months, which is cleared upon successful completion of the program.

The women who participate must comply with rigorous sentencing requirements throughout the program requiring the participants to complete drug treatment and intensive counseling programs, earn a GED or pursue education/training and secure employment. The defendants must stay out of trouble and abstain from drugs and alcohol during the program. The Court celebrated its first graduate in August 2008.

WIN Court is currently is funded by Edward Byrne Memorial Justice Assistance Grant, SAMHSA grant and a grant from the Nevada Administrative Office of the Courts.

Why Political Law Matters During M&A

Those involved in corporate M&A often overlook political law compliance issues until after the transaction is complete. This can leave the acquiring company with unexpected post-merger problems to solve, says Robert Lenhard, partner at Covington & Burling LLP and former chairman of the Federal Election Commission.

The Post-AIA Battleground For Patent Challenges

The implementation of the America Invents Act, which began on Sept. 16, 2012, ushered in a new age for patent law. The impact of the AIA has reverberated across all technological sectors and fundamentally changed the way the patent community approaches prosecution, licensing, enforcement and monetization, say attorneys with Sterne Kessler Goldstein & Fox PLLC.

A Clean Air Act Nightmare For Yuma County, Ariz.

In response to certain air quality challenges Yuma County, Arizona, currently faces, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has repeatedly suggested the concerns be addressed through various relief mechanisms established in the Clean Air Act. Unfortunately, it is unlikely any of these options will be of use to Yuma County while it's at risk of being designated a nonattainment area for ozone, say attorneys at Snell & Wilmer LLP.

Reducing Settlement Delays In Loan Trading Market

In a long-awaited development, the delayed-compensation standard for late settlement of loans trading at or near par recently changed in important ways. Subject: Re: Stop coddling illegal aliens in Las Vegas

Mayor Goodman,

Thank you for your acknowledgement. Please read my summary of "Adios America" below.

Also, because some people are more influenced by feelings than facts, I thought you might be interested in my summary of this NYT book review, "Against Empathy: The Case for Rational Compassion" by Paul Bloom:

"Empathy, he argues, is a poor moral guide.... favouring the one over the many... empathy is untampered by reason, emanating from the murky bayou of the gut. He prefers a kind of rational compassion - a mixture of caring and detached cost-benefit analysis. ... To those who say empathy is essential to morality, he would reply that morality has many sources. Many 'wrongs' - like littering or cheating on your taxes - have no distinct victims to empathise with. Nor does it appear that the most empathetic people behave the most ethically. There have been hundreds of studies... the results are 'meh'. ... empathy is generally a bad tool to use for allocating resources. ... is part of the reason why governments and individuals care more about a little girl stuck in a well than about events that will affect millions. Consider parenting... almost all parents have a terrible time tolerating the discomfort of their children. Yet it's often essential (going to the dentist, doing homework, spending a night away from home). ...rationality in political domains often does seem to be in short supply."

"Adios, America!" by Ann Coulter. Excerpts below:

1. For forty years, the people have tried to tell politicians they want less immigration, but the politicians won't listen. Every single elite group in America is aligned against the public - the media, ethnic activists, big campaign donors, Wall Street, multimillionaire farmers, and liberal "churches." They all want mass immigration from the Third World to continue. Both political parties connive to grant illegal aliens citizenship and bring in millions more legally, and the media hide the evidence. ... How immigration is changing our country is a lot more important than most of the "news" we hear about endlessly. The media will pound away at Chris Christie's 'Bridge gate', apocryphal fraternity rapes, the Augusta National Golf Club's membership policies, 'white privilege... But getting the truth about immigration is nearly impossible. The media tell us: ... Immigrants are doing the jobs Americans just won't do: Americans are perfectly happy to do all manner of jobs - they just won't do them for $7.00 an hour. Unions used to care about that, but now they just want political power.... Amnesty will be Fantastic for the Economy: Unless we're talking about the Mexican economy, this is patently ridiculous. Adding another 30 million poor, unskilled, non-taxpaying, welfare-receiving people to America is good only for government workers and employers who refuse to mechanize their operations or pay Americans one dollar more. ... The problems stemming from unchecked immigration are all over the news. You'll just never be told they are problems of immigration - children living in poverty, childhood obesity, teen pregnancy, out-of-wedlock births, abysmal high school dropout rates, income inequality, 'homegrown' terrorists, massive Medicare frauds, internet crime, identity theft, prison overcrowding, the vast number of uninsured used to justify Obamacare, sex trafficking, the epidemic of child rape, the destruction of our national parks, drunk driving casualties, drug-resistant tuberculosis, measles and other viral outbreaks, bankrupt government pension, low reading and math scores and shorter 'Americans'. ... why is it a crisis that illegal aliens are 'living in the shadows'?... It's supposed to be uncomfortable to break the law. ... How did all those illegal aliens get into the shadows in the first place? They weren't kidnapped and dragged across the border... But 'living in the shadows' is evidently better than living in Guadalajara, otherwise, there's an easy solution. Democrats aren't big on amnestying other lawbreakers. they don't hysterically demand amnesty for accounting cheats or polluters - not even for "the children" of accounting cheats and polluters. Enron executives were hard workers. They loved their families and wanted the best for them, just I'm sure MS-13 gang members love their families.... When the bathtub is overflowing, the very first thing you do is: TURN OFF THE WATER. ... obviously, any amnesty functions as a magnet for more illegal aliens. Nothing shows the bad faith of amnesty advocates with more blinding clarity than their steadfast refusal to seal the border. Ordinary people see this and know they're being lied to. ... China built a thirteen-thousand mile wall several centuries before Christ, and it's still working. ... For whom is a 'world without borders' an ideal? People who don't much care for America, I gather. ... Congress has repeatedly voted to build a border fence. But somehow, the fence never gets built - and Congress does nothing. ... amnesty supporters tried a surprise argument: To stop illegals pouring across the border, congress had to pass amnesty. They were hoping to stun us into silence with the stupidity of their argument. ... The 1986 Simpson-Mazzoli Act was supposed to end illegal immigration forever: Give us amnesty one time, then: Never again. As with all laws that combine the bitter with the sweet, such as tax hikes and spending cuts, we got one and not the other. The amnesty came, but the border security never did. Illegal immigration sextupled. There have been a half dozen more amnesties since then... . "The moral thing to do" is usually defined as "following the law." ... To paraphrase what President Bush used to say about terrorists: The anti-amnesty side has to be perfect every time; the pro-amnesty side only has to win once. Then the country is finished. 2. ... shouldn't politicians be more concerned with what citizens think of them than what foreigners do? ... Wouldn't any sane immigration policy be based on the principle that we want to bring in only immigrants who will benefit the people already here? ... Try calling another country's embassy and asking to immigrate there. Consulate: What do you want? You: Well, I can't read or write, I have no skills, and I've got nine kids. Oh and by the way. If I can't make it in your country, would you mind cutting my family a check once a month? ... Our "family reunification" policies mean that being related to a recent immigrant from Pakistan trumps being a surgeon from Denmark. Our government does such a terrific job at choosing who gets to immigrate to America that 52 percent of legal immigrant households with children are on government assistance. In all, nearly 60 percent of immigrants - legal and illegal - are on government assistance, compared with 39 percent of native households. Why would any country voluntarily bring in people who have to be supported by the taxpayer? ... The immigrants get a taxpayer subsidy to work for the rich, and the rich get a break on the maid. This cozy deal is funded by the long-suffering middle class. The anti-American crowd used to dash off to fight with Communist insurgencies in Third World jungles. But the fun of being self-righteous was sometimes cut short when they ended up in prison.... Rather than hating America from abroad, today's radicals can hate it right here at home by bringing the Third World to America! ... Being openly hostile to America has become a part of ethnic pride. US Rep Luis Gutierrez calls on his own country (technically the USA) to "stop the deportation of our people . ... Gutierrez told Newsweek that he has "only one loyalty, and that's to the immigrant community."

Whose taxes will be raised to make up the shortfall? Not the people who don't pay any taxes at all. Employers don't care. They want the cheap labor NOW.... We're seeing exactly what Vladimir Lenin is supposed to have said about capitalists: 'They will sell us the rope with which to hang them.' ... Whey shouldn't employers be on the hook when their cheap labor becomes a public charge or commits a crime? ... An immigration law premised on the idea that America owes the rest of the world would be bad enough. But Third World immigration + massive welfare state + political correctness = The end of America. 4. America is not the natural state of the world. The natural state of the world is Darfur. The British Empire spread Anglo-Saxon culture around the globe - Protestant morals, individualism, and the rule of law. Most British colonies rejected those values. Only the ones populated by actual British people -

America, Canada, Australia, and New Zealand - managed to hold on to them and, as a result, prospered. The empire's most successful experiment was the United States. Anyone who hesitates for a moment to recognize that some groups have it over other groups in producing free and prosperous nations has been brainwashed beyond reclamation.

5. America has already taken in more than one quarter of Mexico's entire population. ... Is that diverse enough yet?

Why is it better that the ethnic population of our country be changed? ... Immigration of the past half century has been a homicide made to look like a suicide. ...a natural process? ... It's more like Americans are trying to stop an Army Corp of Engineers project that will flood the valley where they live in order to build a hydroelectric plant that will help one powerful corporation.

6. ... Until 1970, American immigrants did better than the natives - as any sane immigration policy would require. They made more money, bought more houses, and were more educated. By contrast, the post-1970 immigrants are far more likely to be unemployed and live in poverty that the native Americans. More that a third of the post-Kennedy act immigrants don't even have a high school diploma. ... In some bizarre notion of turn-about-is-fair-play, it is assumed that backward societies have the right to relocate to the countries of their former colonizers. I thought they hated those guys (the colonizers)? ... In just a few decades, Minnesota has gone from being approximately, 99 percent German, Dutch, Finnish, Danish, and Polish to 20 percent African immigrant, including at least one hundred thousand Somalis. And that's not counting the Somalis who have recently left the country to fight with al Queda and ISIS. One hundred thousand is just an estimate. We don't know precisely how many Somalis the federal government has brought in as "refugees" because the government won't tell us. ... Kate Towle, the parent leader of a high school group called "Students Together as Allies for Racial Trust" explained that diversity skills "have to be developed like math, history." Maybe it would be better for students to be learning math and history, rather than the important skill of getting along with Somalis. It doesn't seem to be working anyway. There are still violent ethnic brawls that send students to the hospital. What did we do to Somalis? ... absolutely nothing. But now these immigrants, who arrived yesterday, will get affirmative action over white Americans. ... Luckily, every Somali in Minnesota who has a job works for an ethnic grievance outfit - for example, the Somali Justice Advocacy Center, the Somali Resources Aid Associates, the African Development Center, and the Confederation of Somali Community in Minnesota. (And those are just some of the jobs being created by immigrants!). ... half of Somalis in Minnesota unemployed and 80 percent living at or below the poverty level... Recent mass murders committed by legal immigrants: The seven people murdered by Chechen immigrants Dzhokhar and Tamerlan Tsarnaev, who planted a bomb at the Boston Marathon, the four people fatally shot in a Carson City IHOP by... the Mexican-born Eduardo Sencion, the thirteen soldiers killed at Fort Hood by Major Nidal Malik Hasan, son of Palestinian immigrants, the thirteen people murdered by Vietnamese immigrant Jiverly Wong, at an American Civic Association in Binghamton, New York, the thirty-two people murdered at Virginia Tech by Seung-Hui Cho, a South Korean immigrant.... no one notices the immigrant crime wave because the media hide the evidence.

8. When did Americans get together and decide we want 30 percent of all immigrants to be from a single country and that country should be Mexico? If we're going to take almost all our immigrants from a single country, why not Denmark? There appears to have been only on Danish prisoner in New York State in decades - and, again, that was a Muslim. ...nearly 90 percent (of criminal aliens imprisoned in the states in 2009) were from one of eight countries: Mexico, Colombia, the Dominican Republic, Cuba, Jamaica, El Salvador, Honduras, and Guatemala. ... What other country on earth would be so stupid? We have studies showing Hispanics are underrepresented in Hollywood, at top colleges, in the federal government, and in the national media... You know where else Hispanics are underrepresented? In the US military. You'd never know it... but Hispanics are half as likely to enlist in the military as either whites or blacks. ... Hispanic males in the US are more than three times as likely to spend time in prison in their lifetimes than white males. ... The vast majority of all drugs in America - heroin, cocaine, marijuana, and increasingly, methamphetamine - are brought in from Mexico. Most of the heroin sold in the US is grown south of the border, and Mexican cartels transport nearly all of it. ... More than 40,000 Americans were killed from all illegal drug use in 2010, surpassing car accidents and shootings as a cause of death. ... Today, China is once again battling drug smuggling because like America, it also has a poor, corrupt nation with a massive humanitarian crisis on its border; Not Mexico, but North Korea. Guess what China did? It built a fence! Despite stern warnings from the New York Times, China put a thirteen-foot barbed wire fence on its border, patrolled by armed guards. And you know what, it's working! ... Is an American citizen more likely to be murdered by a Muslim terrorist or by a Mexican? According to CNN, 29 Americans have been killed in Islamic terrorist attacks in the US since 9/11. I don't know why they excluded 9/11, so by my count, it's 3,029. In fact, let's round it up to 4,000 to cover the last several decades. According to the GAO's extremely conservative figures, Mexicans alone - forget other immigrants - have murdered a minimum of 23,000 Americans in the last few decades. ... If this were happening in Israel, forget a fence - Netanyahu would be bombing Mexico. ... President Eisenhower put a general in charge of the INS, who proceeded to round up and deport illegals in an operation dubbed "Operation Wetback." HBO's Bill Maher would be saying of our southern neighbors: "Americans have 349 Nobel Prizes; Latin Americans have 16. That seems like kind of a big advantage for Team America." ... Far more Americans are murdered by Mexicans, per capita, than Israelis are murdered by Palestinians. 11. The three young girls kidnapped and held as sex slaves for more than a decade in a boarded-up house in Cleveland had been held by Ariel Castro. ... But then it turned out Castro wasn't the only Hispanic raping young girls - on his block. ... While investigating the Castro case, detectives happened upon Acevedo... he had raped and killed two of his neighbors...

Chandra Levy's killer turned out not to be Democratic Congressman Gary Condit, but Ingmar Guandique - an illegal alien from El Salvador, given temporary amnesty by President Bush. (Does that guy have any brothers? I'd love to see another one like him in the White House!). The one Central Park rapist that even liberals admit was guilty was Hispanic Matias Reyes. After the other attackers had finished with the victim, Reyes came across the joggers beaten and bloody body, and raped her himself.

12. ... environmentalists used to care about gridlock, overcrowding, loss of parkland, and exhaustion of natural resources. Not anymore. Today's environmentalists turn a blind eye as 25 million people tramp through delicate ecosystems, set fire to national parks, kill livestock, dump tons of soiled diapers and Pepsi bottles in the desert, and deface ancient Native American sites. Political correctness demands that no one notice immigrants' toll on the environment. ... Of the 77 human-caused fires on federal or tribal land in Arizona between 2006 and 2010 investigated by the GAO, a cause could be determined in 60 cases. Fully half of those were caused by illegal aliens. ...One of the reasons the GAO was able to review only 77 fires was that the BLM and the Forest Service couldn't spare any agents for investigations. They were too busy protecting 'firefighters and their equipment from illegal aliens.' Apparently, when illegals see border patrol agents, they try to distract them by throwing lighted matches in the brush to start fires. Not only do illegal immigrants intentionally set wildfires, but they violently attack firefighters trying to extinguish the blazes. Firies are allowed to rage, because fire crews are forced to wait for law enforcement protection. ... The Forest Service had once gamely suggested trying to identify 'the group most likely to start fires,' but once the evidence was in, they buried it. To blame illegal aliens would be playing the 'blame the perpetrator' game. ... Because of new border restrictions after 9/11 - I guess it was possible to tighten the borders! - our dear friends in Mexico moved their drug cartel operations directly into America's parks. ... 'These guys shoot people'... Armed illegal aliens were in control of our national parks, so government officials leapt to action by shutting down the parks. A majority of Organ Pipe Cactus National Monument was closed to US citizens for more than a decade because it was too dangerous.

... For a glimpse into America's future, consider how Mexicans treat their own environment. In Mexico's most famous national park, a ten-thousand-year-old evergreen forest designated by presidential decree as a biosphere reserve, illegal loggers chop down about seventy mature tress a day... While environmentalists from around the world send millions of dollars to Mexico preserve the forest... For decades, Mexican refuse ended up on San Diego's world-famous beaches by way of the Tijuana River. ... One solution would have been for Mexicans to stop throwing their garbage in the river. ... Instead, US taxpayers funded a sewage treatment plant on the border at a cost of $239.4 million. Mexico chipped in $17 million. ... Where are the environmentalists? For 50 years, they've been carrying on about overpopulation; promoting family planning, birth control... The Sierra Club began sounding the alarm over the country's expanding population in 1965 - the very year Teddy Kennedy's immigration act passed - and in 1978, adopted a resolution expressly asking Congress to 'conduct a thorough examination of US immigration laws.' For a while, the Club taked about almost nothing else. "It is obvious" the Club said two years later, "that the numbers of immigrants the US accepts affects our population size and growth rate," even more than 'the number of children per family.

Over the next three decades, America took in tens of millions of legal immigrants and illegal aliens alike. But suddenly, about ten years ago, the Sierra Cub realized to its embarrassment that importing multiple millions of polluting, fire-setting, littering immigrants is actually fantastic for the environment! The advantages of overpopulation dawned on the Sierra Club right after it received a $100 million donation from hedge fund billionaire David Gelbaum with the express stipulation that - as he told the LA Times - 'if they ever came out anti-immigration, they would never get a dollar from me.' It would be as if someone offered the Catholic Church $100 million to be pro-abortion. But the Sierra Club said: Sure! Did you bring the check? Obviously, there's no reason to listen to them on anything.

... Not only did the Sierra Club never again say another word against immigration, but, in 2004, it went the extra mile, denouncing three actuals environmentalists running for the Club's board, by claiming they were racists who opposed mass immigration. The three 'white supremacists' were Dick Lamm, the three-time Democratic governor of Colorado; Frank Morris, former head of the Black Congressional Caucus Foundation; and Cornell professor David Pimentel, who created the first ecology course at the university... America's premiere hate group, the Southern Poverty Law Center, jumped into the fray, with multimillionaire con man and SPLC head Morris Dees running for the Sierra Club board simply to smear the three real environmentalist candidates... But, evidently, what poor Southerners need most is a massive influx of foreign poor people competing for their jobs. ... In 2012, Sierra Club executive director Michael Brune announced that the Club officially supported mass immigration - amnesty, no borders, more legal immigration, the whole nine yards.

13. Normally, (Carlos) slim is the kind of businessman the (NY) Times - along with every other sentient human being - would find repugnant. Frequently listed as the richest man in the world, Slim acquired his fortune through a corrupt inside deal giving him a monopoly on telecommunications services in Mexico. But in order to make money from his monopoly, Slim needs lots of Mexicans living in the US, sending money to their relatives back in Oaxaca. Otherwise, Mexicans couldn't pay him - and they wouldn't have much need for phone service, either, other than to call in ransom demands. Back in 2004, before the Times became Slim's pimp - a Times article stated: "Clearly... the nation's southern border is under siege." But that was before Carlos Slim saved the Times from bankruptcy. Ten years later, with a border crisis even worse that in 2004, and Latin America pouring across the border, the Times indignantly demanded the Obama "go big" on immigration and give "millions of immigrants permission to stay". ...

Republicans are terrified of saying anything about immigration for fear of being called 'racist.' ... The fact that most immigrants are Hispanic provides excellent cover for the elite's monumental self-interest. Here's a tip for the GOP: Don't talk about the illegal aliens. Talk about Carlos Slim, Talk about rich Americans finding a solution to 'the servant problem.' Talk about one-hit wonder Mark Zuckerberg underpaying his computer programmers while 32 percent of American graduates in STEM fields can't get job and the rest haven't seen their salaries rise for more than a decade. Talk about how Bill Clinton couldn't find someone to be his attorney general because of the prevalence of illegal alien employees in households of the '1 percent'. Determined to appoint a woman attorney general, Clinton kept producing women with illegal alien nannies (Zoe Baird, Kimba Wood). ... The elites just can't grasp that most Americans raise their own kids, make their own beds, cook their own food, and drive their own cars. ... America will be Brazil, with a well-pampered, itty-bitty upper class, amid an ocean of poor people. ... It's a sweet deal the elites have: They get to have cheap nannies and lawn boys in the whitest towns in America - and feel morally superior at the same time!

14. The vast majority of all legal immigrants - two thirds- get in on "family reunification" policies each year. In other words, America has no say about the single largest category of immigrants... Entire villages from Pakistan are dumped on the country, based not on their expertise in nuclear engineering, but because everyone in the village is related to the first guy who got in. If they're not, in the strict sense, related, they'll lie. In 2008, the State Department suspended the family reunification part of the African refugee program because DNA testing showed that only 20 percent of 'family members' were actually related. We'll still take as many refugees from Africa, but they won't have to lie about being related anymore. ... The special agricultural amnesty of 1986 is a good example of how even the most reasonable-sounding immigration law will inevitably be turned into a pipeline for criminals, welfare cases, and terrorists. ... illegal alien farmworkers who could prove they had done seasonal farmwork for a total of ninety days between May 1, 1985 and May 1, 1986, would be granted temporary legal status. what could go wrong? In the first three years of the program, 888,637 agricultural amnesty applications were identified as fraudulent - but only 60,637 of those were denied. Overwhelmed with amnesty applications under just this one provision, the INS found it to be a big time-saver to simply ignore fraud. ... Mohammed Salameh, another terrorist convicted in the 1993 World Trade Center bombing, was also in the US because of Schumer's special agricultural worker amnesty. The unskilled 19-year-old first came to the US on a tourist visa because, as the US consulate later explained, someone in the office "took a chance" on Mohammed. Mohammed not only had never worked on a farm, but he was not even in the country until 1988, two years after the special amnesty became law, though it was explicitly limited to those who had worked on farms in the US in the year before May 1, 1986. By the most basic definition of the law, Mohammed was not eligible, but he was allowed to stay in the US and obtain a work visa - while the INS processed his petition. Moving with the lightning speed of a government agency, the INS rejected his petition for amnesty as a farm worker three years later. Then, Mohammed applied for a general amnesty, claiming he had been living continuously in the US from 1980 to 1986. Actually, he was a teenager in Jordan then, but again, Mohammed was allowed to stay while the INS considered his request. As it considering, Mohammed bombed the World Trade Center.

How about all those brainy, high-tech H-!B immigrants that Senator Orrin Hatch keeps telling us about? ... the cheap-labor advocacy group Partnership for a New American Economy excitedly tweeted that two - yes two - of the five LindedIn founders were "born in Europe"!... Here's my counter tweet: 98.7% fo the founders of important Silicon Valley companies were born in America! 99 percent are white men! ... Professor Norman Matloff: 'The vast majority of H-1B's, including those hired from US universities, are ordinary people doing ordinary work, not the best and the brightest. On the contrary, the average quality of the H-1Bs is lower that theat of the Americans. ... The main advantage of foreign labor over native workers, Matloff explains, is aht H-1B workers are indentured servants: They can't quit without risking deportation. so American employers get to pay less for standard computer programming work. ... They want cheap people. Massimmigration advocates push ethnic stereotypes about high-IQ immigrants, but then go crazy whenever anyone suggests we actually bring in high-IQ immigrants. ... The average Indian IQ is staggeringly low: 82. That's about the same as the average IQ in Afghanistan - 84; Panama - 84; Dominican Republic - 82; Paraguay - 84; Yemen - 85; and Tonga - 86. We take more immigrants from India than from Austria, Belgium, Denmark, Finland, Greece, Iceland, Ireland, the Netherlands, New Zealand, Sweden, Switzerland, Spain, and the Czech Republic put together. Why are we discriminating...? The answer is: Because those immigrants would tend to fill the kinds of jobs rich people have.

15. The only thing that stands between America and oblivion is a total immigration moratorium. ... It's evident that the government can't be trusted to use three brain cells in admitting immigrants, so its discretion has to be completely revoked. No matter how clearly laws are written, government bureaucrats connive to confer citizenship on people that a majority of Americans would not want to let in as tourists, much less as our fellow citizens. ... No other fix will work. Congress could just insist that immigrants pay taxes, learn English, not collect welfare, and have good moral character, except the problem is: It already has. All those laws were swept away by INS officials, judges, and Democratic administrations. Doing it again won't produce a different result. ... Even if we could trust the government on immigration - and we can't - there are the legions of immigration lawyers, lobbyists, nonprofits, and general miscreants whose single-minded mission is to turn America into the Third World hellhole of liberal fantasies. ... The billion-dollar immigration industry has turned every single aspect of immigration law into an engine of fraud. The family reunifications are frauds, the 'farmworkers' are frauds, the high-tech visas are frauds - and the asylum and refugee cases are monumental frauds. ... the only result of our asylum policies is that we get good liars. Taxpayers subsidize sleazy immigration activists who coach immigrants to lie to immigration officials. Document mills produce phony passports, school records, and medical reports. ... immigration judges approve 92 percent of all "credible fear" asylum applications.

16. ... if Romney had won 71 percent of the Hispanic vote in 2012, instead of 27 percent, he still would have lost. On the other hand, had he won just 4 percent more of the white vote, he would have won.

17. America's suicidal immigration policies are the single biggest threat facing the nation. What happens with immigration will determine whether America continues to exist or becomes a Third World republic...

Mayor Goodman,
I was disappointed to watch you on your KCLV show Friday evening supporting illegal aliens. Worse yet was the inclusion of two guests, both of who were also advocates of illegal aliens. Wouldn't it have been fair to host an equal amount of speakers in opposition? Is the care and feeding of illegal aliens a part of the city charter? I doubt it. We need the illegal immigrants to return to their native countries. Your positions lure more of them here and encourage them to stay. Why don't you start looking out for US citizens first? Don't you realize that the reason people from third world countries sneak into the US is ultimately because they can't stand being around other third world people. Plenty of skilled people from developed countries are waiting patiently for admission to the US. Is it fair to reward those whose very first act into this county is illegal? You can disguise the problem by saying they are fleeing high crime rates, violence, rotten economy... but this deception hides the real reason. Why would you want to turn us into a third world country? If you feel so concerned about them, there is an easy solution: move to a third world country to help them where they are.

Please read:

The Immigration Solution, by MacDonald, Hansen & Malanga

While the cheapness of the immigrants' labor may benefit a very few industries and provide some upper and le-class families with cut-rate gardeners and nannies, it adds very little to our national standard of living. On the other side of the ledger, the costs these immigrants impose on US taxpayers for health care, schooling, welfare, and (all too often) incarceration far outweigh the benefits they offer. In California, the National Academy of Sciences found immigrant families cost each native-born household an additional $1,200 in taxes per year. Although a net loss for the US, such workers are an unalloyed boon for Mexico. Their ability to find work north of the border is an essential safety valve for Mexico's failed economy and stubbornly unreformed political culture, and the remittances these workers send home are indispensable to Mexico, constituting its second largest source of hard currency. No wonder the Mexican government – especially through its consuls in the US – vigorously fosters the illegal migration of its nationals into its northern neighbor. … But those earlier huddled masses of immigrants yearning to breathe free, however tired and poor they may have looked, were in fact on average more skilled than the native-born population of a century ago. In addition, the less-developed economy of that era also had a vastly greater need for immigrants without skills than does today's knowledge economy. More important, the US immigration system of that period was a machine for selecting the most enterprising and energetic migrants. With no welfare system whatever, those who came were those who thought they could make use of the opportunity and freedom America offered by their own efforts. Grateful for the chance, these newcomers were only too glad to assimilate to their new land as best they could, and their children did so wholeheartedly. Not so today. The first child born in America to an immigrant entitles his or her family to child-only welfare payments – a hefty-looking sum to a recent migrants from a peasant village. … Deprived of work, illegals would return home, just as 60 percent of immigrants from the first great migration eventually left these shores when they couldn't make it here. ...our new policy should select newcomers not because they are someone's brother or adult child or elderly parents, or because they successfully sneaked into the country some years ago, but because they have some special skill... that will enrich our nation. … Thousands arrive illegally from Mexico into California each year... They come in such numbers because a tacit alliance of Right and Left has created an open-borders policy, aimed at keeping wage labor cheap and social problems ever fresh, so that the ministrations of Chicano studies professors, La Raza activists, and all the other self-appointed defenders of group causes will never be unneeded. … nearly one quarter of California's inmates are aliens from Mexico. The pro-labor left found that the industrious new arrivals whom it championed eroded the wages of its own domestic low wage constituencies - the Labor Department attributes 50 percent of real-wage declines to the influx of cheap immigrant labor. … when I was ten, in 1963, all suburbanites mowed their own lawns – many with push mowers. Now almost everyone hires the job out. Nannies for toddlers and grannies, unheard of then, are now ubiquitous... Rural schools used to begin in mid-September to ensure that we natives could pick grapes to earn our school clothes and shoes. Today not a single student in California would do such hot, dirty work, now considered demeaning. … So we allow illegal aliens to obtain California driver's licenses – the foundation for all other means of legal identification – and to pay reduced in-state tuition at the University of California, thereby providing several thousand dollars in discounts not available to American citizens from out of state. Whether you break the law to reach California or immigrate legally, it makes little difference in how you drive, send your kids to college, or draw on the public services of the state. … I often suggest to teachers who tell aliens that our culture is racist, exploitative, and sexist that they should live in Mexico themselves to fathom why millions are dying to obtain what they so casually dismiss.

… America does not have a vast labor shortage that requires waves of low wage immigrants to alleviate; in fact, unemployment among native-born unskilled workers in high – consistently about double the nations' overall unemployment rate. … an unusual coalition of business groups, unions, civil rights activists, and church leaders thwarted the call for restrictions with passage of the inaptly names 1986 Immigration Reform and Control Act, which legalized some 2.7 million unauthorized aliens already here, supposedly in exchange for tougher penalties and controls against employers who hired illegals. The law proved no deterrent, however, because supporters, in subsequent legislation and court cases argued on civil rights grounds, weakened the employer sanctions. Meanwhile more illegals flooded here in the hope of future amnesties from Congress, while the newly legalized sneaked their wives and children into the country rather than have them wait for family-preference visas. The flow of illegals into the country rose to between 300,000 and 500,000 per year in the 1990's, so that a decade after the legislation that had supposedly solved the undocumented alien problem by reclassifying them as legal, the number of illegals living in the US was back up to about 5 million. … In many American industries, waves of low-wage workers have also retarded investments that might lead to modernization and efficiency. Farming, which employs a million immigrant laborers in California alone, is the prime case in point. Faced with a labor shortage in the early 1960's, when President Kennedy ended a 22-year-old guest-worker program that allowed 45,000 Mexican farm hands to cross over the border and harvest 2.2 million tons of California tomatoes for processed foods, farmers complained but swiftly automated, adopting a mechanical tomato-picking technology created more than a decade earlier. Today, just 5,000 better-paid workers – one-ninth the original workforce – harvest 12 million tons of tomatoes using the machines. The savings prompted by low-wage migrants may even be minimal in crops not easily mechanized. … If the benefits of the current generation of migrants are small, the costs are large and growing because of America's vast range of social programs and the wide advocacy network that strives to hook low-earning legal and illegal immigrants into these programs. A 1998 Nationals Academy of Sciences study found that more than 30 percent of California's foreign-born were on Medicaid... compared with 14 percent of native –born households. The foreign-born were more than twice as likely as the native-born to be on welfare, and their children were nearly five times as likely to be in means-tested government lunch programs. Native-born households pay for much of this, the study found, because they earn more and pay higher taxes – and are more likely to comply with tax laws. Recent immigrants, by comparison, have much lower levels of income and tax compliance.

... This call for 'human rights' is a clever one, for it hides its radical status in a rhetorical safe harbor. What, exactly, are the 'human rights' that the US is denying illegal aliens? They have unfettered access to free medical care, free education, welfare for their children, free representation in court when they commit crimes, every due process protection during criminal prosecution that the Constitution guarantees citizens and legal immigrants, the shelter of labor laws, and the miracles of modern industrial society like clean water, the control of infectious diseases (including the ones they bring with them), and plumbing. The only putative 'right' they lack - and that, of course, is the 'human right' to which they and their ambassadors refer - is the right to legal status regardless of illegal entry. ....

No one will take the assurance that 'this time we mean business' seriously. If the executive branch is not willing to enforce the current law against violators, a new set of laws will not suddenly strengthen its resolve... border defenses have been fortified over the years, but the drill has been: if you can get past the border patrol, you are home free. The most important action the government could take to end illegal immigration would be to penalize employers that unlawfully hire illegal aliens... After 9/11, the department of Homeland Security deported fifteen hundred illegal Pakistanis. An additional fifteen thousand then left voluntarily, reports Jessica Vaughan of the Center for Immigration Studies. There is no reason to think this enforcement-through-attrition strategy won't work as well for Hispanic illegals.

It would be useful for open-borders optimists to spend some time in the Los Angeles Unified School District, which is 73 percent Hispanic, and where just 40 percent of Hispanic students graduate. (Nationwide, 53 percent of Hispanics graduate from high school...) Of those Hispanic students who do graduate, just 22 percent have completed the course work necessary for admission to a four-year state college - which means that of all Hispanic students who enter in ninth grade, fewer than 15 percent will graduate ready for college. Immigrant advocates have fiercely opposed in court a long-deferred California high school exit exam, which would require students to answer just over 50 percent of questions testing eight-grade-level math and ninth-grade-level English. The California Research Bureau predicts that if the exam becomes a reality, Hispanic graduation rates would drop well below 30 percent. ... Schools spend huge sums trying to improve the Hispanic graduation rate, even hiring 'outreach consultants' for dropout prevention. One Santa Ana consultant's approach is predictably multicultural. "We need to teach teachers that students need to be proud of where they are coming from," she told me. But, of course, Hispanic school failure derives not from ethnic neglect - the Sana Ana schools glorify the Hispanic heritage to a fault...
...a high level of immigration translates to increased levels of crime. Between the foreign-born generation and their American children, the incarceration rate of Mexican American jumps more than eightfold...
Pro-amnesty forces promote that illegal immigrants "risk everything for the dream of freedom"... However lousy the Mexican economy, there are few, if any, political freedoms enjoyed by Americans that Mexico denies. It is the Yankee dollar, not untasted freedom, that brings the vast majority of illegals here.

...in spring 2006 American witnessed millions of illegal aliens who not only were unapologetic about their illegal status but were demanding that their hosts accommodate their own political grievances, from providing driver's licenses to full amnesty. The largest demonstrations - held on May Day, with thousands of protesters waving Mexican flags and bearing placards depicting the Communist insurrectionist Che Guevara - only confirmed to most Americans that illegal immigration was out of control and beginning to become politicized along the lines of Latin American radicalism. I chronicled in Mexifornia the anomaly of angry protesters waving he flag of the country they vehemently did not wish to return to , but now the evening news beamed these images to millions. In short, the radical socialism of Latin America, seething in the angry millions who flocked to support Venezuela's Hugo Chavez, Bolivia's Evo Morales, and Mexico's Andres Lopez Obrador, had now seemingly been imported into our own largest cities. ...

Crippled America

We are the only nation in the world whose immigration system places the needs of other nations ahead of our own. … Too many people have forgotten the Mariel boatlift. … The Mexican government has published pamphlets explaining how to illegally emigrate to the US. … It's a great way for those governments to get rid of their worst people without paying any price.... Operation Wetback... was successful. It was a joint effort between the INS and the Mexican government. Special immigration teams were created to quickly process and deport illegal immigrants. One of the reasons it worked is that people who were caught were given to Mexican government agents, who moved them into central Mexico, where they could find jobs. ...In the first year, more than one million people were sent back. ...Why should we absorb the expense of keeping criminals in prisons? Let their countries of origin deal with the problems they sent us. If they refuse to take them back, we can stop issuing visas to those countries, preventing their citizens from legally visiting the US. I also would triple the number of immigration officers we currently employ until the wall is built. … Currently there are about 5,000 officers attempting to enforce the existing immigration laws against the more than 11 million illegal aliens. Compare that to the... 35,000 officers in the New York Police Department. Since 9/11 we have tripled the size of the border patrol but haven't substantially increased the number of ICE officers – the officers who enforce immigration laws. … We have to cut off federal grants to sanctury cities... We need to have real penalties for people who overstay their visas. … Most important is ending or curtailing so-called birthright citizenship, or anchor babies. … It is estimated that about 300,000 of these children are born here annually. That's 300,000 children who are entitled to all the rights and privileges granted to American citizens because their mothers entered this country illegally... There are businesses that specialize in making this happen! They call it 'birth tourism'…. And those people take advantage of the system and come here illegally should never enjoy the benefits of being a resident – or citizen – of this nation. So, I am against any path to citizenship for undocumented workers or anyone else who is in this country illegally. They should – and need to – go home and get in line. And you know who agrees with me? The Mexicans, the Chinese, and all the people from other countries who want to be here legally and can't get a visa or fit into a quota... We can be generous and do all of this humanely. But the security and prosperity of American citizens have to come first. .. (Chapter 3)

I believe in putting the needs of American citizens first, always.... There's an old phrase that, sadly, you rarely hear anymore, "Made in America". We will start saying this again. (Chap. 10)

I will start by saying I utterly despise your nation from my toe nails up,a few days ago a bomb went off in NYC,when I read that in the news I was laughing.

Maybe you think that sounds sick,would not a Jew during the holocaust laugh if a bomb went off in Berlin,I chuckled when the bomb went off in NYC,and my soul screamed serve you right.

Trump is a moron,however I would carry him to 1600 to keep that toxic hag Hilary Clinton out of 1600.

Trump never wronged me,my blood and the blood of children in the 3rd world that my late daughters charity would have aided are all over Mr Cracker,Bill Clinton's hands.

Surely history should not have to endure another Clinton infesting The White House.

An abomination by the name of Elizabeth Gracen stole millions from my late daughters charity and myself and left me to die on the streets of Paris.

Gracen first shared a bed with Clinton to obtain a Miss Arkansas crown and is still sharing a bed with him now and he protects Gracen from prosecution for sexual favors.

The Clinton's are scum.

14 years of my life that cracker Bill Clinton has stolen from me,all I want in this world is justice and that abomination Elizabeth Gracen in jail.

Surely Bill Clinton wandering around DC as The First Cracker is more that history should be forced to endure.

I am so very ill,I got off the streets of France and arrived in Belgium,I hate the expression as it is vulgar and misogynistic,however I ache to bitch slap the King of Belgium.

This pissant Mickey Mouse nation has abused and violated me rather than aid me.

All I want is justice and that abomination Elizabeth Gracen in jail.

I am so ill,I got off the streets,in a trailer park,the people here are f.ucking vile and vulgar White Trash,I even have a woman that works here trying to supplement her wages by ripping me off for electric charges,

Wall to wall WT,I am sick of vulgar ignorant WT,Last night I did not get to sleep until after 6.30 few hours later awoken by vulgar WT babbling at each other loudly.

I am so f.ucking sick of them they have the social Graces of a rock.

The last thing I have done as you can see below is try and pull a concert together for justice.

I can never get back the 14 years of my life your parasitic nation has stolen from me.

I would never step foot in your parasitic nation even if Uncle Tom sent AF1 for me.

However I would carry that ignorant man Donald Trump on my back to keep Clinton out of the White House.

You can use this against Clinton,H Clinton knows about Clinton and Gracen,she is obsessed with power and does not care where he puts his putrid pox ridden dick.

14 years of my life your parasitic nation stole from me.

All I want is justice and Gracen in jail and to get out of this pissant toxic nation Belgium,I asked for help politely and day after day they abuse and violate me.

Hello,

I will try and be brief,I do have a tendency to ramble,I am ill,maybe you would also ramble if you had endured my hell.

My daughter was murdered by her own mother,the woman I thought I would grow old with took every penny I had and left me to die on the streets of Paris.

For the last 13 years I have either lived on the streets or in hovels.

I do tend to rant below.

However it is my only outlet,I do not drink frankly I do not do anything except fester in my disgust of the vulgarity and self obsession within the world today.

To be brief a small time actress by the name of Elizabeth Gracen stole millions from my late daughters charity and myself.

I wanted my late daughters name to live on in deeds and actions and supply food and meds for children in the 3rd world.

Gracen first shared a bed with Clinton to obtain a Miss Arkansas crown and is still sharing a bed with Clinton now and he protects Gracen from prosecution.

Not crazy man time just Google the name Elizabeth Gracen and it will confirm the Clinton connection.

I am trying to pull together some musicians from the days when musicians were musicians not constructs from Muzak Inc.

I am trying to pull together a concert for justice,think Woodstock Part 2.

I doubt this will work but it is the last thing I can try.

I am utterly disgusted with the world we live in today,most people embrace vacuity and self obsession as if it is a gift.

I got off the streets of France arrived in Belgium but this is a toxic pissant morally bankrupt nation totally and utterly lacking in moral and ethical faculty.

I am in a caravan park,however wall to wall White Trash here lacking in social graces and learning.

All I want for myself is justice and getting so Far away from everything and everybody.

75 percent of the monies stole still belong to the needy,trying to pull a concert together for exposure for my late daughters charity.

Children have died due to Gracen stealing from my late daughters nobody cares,the mindless are playing with their I Phones and posting drivel on Facebook.

I explain everything below and on my web site www.chrishepburn.com

Yes I tend to rant at times,I am ill,my daughter was murdered,the woman I thought I would grow old with took every penny I had and left me to die on the streets.

I arrive in Belgium and this pissant vulgar nation shit's all over me rather than aid me and I am in a caravan park with wall to wall vulgar white trash,so yes I ramble at times.

I am not sure where to put this concert on I have been in touch with Paradiso and The Milky in Amsterdam,however they failed moral integrity.

I tried to do good in this world with a charity in my late daughters name and an evil woman took every penny I had and left me to die on the streets of Paris.

51 years of age sitting in a trailer park in Belgium surrounded by vulgar toxic White Trash that have the learning and social skills of a mars bar.

So yes I rant at times.

I crave people with a moral backbone.

I am so utterly disgusted with Belgium,after years on the streets of France I arrive here and Belgium shits all over me.

I am emailing musicians from different genre's of music,trying to do something decent and good.

Alas such things are no more in a time of vulgarity,self obsession,I Phones and Facebook.

If I manage to pull this concert together I hope you will perform.

Moral integrity are the keywords,I emailed somebody a few weeks ago he failed moral integrity,embracing an allegory he cannot re sit the exam.

As I said to people in The Paradiso and Mikly Way in Amsterdam if Anne Frank are her family sought help on Monday and that help was not forthcoming or did not arrive until Tuesday.

That is too late what if the Nazi's took Anne Frank away on Monday night.

It is my position that doing the right thing should not require any thought,it should be autonomic.

Lastly if I recouvred the funds Gracen stole 75 percent would still go to the needy,those monies never belonged to me.

I just want to get so far away from everything and everybody,in the caravan in front of me The White Trash has returned,even their dog is ill mannered

I just want to be in the middle of nowhere on the back of a horse,horses do not point guns at each other,built heavy water plants or play the derivatives market on hay to screw over other horses.

I hope to hear from you.

Regards,

Chris Hepburn

Would you please be so kind as to stick up the enclosed poster,I am old enough to remember when coffee shops had a spark of intellectualism and creativity.

The text below went to every member of your Parliament and not one of them has any sense of honor or integrity.

What I personally find very sad is Ahmed Aboutaleb was welcomed to The Netherlands off the Banana Boat,years later he is much to busy being important and self obsessed to care about anybody but himself.

I may ramble a little below,to be concise an abomination by the name of Elizabeth Gracen stole millions from my late daughters charity and myself and left me to die on the streets of Paris.

Gracen first shared a bed with Clinton to obtain a Miss Arkansas crown and is still sharing a bed with him now and he protects Gracen from prosecution.

Not crazy man talk just Google the name Elizabeth Gracen.

Alas all the Judges are politically correct appointments of the inept.

Yes I am screwed up as you would be if the person you thought you would grow old with took every penny you had and left you to die on the streets.

I finally got of the streets rented a caravan in Belgium,however most of the people here are loud,vile and vulgar,lacking in class,social skills and learning.

I cannot even hear myself thing I have toxic vulgar white trash brats in front of me and refugee brats next to me.

I sought help in Belgium,a f.ucking disgusting country,I have been in touch with a vile and vulgar little man by the name of Didier Reynders.

He is toxic,he is the Belgian Minister of Foreign Affairs,in essence conflict resolution

Is the domain of diplomats,Belgium and I have a conflict as Reynders and Belgium chose to shit on me rather than help me.

This is the 3rd time I have been abused and violated my Belgium.

I think of the lack of equity in this world,my daughter was murdered by her own Mother.

I would have taught my daughter to respect her fellow man,the vulgar scum here breed and bring vulgar brats into this world and my little girl was murdered.

I no longer care about anything except a man in France called Jean-Pierre as he is the only person in the world that cares about me.

However 75 percent of recouvred funds would go to the needy,hence the poster.

All I want is peace and quiet,I am so f.ucking disgusted with Belgium and that toxic vulgar little man Didier Reynders,he is without honor.

All I want is peace and quiet so far away from vile and vulgar ignorant people.

I think of the White Trash brats in front of me and the Refugee Brats next to me.

If they did not have a park,Le Monde Diplomatique would be up in arms.

Coffee shops used to be special places,please be so kind as to stick up my poster.

I am also saddened that not a single politician in The Netherlands has any sense of integrity or morality,I just wanted to go to The NL and try and finish a book I started 18 years ago.

I remember a time in a cafe called The Cafe Dijk people would play a game,name 10 famous Belgians.

Most people would get stuck after 3 or 4

Brel,Margritte and La Premier Danseur Jean-Claude Van Dam.

They were happy times laughing and joking.

However it is f.ucking obscene how Belgium and that toxic vulgar little man Didier Reynders have treated me.

I cannot even hear myself think due to scum in front of me and scum next to me.

I crave justice nothing more.

Kindest Regards,

Chris Hepburn

Dear Senator,

I hope you maybe able to help me I formally request asylum in the Netherlands,please do not point me in the direction of a box ticking chimp in some Gov Department.

Anne Frank was not pointed in the direction of a box ticking chimp.

Just and noble people stood up for what is right,will you stand up for what is right?.

Please see below it is a copy of an email to all the Judges at The International Criminal Court,alas they lack integrity,in essence politically correct appointments of the inept.

In another time and place they would have sent Anne Frank a blah blah blah email.

My name is Chris Hepburn,I am the grandson of the late Katherine Hepburn,I never threw her name around for personal gain,2 reasons firstly it would be wrong and secondly it was not that well known she had a child.

I only ever threw her name around to start a charity in my late daughters name.

An abomination by the name of Elizabeth Gracen stole millions from my late daughters charity and left me to die on the streets of Paris.

I spent years on the streets in France due to Gracen.

Gracen first shared a bed with Bill Clinton to obtain a Miss Arkansas Crown and is still sharing a bed with Clinton now and he protects it from prosecution.

When people first hear my story them think I am a lunatic them they confirm the Clinton/Gracen connection and they do not want to get involved.

Utter Cowards.

I am so very ill,all I want is justice and peace and quiet.

I finally got of the streets of France and I am in Belgium,however I am utterly disgusted with Belgium,I emailed every member of her Parliament and not one of them has any vestige of moral integrity,it is also my position that The King of Belgium has no honor or integrity.

My first night in Belgium I had to take the curtains down to use as sheets,I do not even have any water.

I arrive in Belgium I do not get sorry Chris how can we help,I get more cruelty.

I cannot even hear myself think due to vile and vulgar White Trash in the caravan in front of me.

All I want is justice and peace and quiet,it is also worth noting if I get my funds back 75 percent would go to the needy and we are talking millions,no idea who it would go to somebody would have to impress me and I 13 years nobody has apart for a man called Jean-Pierre.

I tried to do good in this world in my late daughters name and for 13 years I have been abused and violated by The USA,at Clintons hands to protect Gracen from prosecution.

I will be in The NL shortly for 1 day looking for an old friend.

If anybody in The NL can do what is right,just and noble I look forward to hearing from you.

Kindest Regards,

Chris Hepburn

I will send this to some tenured Chimps in law schools in The US,however if anybody in your Parasitic Nation did the right thing I expect I would code in shock.

I have a thought for you embrace pure logic,if the wackos had blown your parasitic nation off the planet on 911 the world would be a better place.

To quote Dr Spock,the one with the ears not the idiot.

The needs of the many.

Children have died due to Gracen stealing from my late daughters charity.

I am so f.ucking ill,got off the streets found a caravan but most of the people here are vile,constant babble,contemplative reflection is beyond the great unwashed.

Their vile spawn are f.ucking obscene,could almost write up a psych profile,the young boys will start stealing cars and the girls will marry WT that knocks them around and they will breed and expect the state to pay for their vile progeny.

The people here have no respect for anything or anybody,loud vulgar White Trash.

F.ucking sick off it all I want is justice and that abomination Elizabeth Gracen in jail.

See the text below it went to all the Judges at The ICC,ECHR,ECJ and UK Supreme Court.

These people are f.ucking vile,have Tracey Chapman on my headphones to drown out some scumbag blasting out Kiddy Muzak,total lack of respect for other people here.

That is the world for you.

Children have died due to an abomination by the name of Elizabeth Gracen stealing from my late daughters charity.

This morning I was awoken by somebody having a White Trash convention vile and vulgar brats sired by vile and vulgar parents totally and utterly lacking in social graces.

They are utterly vile.

All I want is peace and quiet,certain children Gracen stole from want nothing as they are dead and that makes wants needs and desires a tad problematic.

Will you open your mouth or will you be quiet like cowards were quiet as Hitler murdered 6 million.

If I was to recover my funds I would have plenty of people looking for funding all they would get from me are insults along the lines of go to hell where were you when I needed help.

Where were you this morning when all I wanted was peace and quiet and to listen to the birds sing and what do I get a toxic vulgar brats who's vile and vulgar deportment would disturb the chastity of the dead.

The lack of moral and ethical faculty in the world today is obscene.

Your Honor,

As you will recall I emailed you a few weeks ago and alas you failed moral and ethical integrity.

You failed moral integrity with such aplomb,I was going to insult you,however I will use intellect and moral superiority,alas given your deportment moral superiority is no great accolade.

This email is for all the Judges in about half a dozen courts,all alleged august courts of law however all the members of those courts failed moral and ethical integrity.

It poses the question how can you sit in judgment of others when you lack moral and ethical faculty.

You did nothing just as people of your ilk did nothing as Hitler murdered 6 million,how many need to be abused and violated until it is wrong,I suggest the number is 1 Person.

As Burke said the only thing needed for evil to triumph is for good men to do nothing.

You did nothing.

As I said this email is for Judges in about half a dozen courts,however I will address it to The Judges at the ICC as certain things only apply to you.

Your court in theory should be the best of the best,granted judgments cannot be binding on other courts,however if you were the best of the best they should be referenced with respect.

However forgetting my own issues for a moment,if your court was the just and ethical body it pretends to be Bush and his lap dog Blair would have been tried for war crimes and Hollande would be tried for crimes against humanity.

Addressing my issues and the issues of children in the 3rd world that my late daughters charity should have aided,you did nothing,you lacked the moral and ethical backbone to do what is right,just and noble.

If anybody was to first hear my story about a woman stealing from my late daughters charity and being protected by Clinton

The knee jerk reaction may be Chris is a lunatic,however all people need to do to confirm the Clinton/Gracen connection is Google.

It is my position that if people worked together in ego free zones we could have saved the lives of many children in the 3rd world.

We take things for granted in the western world when it comes to medicine a cataract operation costs very little,it gives a child sight,fistula can easily be repaired by a surgeon,something as simple ORS could save many lives.

You turned your back on those children,they have nobody,The WHO is pointless a Chinese woman is paid over 200k a year to sit in a nice office in Geneva and talk crap.

UNICEF is also pointless you could fire half the staff and use that money on aid and you would still be over staffed.

Charity's like MSF and I had a friend that was an MD with MSF a wonderful man that saved many lives however the head of MSF Joanne liu is morally bankrupt.

As I said it is my position that if people had worked together in ego free zones we could have saved many lives,however if I am wrong and we could have only have saved the life of one child.

You turned your back on that child.

Look at the dummy or pacifier made by Apple,that over priced piece of crap starts at 650 Euro and it does not even have a keyboard.

How many lives could 650 save,UNICEF would spent 600 Euro talking crap and paying staff they do not need.

My late daughters charity would have spent 650 aiding the needy.

I tried to do good in this world,I wanted my late daughters name to live on in deeds and actions.

How would you feel if you tried to do such a thing and the person you thought you would grow old with stole millions from your late daughters charity and left you to die on the streets of Paris.

I have not known a day of happiness in 13 years,as for France,she has learned nothing from her darkest hour,Dreyfus,Vichy and now Hepburn.

I watched them from the gutter,they have become a race of de facto American's that embrace vulgarity and self obsession as if it is a quality to aspire to.

As for that vulgar little man Francoise Hollande that made my life hell,he is the most un presendential President France has ever known.

Hollande did not win,Sarkozy lost in 2012 there was such a malaise on France that anybody would have won over Sarkozy.

I am so very ill,France abused and violated me for years,I think of that obscene Minister Marisol Touraine canceling my welfare payment,utterly obscene France owes me,not only did France fail to pay her debt she took from me a benefit I was legally entitled to.

I am so utterly disgusted with France in a just and ethical world that scumbag Hollande would be tied to a tree outside your court and flogged.

Tell you a story about doing the right thing,many years ago a young PM in NZ by the name of David Lange stood up to that buffoon Ronald Reagan

I interviewed Reagan when I was a journalist,he would have been a great bar tender,however he was not Presendential Material even for that pariah The USA.

The rest of the world were virtually genuflecting before Reagan with a would you like me to blow you now Mr President or would you like to kick me in the head first.

Well David Lange stood up to Reagan and said no nukes in NZ.

He did what was right,alas you did not.

I am so very ill all I want is justice and that abomination Elizabeth Gracen in jail.

I am so very ill I got out of France somebody lent me a little money but I will be back on the streets shortly unless somebody helps me and in 13 years only found one decent man a man called Jean-Pierre.

I found a caravan to rent,looked nice in the photo,however the one that I got was not the one in the picture,it was a converted work mans hut,not even any bedding the first thing I had to do was take the curtains town to use them as sheets.

I have a few countries to email seeking asylum however I doubt they will help.

The world is just wrong,last night I just wanted to listen to the birds sing good night to each other and I could not even do that as loud vulgar brats were screaming at each other.

They live and they will grow up to be loud and vulgar and spawn their own vulgar brats and on and on it goes.

My little girl would not have been loud and vulgar I would have taught her to respect her fellow man,she was murdered by her own mother and vulgar brats infest the planet.

Where is the equity.

I think of law I failed my JD but I have a good knowledge of law,I could even argue Halachic law and if I had to something as vulgar as cannon law.

However let's forget all of that one law that cannot be codified,it is a law that lives in the hearts of just and ethical people.

Always do the right thing or as Polonius said This above all to thine own self be true.

You failed to do the right thing.

I am very ill,there is a piece of music by Pachelbel,Cannon in d,it is valium for the soul,I use the word soul to mean a sense of self not Christian Judaic drivel.

I just want to sit under Mont Blanc and listen to that piece of music and know Gracen suffers in jail.

If I had a magic wand,I would give all of Uncle Toms (Obama's) family cancer and make him live to be 1000 then he would know the pain and suffering he has caused me.

Restorative justice with Promethean overtones.

The only power Clinton has to protect Gracen is the power Obama gives him.

Just last night I emailed everybody at Justice in DC and not one did the right thing,I also emailed every US Attorney,again not one did the right thing.

America has never done the right thing the pariah is a cancer upon Mother Earth.

I close for the last time and implore you to do the right thing and open your mouth about a woman stealing from charity.

As for recovered funds,I no longer care about anybody in this world except a man called Jean-Pierre as he is the only man that cares about me in this world.

However 75 percent of recovered funds still belongs to the needy,no idea who that would go to.

Somebody would need to impress me and in 13 years nobody has except a man called Jean-Pierre.

Please your honor do what is just,right and noble,Denning would have done.

Chris Hepburn

We all know this house has been an ongoing problem, from the people living in the yard to the 4 foot open flames indoors. Multiple blatant drug deals a day go on in there, loud arguments with druggies and these people also choose to steal from me when they are here to buy their drugs. When I called Metro today they responded in a timely manner so my hopes were up. That quickly changed like every... See more

Boyd Briefs

From Dean Dan

This past Saturday more than 50 UNLV Boyd School of Law students kicked off the school year by working with the Legal Aid Center of Southern Nevada and countless others throughout our community to help more than 350 Nevadans seal their criminal records, a process that can help individuals secure employment and, in fact, begin a new life. This was Boyd's 7th annual Community Law Day and it brought out the best in our legal community. The effort was led by Barbara Buckley, executive director of the Legal Aid Center, and, at the law school, by Christine Smith, associate dean for public service, compliance, and administration.

To say that this was a group effort is an understatement. Together with the Legal Aid Center attorneys, paralegals, and legal assistants and Boyd students, graduates, faculty, and staff who orchestrated the event, 50 pro bono attorneys, attorneys and staff from Nevada Legal Services, staff from three local police departments, the Nevada Departments of Public Safety, Corrections, and Parole & Probation, and the offices of the district attorney from Las Vegas, North Las Vegas, and Henderson all came together to serve the needs of our community. And, of course, the culminating step in the process required the presence of three mobile courtrooms, with judges and staff who reviewed petitions and signed orders. Thanks to the efforts of all of these offices and individuals, a process that normally takes months was, for many, accomplished in one day.

Thank you to everyone for such incredibly hard work and to Barbara and Christine especially for their vision and diligence in serving the legal needs of Nevada. We are proud of our students, faculty and staff and grateful for our collaborations with our community partners.

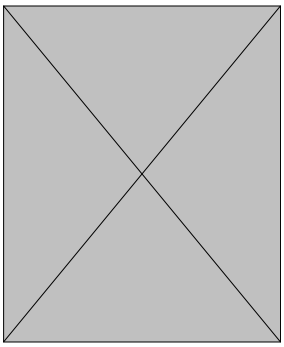
Faculty Spotlight: Stacey Tovino

What's the most important thing you are working on right now? I am continuing to build out the UNLV Health Law Program, an academic partnership between the UNLV William S. Boyd School of Law and the UNLV School of Community Health Sciences. The Program is multi-dimensional and includes a comprehensive curriculum for law and community health sciences students, a health law concentration for law students, a speaker series, continuing education programs, interprofessional conferences and symposia, film screenings, cutting-edge law and public health scholarship, sponsored research, and local, national, and international academic consulting, including legislative drafting.

Which of your recent articles should I read? I would suggest my forthcoming Washington Law Review article titled "The House Edge: On Gambling and Professional Discipline" as well as an article I just submitted for publication titled "On Health, Law, and the House of God." "The House Edge" weaves together elements of mental health law, disability law, and professional responsibility law in the context of gambling disorder and shows how individuals with this condition do not receive the same legal protections and benefits as do individuals who are addicted to alcohol or drugs. "The House of God" identifies and resolves four questions that lie at the intersection of law, religion, and health care finance that have received scant attention from constitutional law and law and religion scholars. These questions relate to Medicare financing of religious non-medical health care, home health care, and hospice care.

What is your favorite part of your job as a law school professor and a health law program director? Hands down, my favorite part of my job is seeing my students accomplish their career goals. Our students obtain jobs in large and small health law firms, federal and state health and social services agencies, local departments of health, general and special hospitals, public and private academic medical centers, and for-profit and not-for-profit health care institutions. They keep me on my toes!



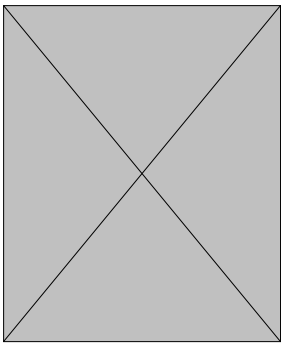
Student Spotlight: Brad Duda

Which will take place first, your graduation from law school or your beloved Chicago Cubs finally ... finally ... winning the World Series? Ouch! We're going there, are we? To avoid further cursing of my beloved Cubbies, I'll only say that the Cubs won't win the World Series until they win the World Series.

You're a part-time evening student. Tell us about your day job. I work at one of our local hospitals as the director of environmental services. Although my job might not imply it, I have enjoyed tremendous exposure to and hands-on experience not only in health care law, but also in other areas such as regulatory, labor and employment, immigration, and of course corporate law.

And you also have a pretty full house to which you return at the end of the day/evening, right? Ah, yes. The shock value never diminishes whenever professors and classmates learn that I'm married with five young children [Emma, age 9; twins Evelyn and Ethan, 7; Elizabeth, age 4; Emmett, age 2], especially when folks find out that our youngest was due my first day of law school. Fortunately, he was born five days early. Needless to say, my wife, Emily, is obviously an incredible person as she has been so strong and supportive of me while taking on a greater share of the parenting while I'm in school. The kids have also been very supportive, and two of my oldest have even attended class with me on occasion.

What about Boyd has stood out for you so far? I can't say enough about how supportive everyone is. I'm continually impressed with how everyone wants you to succeed here at Boyd. The support I've received has served as a constant reminder that I chose the right law school.



Alumni Spotlight: Marjorie Hauf '02

Marjorie Hauf is a partner at Ganz & Hauf in Las Vegas, and is serving as a charter class reunion committee member for the Annual Alumni Dinner in November.

You're a member of the Alumni Leadership Circle. Why do you feel it is important to donate to the law school? Also, in what capacity do you feel your membership in this group impacts the school? I was extremely fortunate to be among the first class of students admitted to the Boyd School of Law. I have watched the institution begin as, and continue to be, a law school this community can be proud of. Those of us who have benefited from the hard work of the faculty and staff at Boyd have a responsibility to ensure that the school maintains a consistent level of quality and prestige. You can't escape the fact that it will take volunteer time, money, and input from those of us out in the trenches, so to speak, every day. I only hope to be able to give back just a little of the opportunity that Boyd has given me.

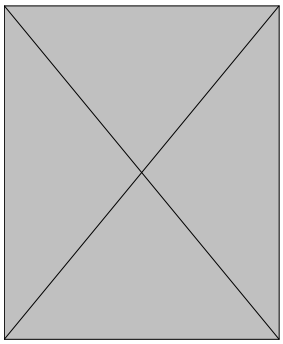
You're involved in a lot -- service, philanthropy, entrepreneurialism, family. How do you keep a healthy balance? I can't claim to have all the answers for a good work-life balance. As the managing partner of a litigation-heavy law practice, a wife, and mother of two young boys, finding enough hours in the day to be everything can be challenging. I set myself personal goals, when not in trial, such as dropping them at school in the morning, always leaving work with enough time to see my boys and tuck them into bed, making attending their sports events a priority, and working from home on Friday. However, I also feel that my family benefits from my example of hard work and dedication both to the practice of law and giving back to the community.

What do you enjoy doing in your spare time? I have a passion for travel. In what spare time I have, I find that travel allows me relief from the high-stress environment of litigation, while allowing me to concentrate on my family and create wonderful memories for my children.



Community Member Spotlight: Jeffrey Rodefer

Jeffrey Rodefer is General Counsel & CCO at Golden Entertainment, Inc. and a member of the Gaming Law Advisory Board at the Boyd School of Law.

Tell me about your decision to serve on the Gaming Law Advisory Board and what makes the Boyd School of Law's mission meaningful to you. I began working closely with the Boyd School of Law in my role as Chairman of Gaming Law Section (GLS) for the State Bar of Nevada in 2001. At that time, I approached Dean Morgan about the GLS hosting a charitable golf tournament to raise scholarships for law school students. He was on board. Even if we only raised $500, he thought it would be a great way to spread the word about the law school. From 2001-2011, the GLS held an Annual Law Scholarship Golf Tournament that raised slightly more than Dean Morgan's hope of $500; the event generated more than $330,000 in scholarship funds. More recently, the GLS has sponsored the Faiss Lecture Series and Schreck Gaming Moot Court Competition, as well as funding $40,000 for GLS scholarships to be awarded to two students in the LL.M. in Gaming Law and Regulation program each year from 2016-2019. It's great to see Nevada with its own accredited law school, something that was long overdue and that, thankfully, Bill Boyd's generosity brought to fruition. When I started law school in the fall of 1985, my only option was to leave the state. Fortunately, I was lucky enough to be a recipient of the W.I.C.H.E. (Western Interstate Commission on Higher Education) scholarship that made law school possible. In turn, I've tried to give back through my service as a Trustee on the University of Nevada, Reno's Foundation, the GLS and now the Gaming Law Advisory Board.

What was your first or most memorable job? By far the most memorable would be as an assistant purchasing agent for a casino in Carson City while I was in high school. It was my responsibility to do inventory and negotiate with vendors on everything from linens, food & beverage, paper products, glassware, silverware, playing cards, liquor, etc. I guess back then no one cared that a kid was essentially buying booze and playing cards and stocking the liquor room that ran out to the bars. Today, that would obviously be frowned upon.

What advice would you give to current Boyd students? Be flexible. I went to law school thinking I'd be an environmental lawyer and work with the TRPA. However, I returned to Nevada to fulfill my W.I.C.H.E. commitment and never became an environmental lawyer. After a year in the AG's Office, the new Attorney General thought with my undergraduate degree in finance and accounting I should be a tax lawyer. A few years later, I was transferred to the Gaming Division. I've largely been a gaming lawyer since '93. Although, in-house corporate work might be better classified as 90% crisis management and 10% the practice of law.

While this seems unlikely to us, the family definitely has the sense that nothing is being done to help this girl (though we are told the police did come when a brownie given to her was laced with drugs) and that “gangs of up to 30 students” have been permitted to board her bus to harass her.

Our primary concern in reporting to you is that the student is threatening to kill herself, so if appropriate officials could please intervene? The sister, Miss Clement, may be reached at 7[redacted]. Thank you.

EXTERNAL EMAIL

Good afternoon Mayor,
Attached, please find the photos of the individuals that Kenny mentioned who found their way to our property in the last 7 days. It is the same report with different faces each week. Dozens and dozens more were stopped at the entrance or, turned away by someone in the casino. We have seen a noticeable increase in these individuals aggressiveness lately that makes the problem worse. These individuals are also barricading themselves in our restrooms requiring us to use force at times along with open use of illicit drugs. We spent $1,300,000 in security last year, including $353,000 paid to a third party security company for external coverage and that still is not enough. We know this is a community problem but we are asking for your help on this. The church up the street is promoting this problem to our area with the daily feedings that are conducted. We are at a loss of resources on how to address this.

Thank you in advance. All of us at the El Cortez appreciate what you do for our property and, the betterment of downtown as a whole.

Friend --

As you may remember from my last letter, things changed at the Legislature last week.The 79th Legislative Session has completed Round 1: April 14th was the bill deadline, and anything that didn't get passed is now dead in the water. While some of our favorite bills died - like SB358, the ban on civil forfeiture, or AB237, the ban on capital punishment - our testimony and your support helped keep some other excellent pieces of legislation alive.

Here are some of our biggest victories from the first half of the Legislative Session. Over the past two months, we fought for these bills. Now they've made it through the first deadline, and we'll be supporting them if and when they travel to the other chamber. Some of them, like SB110 and SB201, have already come up this week, and I was there to fight for the LGBT+ rights they protect. I'll be there for the others, too.

SB201 would ban the use of abusive so-called "reparative therapy" on minors in Nevada. We believe that sexual orientation is naturally diverse and that people should never have their minds or bodies violated simply because of who they love. The moral depravity of torturing children for not conforming to a heteronormative paradigm is odious beyond speech. Even if conversion therapy did work - though there is no evidence that it does - it would be a solution in search of a problem, as there's nothing wrong with LGBT people being who they are at heart. I was extremely proud to support this bill when it was introduced in the Senate, and I was proud to support it again when it reached the Assembly on April 19th. Gender identity is not a crime.

AJR2 makes the provisions for marriage in the Nevada Constitution gender-neutral, consistent with the Supreme Court's 2015 decision in Obergefell v. Hodges. While this may be a simple cleanup of the Nevada Constitution's language, we appreciate the moral and practical importance of changing the language to protect people who love each other. And with Pence and Sessions near the levers of power in D.C., protecting LGBT+ people in Nevada is more important than ever.

AB181 would restore civil rights for felons who have served their time. According to estimates from the Sentencing Project, approximately 4% of Nevadans are ineligible to vote as a result of felony disenfranchisement. At present, Nevada has some of the harshest felony disenfranchisement laws in the country. Given that implicit bias in the criminal justice system results in the disproportionate conviction of people of color, minority communities are particularly severely affected by harsh felony disenfranchisement laws. The result is a cycle of poverty, crime, and disengagement from society. We believe that Nevadans who have served their sentences or been discharged honorably from probation or parole deserve a second chance. AB181 gives them that chance.

SB176 would require all on-duty law enforcement officers to wear body cameras. Requiring law enforcement officers to record their encounters will protect Nevadans from police misconduct and law enforcement officers from false accusations, though we note that cameras are most effective when paired with training law enforcement officers in procedural justice and de-escalation whenever possible. While we, as libertarians, are not generally fond of any increase in public spending - especially spending towards law enforcement - we believe that body cameras can save priceless innocent lives.

AB303 reduces the use of private prisons in Nevada. While this bill has been amended to be looser than a strict ban, we still think it's an improvement. The War on Drugs and the private prison industry create a web of perverse profit motives. For private prisons, the client is not the inmate; the state itself is - and they aren't focused on the taxpayer's bottom line, but their own. These well-connected corporatist entities choose to cut corners at the cost of inmates' rights, liberties, and well-being.

AB414 would require police interrogations of suspects of homicide or sexual assault to be recorded. This would improve outcomes for suspects and law enforcement alike. Interrogations can be extremely long, and incredibly stressful, sometimes leading to false confessions and wrongful convictions. Sunlight is the best disinfectant, and increasing transparency of interrogations would benefit every good cop and every person in police custody. I'd prefer if this bill went further and required all interrogations to be filmed, but in combination with SB176 (police body cameras), it's a step in the right direction.

SB110 removes an onerous and expensive requirement for trans people to publish a name change in a newspaper for three weeks after the date of the change. The original intent of the law was to prevent individuals from escaping from their creditors via name changes, but with the internet, the requirement has become ineffective for that purpose. All that's left is a handout to newspaper companies and an easy list of targets for the transphobic to hunt down. I testified in favor of SB110 on its first round through the Senate, and will again on April 20th when it goes to the Assembly. Eliminating the reporting requirement for everyone would be the eventual goal, but the passage of SB110 as it currently exists would still represent a victory for privacy, liberty, and people's right to vote with their dollars.

AB428 makes Narcan, a drug used to treat opioid overdoses, available over-the-counter (with pharmacist consultation). This bill is a perfect example of how pharmaceutical deregulation can be a compassionate, life-saving measure.

Unfortunately, some of the bills we opposed are still alive and moving forward, like AB269, which would tax nicotine-containing vapor products, or AB160, which would have required a study of energy-efficient alternatives to window replacements in all state-owned buildings prior to taking action (fortunately, this bill was amended directly as a result of our opposition, and is now vastly limited in scope).

Some of the bills we opposed died, too, which is good news! AB90 would have increased the penalties for the murder of a police officer (why is a cop's life worth more than yours?), AB212 would have prohibited student achievement data from being used in schools wholesale, and AB274 would have had Nevada join the National Popular Vote Compact (while we're not opposed to the abolition of the Electoral College, the NPV is clunky and imperfect).

This is far from an exhaustive list of the bills we've fought for or against, and we'll be keeping our eyes open for the next six and a half weeks as the legislators - and we - forge ahead. This week has been fairly quiet in committee as everything's currently in floor sessions, but next week will be insane as bills begin moving through the second chamber in greater numbers. No rest for the wicked!

Until next time,
